Gov. Glynn to Send His Nomination as Commissioner to Senate on Monday.

SUCCEEDS DR. E. H. PORTER

Position Had Been Offered to Former City Medical Director by Four Governors, and Declined.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 15.—Gov. Glynn announced to-night that Dr. Hermann M. Biggs, who recently retired as Chief Medical Director of the New York City Health Department, had agreed to become head of the State Health Department. His nomination will be sent to the Senate Monday night, when the Legislature reconvenes, and without doubt will be confirmed without much delay.

The post of State Health Commissioner was tendered to Dr. Biggs by Gov. Sulzer, but he declined the offer on the ground that he considered the conditions under which he must work unsatisfactory. Three times previously other Governors had urged him to direct the work of protecting and promoting the public health in this State, with no better success, as the State Department of Health did not then possess the large powers, the organization, or the potentiality as a health agent that has been afforded it under the new health law, drafted last year by a commission of which Dr. Biggs himself was Chairman.

Dr. Biggs will succeed Dr. Eugene H. Porter of New York City, who was appointed Health Commissioner by the late Gov. Higgins in 1905, and reappointed by Gov. Hughes in 1909. Under the law enacted last year the salary will be $8,000, and the term of office for three years. Under the old law the salary was only $6,000.

Gov. Glynn expressed his great satisfaction over acquiring the services of Dr. Biggs for the State.

"Because of the part Dr. Biggs had in framing the new health law, as well as his eminent qualifications for the position, I have left no stone unturned to pursuade him to administer it," he said.

Dr. Hermann M. Biggs has taken an active part in the work of the New York City Department of Health for twenty-six years. He was pathologist and Director of New York City's bacteriological laboratory, which he was instrumental in establishing. This was the first municipal bacteriological laboratory in the world. As Director of this laboratory he was responsible for the utilization of bacteriological methods in sanitary surveillance of infectious diseases. He also introduced diphtheria antitoxin into this country and directed the production of the first serum in 1895.

Dr. Biggs was born in Trumansburg, Tompkins County, New York, in 1859. After graduating from Cornell University and Bellevue Hospital Medical College, he studied in the University of Berlin and the University of Greifswald, Germany. He was the first Director of the Carnegie Laboratory, and gave the first systematic teaching in bacteriology given in this country. He has been Professor of Pathological Anatomy, Professor of Therapeutics and Clinical Medicine, and Associate Professor of Medicine in Bellevue Hospital and University Medical College.

He is visiting physician of Bellevue, St. Vincent's, Willard Parker, and Riverside Hospitals. He is a member of the British Institute of Public Health and the International Tuberculosis Bureau of Berlin. He is also honorary fellow of the Hygienic Institute of Great Britain and was knighted by the King of Spain for distinguished services to sanitation. He is fellow of the New York Academy of Medicine and a member of the New York County, New York State and the American Medical Associations, the Association of American Physicians, the Clinical Society, the Practitioners' Society, the American Climatological Society and the British Medical Association.

As Chairman of the New York Public Health Commission of 1913, Dr. Biggs took a leading part in the investigation which placed on the statute books of this State not only the new public health law, but also the Federal Census Bureau's model vital statistics law. Following the passage of the health law he was made Chairman of the newly created Public Health Council.

Besides his public work, Dr. Biggs has been intimately associated with private organizations engaged in public health work. He was Vice President of the last International Congress on Hygiene and Demography and Chairman of the Permanent American Committee on International Hygiene Congresses. He is President of the Tuberculosis Preventorium for Children at Farmingdale, N. J., and was formerly President and is now a Director of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. He has been a member of the Tuberculosis Committee of the State Charities Aid Association since its establishment, and is also a member of the Board of Scientific Directors of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research.

As General Medical Officer of the New York City Department of Health, to which position he was appointed in 1900, Dr. Biggs was chiefly responsible for formulating and directing its work for the prevention of tuberculosis which Prof. Koch in 1908 said was superior to that of any other large city in the world. Under Dr. Biggs's direction the system of tuberculosis clinics, the Otisville Sanatorium for Incipient Cases, and the Riverside Hospital for Advanced Cases have successively been established. Dr. Biggs has lived to see the policy of compulsory notification of tuberculosis, adopted by New York City largely on his suggestion, and at first violently opposed by the New York Academy of Medicine and New York County Medical Society, become the accepted policy of the medical profession and health authorities generally throughout the world.

DR. BIGGS READY TO SERVE.

Prepared to Start Work as Soon as Senate Confirms Him, He Says.

Dr. Biggs was notified over the telephone last night of his formal designation as State Health Commissioner. He evinced no surprise, but said that he wouldn't be prepared to accept congratulations until the Senate had confirmed the appointment.

"There's many a slip 'twixt Governor and Senate, you know," he said.

"Are you going to accept?" he was asked.

"Yes, I am going to take it if the Senate confirms the appointment," was the answer, "but it really implies more responsibility than I was looking for. I retired from the Health Department on Dec. 31 and I was in hope that I might get a rest. If I can be of service to the public as Health Officer, however, I will be glad to meet the new responsibility. I will be ready to start at any time."

JOHN BURKE AT PANAMA.

Col. Goethals to Retain Him Unless Washington Orders Otherwise.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PANAMA, Jan. 15.—John Burke, Superintendent of the commissary of the Panama Railroad, against whom an employe made charges that he had accepted commissions and gifts from concerns which received orders for supplies, arrived here this morning from New Orleans. He was met at the dock at Colon by Col. Wilson, chief of the Commissary Department of Panama.

Col. Goethals, asked whether Burke would resume his position as Superintendent, replied:

"Yes, unless I receive orders from Washington that he is not to be so employed."

Friends and partisans of Burke gave a banquet to him this evening at the Hotel Washington as an expression of their confidence in him.

The Panama Journal this morning published on its front page a cartoon depicting Col. Wilson sitting on a lid labeled "Commissary Scandal." The cartoon was headed, "How Long Will the Lid Stay On?"

PANAMA, Jan. 15.—Col. George W. Goethals, Chairman of the Panama Canal Commission, has received the reports of the special agents who have investigated the European dealings of John Burke. These were the subject of a conference to-day between Col. Goethals and Frank Feuille, legal adviser to the Canal Commission. It is understood that the investigation has brought to light some irregularities, but the report has not been given out. Special Agent Nye is continuing the search of the records here.

Col. Goethals said to-night:

"We ascertained that Burke did not list in the schedule submitted to the investigating committee all the property he really possessed, and it is not an easy matter to discover what has become of this. Special Agent Nye is trying to determine and in the meantime Prosecutor Feuille will also work on the case."

Col. Goethals has instructed the Law Department to ascertain if the person or persons involved in the alleged irregularities in the Commissary Department can be prosecuted criminally.

HEARS OF BIG CINEMA DEAL.

$25,000,000 Amalgamation Here Mentioned in London Law Court.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—Mention of a $25,000,000 American cinematograph company amalgamation, which it is said is now being effected in New York, was made in the course of the hearing of a suit in the High Court to-day.

The moving spirit in the amalgamation, it is stated, is Charles Aitken, Managing Director of the Western Imports Company, a New York cinematograph corporation. Owing to Mr. Aitken's presence in America, the action, in which he is the defendant, is being delayed here.

Damages are claimed against Mr. Aitken in connection with an automobile accident in Manchester, when he was in England some time ago. Application was made to-day for the delay of the action for three months, until Mr. Aitken finishes his amalgamation deal, but the Judge refused such a long postponement, pointing out that Mr. Aitken's evidence should be taken by commission in New York.

Persons interested in the moving picture business here said last night that they knew of no recent attempt to amalgamate the two factions in the business in this country. From time to time photographic play producers and theatrical managers have attempted to bring the "Moving Picture Trust" and the "Independent" together, but the present suits against the former aggregation for violations of the anti-trust laws have put a stop to all such moves.

A. L. Erlanger, of the theatrical firm of Klaw & Erlanger, is reported as having tried to bring the warring factions together. Klaw & Erlanger have recently entered the moving picture field with a $5,000,000 corporation, and Cohan & Harris are also interested in the business. Marcus Loew, one of the largest users of moving pictures in this country, a short time ago ceased to use "trust" films and is now showing the pictures of the "independents" in his theatres.

SHOOTER, AT BAY, HOLDS OUT

Sheriff, Despite Threat, Hesitates to Use Guns on Beardsley.

MAYVILLE, N. Y., Jan. 15.—Forty-eight hours after the shooting of John G. W. Putnam, Overseer of the Poor, Edward Beardsley, his assailant, was still holding out to-night against the siege of Sheriff Gustav Anderson and his deputies at the little farm house near Summerdale where Putnam was attacked.

Beardsley was defiant to-day. When reminded of his promise to surrender he laughed, and warned Deputy Timothy Van Cise, who carried messages to him yesterday and to-day under a flag of truce, not to approach the house again under pain of death.

One message to Beardsley from Sheriff Anderson said that unless he surrendered by 2:30 P. M. the place would be taken by storm, and that if Beardsley resisted he would be shot without mercy.

"Let them come," was Beardsley's answer.

"Then you won't surrender?" asked Van Cise.

"I might, about April 1. Now clear out," replied Beardsley.

The hour of the threatened raid came and passed, but Sheriff Anderson hesitated to carry out his threat, saying he did not wish to waste the lives of deputies and neighbors.

The fact that a woman and nine children are in the house, at the mercy of the desperado, and perhaps starving, was urged upon the Sheriff as a reason for immediate action.

Putnam was removed to a hospital in Jamestown to-night after a successful operation to remove the bullet from his groin. He showed some improvement, but on account of his advanced age—he is nearly seventy—there is little hope for his recovery.

GREAT DAM BURSTS; MANY IN DANGER

REPORT SEVERAL TRAPPED

Special to The New York Times.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Jan. 15.—Tearing madly twenty miles down the dark valley of the Stoney River, a horseman reached the town of Schell, W. Va., at 4 o'clock this morning with the terrifying intelligence that the great dam built recently by the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company at Stony Bottom was cracking and might burst at any minute.

The telephone leading from the dam was out of commission, and the man had had to adopt this Paul Revere method to carry the news.

From Schell the warning was sent out to Piedmont, Western Post, Luke, Barnum, Dobbin, Blain, Shaw, Dodson, and other places in the valley, and in a few minutes fire bells were ringing and men afoot and on horseback were spreading the alarm.

Roused from their slumbers, the bewildered inhabitants fled to the surrounding hills, and to-night, huddled in rude shacks and about blazing campfires hundreds of refugees watched while the northern branch of the Potomac River, a swollen icy flood, swept through their homes in the towns below.

Their flight was not an instant too soon. A wall of water, starting from the broken dam, moved down to the Potomac, inundated the town of Schell, where the two streams meet, and started a flood wave laden with wreckage and ice down the Potomac Valley. It is rumored that several men were caught in the flood at Shaw, which is twenty miles from Schell, but this has not been confirmed, and there are no other reports of casualties.

The great dam, which was completed only a few months ago at a cost of a quarter million dollars, is a total wreck. At 3 o'clock this morning the break began at both ends, and about 11 o'clock the front of the dam went out. The first break early this morning tended to minimize the force of the greater break just before noon, yet a wall of water thirty feet high, stretching between the narrow defile, swept down, carrying everything before it.

Rises Five Feet in Ten Minutes.

At 4:25 o'clock the rise at Piedmont began, and in ten minutes the rise was five feet. At 8 o'clock the lower parts of three towns were flooded. Forty minutes later the flood reached Keyser, West Va., where people along the water front had already moved to safety. At Barnum the rise was eight feet in fifteen minutes. The actual rise at Schell, where the flood joined the Potomac, was fifteen feet above the record. Through to Potomac River valley from Cumberland west great excitement prevailed all day as it was feared the huge logs in the drift would tear out the dam at Luke and a number of small dams. The Western Maryland Railway placed a string of steel cars on the bridge at Luke to weight it down. The waters tore down all communication for the Western Maryland Railway, and the officials are in the dark as to the extent of damage to the line.

At Piedmont the telephone girl, when asked about the flood, answered:

"Good Lord! I don't know anything about it. There's water all around us; everything is closed, and the people have gone to the hills. What's to become of me?"

It is understood the girl was later taken out of the building in a boat. The Western Maryland Railway to-night is sending out two trainloads of ties, timber, ballast, and rails to make repairs, there having been numerous washouts.

At West Virginia Junction late this afternoon the Potomac went up eight feet in forty minutes, and to-night the waters were still rising. Vast quantities of driftwood are being carried down the stream. The ice in the Potomac River here was dynamited in order to give the flood a free channel, and the water is losing its force in consequence. Trainloads of curious persons from Cumberland went up the river to view the flood scene when it became apparent that the danger was passed.

Officials here to-night estimated that property along the path of the flood had been damaged to the extent of about $200,000. To this was added thousands of dollars' worth of logs carried away by the water. The loss of the pulp and paper company is estimated at about $175,000.

The big dam impounded a lake of water five miles long and two miles wide. It was sixty-five feet high, the outer side at the breast of the dam being ninety feet in height. One could walk under it like Niagara Falls. It was looked upon as the last word in concrete dam building.

The engineers were right when they said all the dam would never go out at once in case of a break. They had designed it so the water pressure would be downward instead of outward, still it could not be saved. The zero weather, followed by the sudden thaw, is believed to have been the cause of the disintegration. It happens that there is a crusade before the Public Service Commission of West Virginia against power and storage dams, and it is thought the present disaster will involve litigation.

Lee Ott, Chairman of the West Virginia Public Service Commission, has gone to the dam to investigate. Allen L. Luke, General Superintendent of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, when told of the crack in the dam, went to the scene by special train before daybreak.

SKULL CAPS CAUSE A ROW.

N. Y. U. Sophs Will Raid Freshies Who Wear Skating Caps Instead.

Irritated because the student body had voted in favor of permitting freshmen to wear gray woolen skating caps on the campus during the Winter instead of the conventional black skull caps, 100 members of the sophomore class, led by the President, William Mackay, walked out of the meeting in the auditorium in the library at the New York University yesterday afternoon.

After this secession the student body voted that the sophomore class should be debarred from the organization until an apology had been made. The student body also passed a resolution debarring both freshman and sophomore classes from a vote on student affairs.

Members of the sophomore class after the meeting threatened that skating caps would be taken away from freshmen caught wearing them after chapel at 10:30 o'clock to-day. The members of the present sophomore class, when they were freshmen, were forced to wear the skull caps. This year's freshmen wore skull caps until many suffered frostbitten ears.

NATIONAL CITY BANK IN WILLIAMS FIGHT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The Senate Committee on Banking and Currency heard further testimony this afternoon on the appointment of John Skelton Williams, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, to be Controller of the Currency.

One of the witnesses before the committee to-day was Milton E. Ailes, Vice President of the Riggs National Bank, and Washington representative of the National City Bank of New York. He said Mr. Williams was not qualified by temperament or otherwise to be Controller of the Currency. He also said Mr. Williams was prejudiced against him. This prejudice he attributed to the fact that he had succeeded Mr. Williams as a Director of the Seaboard Air Line, a railroad which Mr. Williams organized.

Mr. Ailes read what was reported to be a statement from the Treasury Department that was published in The Washington Times—a Munsey paper—eulogizing Mr. Munsey for performing a public service in absorbing the United States Trust Company. It was disclosed at this point that no officer of the Treasury had authorized the statement. Stewart Oliver, who is employed in the Munsey Trust Company of Baltimore, said that he had written the statement, but an error was made in the publication office, which attributed it to the Treasury.

Mr. Williams, who was present while Mr. Ailes gave his testimony, said that he had not known Mr. Ailes until recently, and that, therefore, there was no prejudice on his part over the Seaboard Air Line incident.

Mr. Ailes told the committee that Mr. Williams had gone to great lengths to obtain evidence upon which to base an attack on the National City Bank. He alleged that Mr. Williams had sent an examiner to national banks in Virginia and Georgia to demand correspondence that had passed between them and the National City Bank of New York. The banks surrendered this correspondence, and Mr. Ailes charged that Mr. Williams attempted to use it in an endeavor to show that the National City Bank had tried to embarrass the Treasury Department in its policy of handling money through the movement of crops.

Mr. Williams admitted that a bank examiner was sent to Virginia and Georgia, as alleged by Mr. Ailes, but he insisted that the examiner had no legal authority to compel the banks to surrender the correspondence in question.

Mr. Williams said the examiner requested permission to take the letters, and that the banks had voluntarily surrendered them. During the course of the hearing there were several lively passages between Senators, and it became evident that the Democratic members of the committee intended to go into all the details of Mr. Williams's record as a banker and an officer of the Treasury Department in order that the whole matter might be cleared before his nomination was reported to the Senate.

W. R. Merriam, Charles Warden, and Charles A. Douglas of the Continental Trust Company of Washington, which wished to take over control of the United States Trust Company, acquitted the Treasury Department of any favoritism in the absorption of that concern by the Munsey Trust Company.

The investigation will be continued to-morrow.

After the committee adjourned to-day a story was going the rounds that there had been an unpleasant scene in the office of Secretary McAdoo of the Treasury Department in which Mr. Ailes figured. According to the story, Charles C. Glover, President of the Riggs National Bank; Mr. Ailes, and W. J. Flather, another of its Vice Presidents, were called to Mr. McAdoo's office, and there Mr. McAdoo and Assistant Secretary Williams had charged Mr. Ailes with responsibility for newspaper attacks that had been made on the department for its action in lending $1,000,000 to national banks under the condition that the money be loaned in turn to the Munsey Trust Company. It was said that the incident ended by Mr. McAdoo ordering Mr. Ailes out of the Treasury Department.

WILSON TO TAKE TIME.

Will Proceed Slowly in Choosing Federal Reserve Board.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—President Wilson announced to-day that he would probably utilize the full sixty-day period allotted by law before making final selections for the Federal Reserve Board, and would proceed slowly and carefully. He made it clear that he regards the task as one equally as important as choosing a whole Supreme Court of the United States. He intends to canvass the field thoroughly, giving attention to geographical considerations, but not seeking any hard and fast division.

The President will not insist that anti-trust legislation have precedence in Congress over rural credits, or vice versa, but is disposed to leave the measures to parliamentary procedure, hoping that both will be accomplished at the present session.

While he also hopes that the Presidential primary idea outlined in his annual message may be enacted into law before Congress adjourns, he will not object to its going-over until the December session, believing the opinion of the country should be ascertained and a bill drawn that is universally satisfactory. He expects to confer soon about the proposal with Senator Kern, Chairman of the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

COLORADO ELECTS WOMAN CHAIRMAN

Mrs. Lee, Who Heads Democratic Committee, Admits That She's a Machine Politician.

Special to The New York Times.

DENVER, Jan. 15.—Mrs. Gertrude A. Lee to-day became Chairman of the Democratic State Committee of Colorado through the resignation of the elected Chairman, George T. Bradley, to become State Railroad Commissioner. She says she is a machine politician. According to her view, a machine, impregnable and unassailable, alone can assure party success. Therefore she is planning to build in Colorado what she expects to be one of the greatest political machines of the age.

"By a machine," she declared, "I do not mean a corrupt body, but an organization pure in principle and certain in purpose. Consequently I am opposed to steam-roller methods.

"I expect to remain Chairman of the State Committee until after the elections next Fall. We have a United States Senator to elect, besides a full State ticket and four Congressmen. My aim is to organize our party so that Democrats will be returned for all these offices. Senator Thomas's term expires. We cannot afford to let a Republican succeed him. If possible I shall visit every county in the State and learn the true conditions. I shall try to organize the local committees and have a movement started that will assure party success in the Fall.

"I am a Democrat for principle's sake—not from political reasons. Of course, the Bull Moosers have made the claim of being the true representatives of woman's rights in Colorado. They are not. I hope to make the Democratic Party the leading exponent of the rights of women. I hope within the next few months to bring the majority of the women of this State into the folds of our party.

"I am for party above the man. By that I mean that the candidate should be pledged to certain principles, and that the individual equation should be wholly eliminated. Roosevelt quit the Republican Party because he believed it corrupt. He doubtless was right in his belief, but he was wrong in his action. My theory is: If the party goes wrong, bring it back; don't desert it in its hour of need. However, I am glad Roosevelt deserted. He helped to show the world that his party was wrenog and to give the right party a chance to show its merits."

Prior to the resignation of Mr. Bradley, Mrs. Lee was Vice Chairman of the committee. This made her ex officio Chairman of the Women's Division of the State Committee. Now she will hold both offices. She is the first woman State Chairman in the United States.

Mrs. Lee, who was born and reared in Grand Rapids, Mich., has lived in Colorado for years. She said to-night that her first interest in politics was developed while she was in high school pursuing the study of civil government. Her first official act in politics was as Election Judge the first year Colorado women voted. She was appointed by the Republican Party and was one of the three persons in her precinct to vote the Democratic ticket. She was a Wilson Presidential Elector.

"GATEWOMEN" FOR CHICAGO.

They Will Displace Men in Collecting Illinois Central Tickets.

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—A new field of endeavor is to be invaded by women with the putting into practice of the change contemplated by the Illinois Central Railroad.

Gatemen, the employes who have collected and punched tickets, are to be replaced by gatewomen. The women will be uniformed and charged with the duties now performed by the men.

TRY TO FORCE GIRL TO WED.

Newark Court Holds Parents in $10,000 Bail Each.

For having tried to force their 12-year-old daughter to marry their boarder, who is eighteen years older than she is, Judge Hahn, in the Third Criminal Court in Newark, yesterday held the girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Reddington of 11 Alyea Street, in $10,000 bail each. Justice of the Peace Michael Murano, who drew up the papers in which the parents consented to their daughter's marriage to Mario Amercisano, was held in $500 bail as a material witness.

The case came to the attention of Police Capt. Peter Christie, who questioned the girl and learned that the papers had been signed by the parents against her protests. After hearing the child's story the Captain had the parents taken into custody and Murano was summoned to appear in court yesterday.

The girl testified that her mother took her to the office of the Justice of the Peace. Mrs. Reddington told the Justice that she wanted a paper drawn up that would make it legal for her daughter to marry the man who lived with them. According to the testimony, the Justice refused to do anything without the signature of the father. Then it was arranged that Murano should call at the Reddington home, where the papers of consent were executed.

Amercisano testified that he owned all of the furniture in the Reddington household. This was denied by Mrs. Reddington.

NEW THOUGHT LEADER SUES

Dr. Julia Sears, Founder of Church, Asks for Divorce.

Dr. Julia Seton Sears, the founder of the New Thought Church, who decided several days ago that the vibrations between herself and Frank W. Sears, her husband, were inharmonious, began her threatened suit for divorce yesterday, naming Pauline Langdon as co-respondent. Mr. and Mrs. Sears were married in Denver twelve years ago.

Mrs. Sears taught her husband the New Thought philosophy, but soon, she says, he branched out as a teacher of the philosophy on his own account and tried to usurp her place at the head of the church. Incidentally, Dr. Sears says, her husband became too attentive to one of the female workers in the congregation and went abroad with her. Mrs. Sears lives at the Hotel Empire. The couple have no children.

R. D. LANKFORD FOUND ASPHYXIATED

Friends and Coroner's Physician Say Dead Man Accidentally Turned On Gas—Had No Worries.

Within two days of the time set for his wedding to a Brooklyn woman, to whom he had been engaged for twelve years, Richard D. Lankford, Vice President and Secretary of hte Southern Railway Company, and an official and Director in other railroads of the South, was found dead yesterday from gas poisoning, on the floor of the bathroom in his bachelor apartments in the Osmond, 1,142 Pacific Street, Brooklyn. The police reported his case as a suicide, but an examination of the circumstances surrounding his death convinced his friends and fiancée, however, that it was accidental. Dr. Lester D. Volk, physician to Coroner Ernest Wagner, after he examined the body, was of the same opinion.

Mr. Lankford was 47 years old. Arrangements for his wedding to-morrow to Miss Helen Patterson at her home, 814 Prospect Place, Brooklyn, were completed. As was his custom, he visited her on Wednesday evening and left the house about 11 o'clock to go to his own apartments. Miss Patterson, who is 38 years old, and Mr. Lankford had known each other for eighteen years. Before leaving her that night he stopped to talk with her brother and father. They were the last of his friends known to have seen him alive.

His death was discovered at noon yesterday by Evans Lynch, a negro porter employed in the house. Lynch attended to the calls from Mr. Lankford's apartments. There was none yesterday and Lynch remarked to other employes that he had not seen Mr. Lankford leave the building to go to his office in Manhattan. A maid in the apartment building told the porter that she detected a strong odor of gas on the top floor. Lynch investigated and traced it to the apartments of Mr. Lankford on that floor. He opened the door and was driven back by the strong fumes. He managed to open the windows to let out some of the gas and then he looked for Mr. Lankford.

The body of the railroad official was found undressed, lying on the floor of the bathroom. Between the door and the jamb was squeezed a bath towel. Lynch told the police, and on the window sill was a pillow. Gas was escaping from an open valve.

Not a Suicide, Say Friends.

With the window of the bathroom closed and the door held fast by the towel, the police regarded the circumstances of Lankford's death as indicating suicide, but the absence of a motive caused his friends and associates in the railroad office to scout this theory. He had no worries, they insisted. The towel in the door was placed there, they said, to wedge the door up. It had sagged a little. They explained that the pillow was placed against the window to hide the view from the outside.

An investigation of the gas cock showed that it was loose, and the fixture is a combination gas and electric light bracket. The electric light button is a few inches from the gas cock, and the electric light was found burning when Mr. Lankford's body was discovered. His friends asserted that in turning on the electric light button, Mr. Lankford probably opened the gas cock by accident, and the escaping fumes suffocated him.

After the porter discovered the body, he called Dr. Farrand B. Pierson of 1,127 Dean Street. Dr. Pierson had treated Mr. Lankford before. He said that the railroad head had been dead several hours.

Word was immediately sent to Miss Patterson and she was found at 641 St. Mark's Avenue, where she and her fiance had engaged an apartment in which to live after their marriage. She was busy attending to the finishing touches of fitting the place up when she learned that an accident had happened to Mr. Lankford. She hurried to his apartment. At the sight of his body she collapsed. She then became hysterical and had to be taken to her home.

She Tells of Parting.

Later in the day Miss Patterson said that when Mr. Lankford left her home on Wednesday night he was in cheerful mood.

"I talked to him for two hours after dinner," she said. "I then bade him good-night and retired. He remained tot alk to my father and brother until almost 11 o'clock. To all outward appearances he was in the best of spirits. We know he had suffered from stomach trouble and violent headaches, but we never imagined that the trouble was serious. I can conceive of no reason why this terrible thing should happen."

Dr. Volk, the Coroner's physician, after he examined the body and the condition of Mr. Lankford's apartments, said he was satisfied that his death was accidental and would make his report accordingly.

The associates of Mr. Lankford in the office of the Southern Railway Company at 30 Church Street described him as a very retiring man. Few of them knew that he was to be married on Saturday. Charles E. McCarthy, assistant secretary of the railroad company, went over to his apartments in Brooklyn. He was emphatic in his denial that Mr. Lankford had any reason to end his life.

Mr. Lankford's business career began in the railroad field. He was a member of a prominent and wealthy Maryland family, and was born on Feb. 28, 1867, at Princess Anne, Md., the son of Uriah J. and Elizabeth Bounds Lankford. After he was educated at the Washington Academy in his home town he entered the railroad service as a clerk in the offices of the Eastern Shore Railroad, now known as the New York, Philadelphia & Norfolk Railroad.

From Sept. 1, 1887, until Dec. 1, 1892, he was auditor of different railroads in the South. For nearly two years afterward he was cashier and treasurer of the Broadway Railroad Company, now a part of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit system. He entered the service of the Southern Railway Company as assistant secretary in June, 1894.

Besides being Vice President of the Southern Railway Company, Mr. Lankford held the same position in the following companies: The Atlanta Terminal Company, Birmingham Terminal Company, Chattanooga Station Company, Gulf Terminal Company, and the Kentucky & Indiana Terminal Railroad Company. He was Secretary of the Alabama Great Southern Railroad Company, New Orleans & Texas Pacific Railway Company, the Virginia Southwestern Railway Company, and other Southern railroads.

His brother, who is a wealthy contractor in Maryland, came to Brooklyn last night to take charge of the body and arrange for the funeral.

CROWN OF POLAND FOUND.

Storm That Uproots an Elm Reveals Hiding Place—500 Years Old.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

VIENNA, Jan. 15.—A severe storm at Cracow, the Austrian fortress that was formerly the capital of Poland, uprooted an ancient elm, revealing the hiding place of the crown worn by the Kings of Poland.

The crown dates back to the fourteenth century. It had been lost since the middle of the eighteenth century.

WON'T CALL AT QUEENSTOWN

Hamburg-American Company Abandons Plan Owing to Pressure on It.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—The Hamburg-American Company has decided temporarily to abandon the plan to make Queenstown a port of call.

An official of the company said to-day that this step was taken because of objections from the highest quarters and was the result of communications through diplomatic channels.

Announcement was made in the latter part of December that the Hamburg-American Company intended to place some of its biggest ships in a service making Queenstown a port of call during the Summer season.

ORDERS WHISTLE BLOWN.

People in Schaumberg, Ill., to Know Banker Is Arrested.

Henry Quimby, principal stockholder of the Farmers' Bank in Schaumberg, Ill., whose founder, Frank M. Henning, a former grocery clerk, is accused of robbing it of $40,000, arrived here yesterday to congratulate the New York Police Department on Henning's arrest. Quimby visited the Tombs to make sure that Henning was behind the bars, and then sent this telegram to the manager of a mill he owns in Schaumberg:

"Blow the whistle for one hour. Tell the people of the town that Henning is captured in New York. He will receive a hot reception, and it will be a warning to all others if they do wrong."

"J. C. R." IS FOUND.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, Minn., Jan. 15.—"J. C. R.," the man of mystery, who escaped from the State hospital here last November, has been found at Oak Forest, Ill. A communication received from the Cook County Infirmary said that six weeks ago a man was admitted to the infirmary who asserted his initials were "J. C. R.," and that he was a Lieutenant in the United States Navy.

A report to the Navy Department brought the reply that the man undoubtedly was "J. C. R." wanted at Rochester. This was confirmed by further descriptions of the man received to-day.

SERUM DOUBLES MILK YIELD

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Jan. 15.—Experiments made on goats in the College of Medicine at Cornell University may eventually lead to an increase in the supply of milk from cows. According to R. P. Hill, a graduate student at Cornell, working under Prof. Sutherland Simpson, a goat has been made to give milk of twice the quantity and five times the cream content regarded as normal through the injection of a recently discovered serum under the skin or into a large blood vessel of the animal.

Whether the same process will give equally gratifying results when applied to cows has yet to be determined, but the investigators think that there is hope.

The serum used is a preparation made from the pituitary gland of live stock. It has been found that injections have to be made frequently in order to keep up the increased production. It is but a short time after the injection that the increase is noted.

SOUTH NORWALK, Conn., Jan. 15.—That "Jack" Rose's début as an evangelist was attended with threats from the gangmen of New York, and that even the life of the Rev. J. H. Brown, who introduced him when he gave his first lecture in this place last September, was threatened, was brough out last evening when Rose lectured in Christ Church here.

Mr. Brown told how the gangmen had written him letters and had called him up on the telephone, saying that he would not live to introduce Rose, who also received similar threats.

SHIN BONE IN HIS SPINE.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Jan. 15.—John P. Swift of Watertown, Mass., an athlete, who was admitted to the Massachusetts General Hospital helpless and supposedly dying from spinal tuberculosis, has walked forth from that institution with his spinal column straightened and mended by one of the most remarkable feats of bone surgery ever performed in Boston.

A piece of his shin bone was inserted in the spinal column to replace one of the lumbar vertebrae which had been eaten away by the disease. The operation was performed by Dr. Elliott G. Brockett, a member of the hospital staff and Associate Professor of Orthopedic Surgery in Harvard Medical School, and Dr. J. L. Drummey of Watertown, a member of the Newton Hospital staff.

Swift said to-day that his spine seemed as good as ever, except that it was stiff where the new piece had been inserted. He said he felt perfectly strong and normal. He added that the doctors had told him that if he did not bend his back suddenly or attempt to carry heavy weights his spine would be as good as ever.

Gillett Attacks Bryan's Policy—Says He Should Drop Chautauquas and Study History.

Has Caused Our Emissaries to be "Outmanoeuvred and Made Ridiculous," Asserts Congressman.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 15.—The Mexican Government to-day practically suspended payment of postal money orders, the Postmaster General saying that he had no money, and therefore it was impossible for him to pay the orders. Certain hours were fixed for payment—between 8 and 2—within which only a small part of the orders due were paid, amounting to about 20 per cent. in most cases, although the office refuses to cash any large amount at all times. Announcement was made to-day that the Post Office was willing to make full payment in stamps. This offer was accepted by many business houses doing a mail business, although others preferred to take their chances of getting cash later.

The reason given for the inability of the Government to pay the money for which it had acted as carrier was that many military authorities were confiscating the funds of local Post Offices for war purposes, and so the local offices were unable to forward the money to the capital. It is expected that the money order service will be suspended soon.

The Bank of Guanajuato met the last payroll of its employes with bonds of small denominations, which the employes were unable to cash or to circulate.

The general financial situation is still critical, despite the decrees of yesterday. Business is generally disorganized, and the banks continue to pay out funds only in their discretion, expecting that further drafts will be made upon them.

Persistent rumors were current to-day that President Huerta was preparing to issue a decree exacting loans from all merchants and land owners according to the amount of taxes they now pay, and was also contemplating the imposition of a heavy tax on undeveloped lands throughout the republic.

Bankers, while admitting that the suspension of the service of the debt was indirectly aimed at Washington, said it was principally intended to "put the screws on the French bankers." Paris holds the majority of the external bonds, and it is reported that, since these bankers have refused to assist President Huerta to meet the interest, he will refuse to pay it.

The latest decrees have also hit French capitalists hard, since they have large sums invested in mortgages in this country. It is expected that a very strong protest will soon come from Paris, and will probably be taken up in Washnigton.

Many persons are preparing to leave the country by the next boats sailing, having received intimations from the United States that they had better do so, nad in some instances positive instructions from their home offices.

The political situation, despite these changes, continues quiet, without indications of any probable developments in the near future. President Huerta is devoting much time to military operations, which he says are being slowly developed, although no great progress is evident at present.

Our Policy Unchanged by Defaults.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The sensitiveness of Europe over Mexico is illustrated in the inquiries that have come to this Government since the announcement of the default of the Huerta Government in the payment of interest on the national debt.

Statements by the Mexican Government that this default is only temporary has not reassured foreign bondholders, and the representatives of foreign Governments are asking the State Department what is the prospect of ultimate payment and what is the attitude of the United States in view of Mexico's default.

Secretary Bryan said to-day that the answer given to all such inquiries was the only one that could be given, namely, that the failure of Mexico to pay her interest made no change in the policy of this Government, and thta the status quo continued.

GILLETT ATTACKS BRYAN.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Representative Frederick H. Gillett of Massachusetts, a Republican, broke the tacit agreement of silence on the Mexican situation in a speech in the House to-day and declared that the Wilson Administration was "floundering" along in a policy the inevitable result of which was war.

He laid the entire responsibility for present conditions at the door of Secretary Bryan. He charged that neglect on the part of the State Department to do anything until a crisis arose, making action imperative, had brought the nation to a point where its foreign affairs policy was the laughing stock of the world.

The speech of the Massachusetts member had been carefully prepared and was delivered in a serious vein. The Democrats heard it in silence. At one point only did the speaker indulge in anything approaching humor, and that was when he suggested that what Mexico needed most at this juncture was a man of "blood and iron," and recommended that Theodore Roosevelt be "loaned" to the sister Republic long enough to restore peace and calm.

Censures "Lack of Foreign Policy."

In the course of his remarks Mr. Gillett said:

"Great restraint has certainly been exercised in allowing this Administration unhampered scope in its foreign policy. Yet I think the policy or lack of policy of the State Department is one of the most censurable features of the Administration.

"I do not suppose our Secretary of State had any special familiarity with his new duties, although that did not prevent him from discharging many of the trained and skilful force in his office and filling their places with men whose claims were based on political service and obligations. The questions pending there were more important than providing offices for his friends or cultivating his political supporters. His ante-room ought to have been thronged with those ready to throw light on his new problems rather than with office-seekers and politicians. The country needed more that he should read international law than deliver Chautauqua lectures. His much-criticised explanation of his continued absences I hardly thought did him justice. I do not believe that he was following Byron's precept:

So for a good old gentlemanly vice,
I think I must take up with avarice.

"With his salary of $12,500 and the $10,000 income from the large accumulations which he admits, he can live quite hospitably and still save a little—to say nothing of the income from his newspaper, on whose subscription list I am sure no Democrat who wished office or power would dare not to be found—and how few delinquents that would leave!

"I like to think his real motive was a less sordid one. He is the most attractive orator of our generation. On ordinary, undisputed topics he has wonderful power to sway and please audiences. His aims and philosophy are noble and inspiring. His sympathetic, ardent temperament begets popularity. We all like doing what we do well, and the opportunity to display himself to new audiences, to use his office of Premier to attach to him new followers, to at once swell his personal popularity, build up his political machine and fill his purse, may all have been more alluring than to concentrate himself to the unwonted toil of mastering the intricate details of diplomacy and history. He would undoubtedly be prodigiously useful in a place which he fitted and to which he would devote his great abilities; but he has apparently deemed the State Department rather a sinecure and a reservoir of patronage than a field of duty which required earnest and persistent application.

"I do not, of course, forget the notable eulogium pronounced in his presence by the Secretary of the Navy and published by the press, wherein he was described as the greatest Secretary of State since Jefferson; but I think that was rather an index of the discretion of the Secretary of the Navy, who spoke, and the receptivity for adulation of the Secretary of State, who listened, than any impairment of the prestige of Madison, Adams, Webster, and many others.

Cinematographing the Diplomats.

"I think the episode which best exemplifies his Administration is where he arranged that the reluctant representatives of foreign powers should pass by and address him in formal procession while a cinematograph preserved the spectacle for the delectation of American audiences and the glorification of Mr. Bryan. It is not pleasant to feel that the cultivated opinion of the world is laughing at us, that to their eyes these episodes, which now are subjecting our irregular emissaries to constant and unresented affronts from both parties in Mexico, where they have been flouted and outmanoeuvred and made ridiculous at every turn, present a pitiful and humiliating spectacle, and that the dignity and prestige of the nation suffers by it as well as the individuals directly responsible.

"Serious questions of state are not settled by remunerative lectures or by moving pictures. The first important act of this Administration rejected and abandoned a settled policy in China, and if the act was wise I suspect it was by chance rather than as a result of the thorough study the subject demanded. It was a policy of practical idealism that would enhance our national prestige and increase our national commerce. Our long studied programme of participation in the benefits of Chinese trade and influence was suddenly discarded with an avowed philosophical purpose which seemed popular, and America's footing in China was abandoned. While the other nations waited to see if any stable Government would be established there, we rushed in and recognized the Chinese republic, which the people of China were quite unprepared and unqualified to uphold.

"Recent events seem to prove what was charged at the time, that our reversal of policy was not the result of a studious and comprehensive purpose, but was only the impulsive act of an opportunist, and that, perhaps, the significance and importance of the policy overthrown had not been adequately investigated or understood."

Mr. Gillett then cited the text of the Administration's note of rejection of the Chinese loan on the ground that it involved this country in responsibility for the collection of the loan. He then continued:

"But if that had resulted from convictions founded on deep study, we should not have the personal representative of the Administration saying in his note to Mexico:

"'The President of the United States of America authorizes me to say that if the de facto Government of Mexico at once acts favorably upon the foregoing suggestions, then in that event the President will express to American bankers and their associates assurances that the Government of the United States of America will look with favor upon the extension of an immediate loan sufficient in amount to meet the temporary requirements of the de facto Government of Mexico.'

"The two sentiments are quite inconsistent. A politician may change his mind under emergency, but the foreign relations of a great Government should not be erratic; and we should not offer to one nation what we had just declared to another was forbidden by our principles. Such conduct excites disquietude, because it makes us fear that our foreign affairs are being conducted on impulse and not with the serious thoughtfulness and investigation which they deserve.

Disquieted by Mexican Crisis.

"For that reason I am disquieted by the Mexican situation. I fear that, too, was neglected until the crisis came when some action was imperative, and then the action had to be suited to the existing conditions instead of having the conditions influenced and arranged by previous careful preparation. I approve entirely of the avowed purpose to have order and a settled Government re-established in Mexico with our friendly and sympathetic advice, and I indorse the self-restraint which prevents the hotheads from rushing to instant war, but I greatly fear the State Department's long inaction allowed affairs to drift to that condition where ultimate intervention will be the only possible result of our attitude. I think myself that instead of waiting six months before outlining any policy we ought to have followed the advice of our representative on the spot and recognized the Provisional Government of Huerta."

Mr. Gillette then proceeded to give his reasons for believing that, in spite of his bloody record, it would have been higher statesmanship to recognize Huerta than to attempt to dictate the election of the next President of Mexico.

"For," said Mr. Gillette, "if he (President Wilson) can dictate who shall not be President, he has equal right to dictate who shall be President. If he can eliminate one, he can eliminate all but one. Despite the noble words of peace, it seems to me that our policy and conduct from the beginning have drifted steadily toward war. To recognize as ruler a man accused of crimes of treachery and bloodshed is disagreeable—a popularity-hunting leader would shrink from it.

"When the war comes it will be no excuse that the Secretary of State has delivered brilliant addresses in favor of peace. The question will not be, Has he desired war, but, Has he taken such measures as would naturally avert it? An emotional and oratorical glorification of peace is not sufficient atonement for a policy whose legitimate and logical result is war.

"I regret to make these criticisms upon our Administration, toward which in all foreign affairs I feel the most intense loyalty, and wish the very completest success. But I am not willing to wait until the end and then say I thought so all the time. If I am wrong I shall be rejoiced. If the Administration has a wise and fruitful policy, I will join in praising it. But I fear it has carelessly and optimistically floundered on, trusting to happy chance, and that the stern lessons which history gives us of the fate of such a policy will be here repeated."

THINKS HUERTA DESPERATE.

London Times Says Default Marks Success of Wilson's Policy.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Friday, Jan. 16.—The London Times in an editorial says that President Huerta's decision to default on the national debt is the first overt admission of the straits to which he has been reduced by President Wilson's policy of "watchful waiting."

"Even a Spanish-American President," says The Times, "does not repudiate national obligations unless he is in a really tight corner, and President Huerta's action can hardly be regarded as other than a sign that matters with him are growing desperate and the stand taken by the United States is gradually breaking down his defenses."

The Times points out the possibility that Huerta, when he finds that the default brings down upon him no direct punishment, either at the hands of Europe or America, will be tempted to collect further tribute by forced loans, peremptory requisitions, and other methods that are the common property of dictators in need of cash; but it says that these expedients, in the long run, will avail him little, as, for one thing, they will not only estrange opinion abroad, but those interests in Mexico itself which have hitherto been not unfavorable to his cause.

"There appears to be some anxiety in certain American quarters," The Times continues, "lest Huerta's raid on the interests of European bondholders may lead to diplomatic complications. We do not share that anxiety. Certainly, so far as this country is concerned, the bondholder is far from being the powerful and maleficent influence in shaping national policy that he sometimes appears to the imagination of the less responsible sort of American journalists. Indeed, it has been widely, if not universally, recognized on this side of the Atlantic that the pacification of Mexico, whether by persuasion or force, is an American and not a European responsibility, and that the United States can neither delegate nor share it.

"All that Huetra's new tactics can effect in that regard is to increase the expectation that the American Government will be more than ever mindful of its obligations to protect European interests. In shaping his Mexican policy President Wilson has enjoyed, and to all appearances will continue to enjoy, complete freedom from anything that could be called diplomatic pressure from other powers."

MORE LIND-HUERTA PARLEYS?

Dictator Said to Fear American Recognition of Rebels.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 15.—It is rumored that President Huerta plans to send emissaries to confer with John Lind, President Wilson's personal representative, at Vera Cruz. Gen. Huerta is said to be worried over the revival of the report that the United States intends to recognize the Northern rebels.

All efforts will be made to keep both railways open between the capital and Vera Cruz, according to the Government's announcement to-night. Additional troops will be sent from the capital into the States of Puebla and Vera Cruz to guard the Interoceanic and the Mexican lines. Traffic on the Interoceanic was resumed to-day.

DE LA LAMA RESIGNS.

Finance Minister's Protest Against Interest Defaults.

PARIS, Jan. 15.—Adolfo de la Lama, the Mexican Minister of Finance, who recently arrived in Paris on a mission in connection with the finances of his country, to-day cabled his resignation to President Huerta as a protest against the action of the provisional President in repudiating the interest payments on the internal and foreign debts of Mexico. The Finance Minister said he was not informed of the Mexican's Government's decision to default on the payments.

Señor de la Lama left Paris this morning for Switzerland, though his exact destination is being kept a secret. His private secretary as well as the members of the Mexican Legation here declined to discuss the report of the Finance Minister's resignation.

REBEL ARMY AT CHIHUAHUA.

Villa Plans an Early Advance Upon Torreon and the South.

CHIHUAHUA, Jan. 15.—Gen. Francisco Villa returned here to-day with his army. He gave directions for the early departure of his troops southward, with a view of attacking the Federals about Torreon and of carrying the revolution into the Southern cities.

Gen. Villa expects to go to Juarez to confer with some of his chiefs before he joins the rebels in their southward march. He probably will be in Juarez early next week.

Reports from Torreon said that the Federals there were greatly alarmed by the rebel victory at Ojinaga, and that they probably would flee if the Constitutionalists appeared in force.

The rebels already occupy the suburbs of Torreon. The Federals are reported to be camping in the railroad yards, so that they may evacuate the town quickly.

Prospects of peace in the territory held by the rebel Government became such that the Mexican Northwestern Railroad to-day ordered many of its employes to return to their posts. The road is to be operated to the lumber camp at Madera, and extended as rapidly as the bridges can be repaired.

ATLANTIC COAST LINE CONTROL RESTORED

GIVE 2 FOR 1 OF THEIR OWN

Move Interpreted as an Effort to Conform to the Views of the Department of Justice.

The Atlantic Coast Line Company, a Connecticut Corporation holding control of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad, and through it of the Louisville & Nashville and the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis, is to be split in two by a distribution of a large part of the assets. This action was decided upon at a meeting of Coast Line Directors in this city yesterday.

The Connecticut company was formed in 1889 as a convenient device for holding a controlling interest in the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad and securities in other companies. It owns $33,150,000, or more than half of the Coast Line $58,745,000 of stock and other securities, mostly bonds, of a market value of $45,880,000. It has an authorized capitalization of $100,000,000, but only $17,640,000 of this has been issued. This stock has never been widely distributed, and it is understood that practically all of the shares are held by Henry Walters, Chairman of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad.

The stockholders shortly will be called together to approve a proposal that half of the Coast Line Company stock, or $8,820,000, be extinguished by the return to holders of twice that amount of Coast Line Railroad shares, or $17,640,000. This will leave $15,510,000 of the railroad's stock in the Connecticut Company's treasury, thus returning control of the railroad to its own shareholders.

The Connecticut Company has been a big dividend payer, and its shares have been quoted on the Baltimore Exchange at 233 bid, with no stock offered. It has been paying an annual dividend of 12 per cent., besides which a stock payment of 100 per cent. was made in 1896, and another 100 per cent. payment in certificates of indebtedness in 1900.

In financial circles it was assumed that the holding company was depriving itself of control of railroads with a total mileage of 13,000 to forestall possible objections from the Department of Justice. As Mr. Walters will get back the stock he put into the holding company's treasury he will have the same voice in the management of the three roads as before. The Coast Line owns more than half of the stock of the Louisville & Nashville, which in turn owns the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis. All three roads pay dividends of 7 per cent. per annum.

Henry Walters personally owns enough stock in the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad, it is believed, to control the entire system. He would not make any comment yesterday or the breaking up of the Connecticut Company, beyond saying that no further distribution of its assets was contemplated at this time.

The Coast Line stock, which will be released as a result of yesterday's action has a market value of nearly $22,000,000.

ENGLAND IS PROSPEROUS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Friday, Jan. 16.—The London Times, in its annual financial review published this morning, gives a comprehensive survey of the world's trade and finance, showing that, despite strikes, wars, and rumors of war, the past year was marked by an increase of prosperity in all the great departments of the world's business, with the exception of the Stock Exchange, which experienced a period of gloom and anxiety.

With hardly any variation, the articles on various subjects all tell the same tale. In banking there was an increased volume of trade. British foreign trade shows the largest totals on record, an advance of $302,500,000 over 1912. This was also true of the United States. In both England and America the gross earnings of railways were higher than ever before.

The coal trade enjoyed a year of phenomenal prosperity. The iron and steel industries also flourished, and in shipbuilding reat Britain maintained her supremacy. Textile industries also did well as a whole, though 1913 was unfavorable for the wool trade, except for the growers, and the cotton manufacturers were, to a certain extent, handicapped by occurrences in India, China, and Eastern Europe, the three parts of the world which are the largest consumers of Lancashire's cotton goods.

"Considered as a combined whole," says The Times, "the articles we publish to-day make it clear that not only in the several trades of this country and the empire, but throughout the whole world we may look back on the past year's financial and industrial record with a feeling of satisfaction and thankfulness.

"The increase in general prosperity is all the more remarkable in view of such disturbing elements as the Balkan crisis, the difficult relations between the great powers, the troubles in Mexico, the enormous increase in the military, naval, and social expenditure of the great European states, and the trade-paralyzing conflicts between labor and its employers, that has been one of the pronounced features of the past twelve months.

"During 1913 more than ever than has been the case since the beginning of the world, the history of commerce has become the history of the human race."

May Build Opera on Belasco Play.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—The composer Puccini will attend Beerbohm Tree's revival of David Belasco's "The Darling of the Gods," on Saturday. It is understood that he is considering the motif of the play as the subject for an opera.

TELLS OF TRUNK MURDER.

Girl's Story Expected to Clinch Case Against Four Men.

Stella Kwialtowska, the 18-year-old Slav, who was arrested early on Wednesday, charged with complicity in the murder of Ivan Martysewicz, whose body was found on the crowded sidewalk before 47 Pitt Street, at noon, on Dec. 29, bundled in a trunk, made a detailed statement to Inspector Faurot and Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty yesterday. Her statement is expected to clinch the police case against Karal Draniewicz, who ran the flat where Martysewicz died, Victor Muravlof, a Russian chemist, employed in the Bliss projectile works at Brooklyn, John Rabinoff, another inmate of the flat, and a fourth man for whom detectives still are searching.

Miss Kwialtowska said that she and two other women, Mary Bodner, now held in the Tombs on the charge of robbing another man by use of knockout drops, and Carrie Magjenheimer of 33 Avenue A, were employed by the four men to lure Slavic laborers returning with their savings from up-State contract camps to the flat for purposes of robbery. Here is the story she told concerning Martysewicz:

On the afternoon of Dec. 27, she and Miss Magjenheimer went to the flat and there found Miss Bodner, Draniewicz, Muravlof, also known as Taxt, Rabinoff, also known as Lenka, and the fourth man, whose name the police would not divulge. All were laughing and joking about the coming that evening of a new visitor, who had, they said, a large bankroll.

That evening Martysewicz appeared, and Muravlof promised him a job as a stableman at $25 a month. Draniewicz then suggested that this offer was an occasion for rejoicing, and urged that it be celebrated with a bottle of wine. He brought the wine in, referring to it as Italian No. 8, which gave the other members of the party warning that it had been drugged. Martysewicz drank it.

Martysewicz, whose wonderful physical development excited comment when his body was found, resisted the drug and disappointed the men by failing to topple over as had most of the men brought to the flat, on a single glass of the drugged wine. Draniewicz urged him to have some more, but he refused. Then the men persuaded him to drink beer. This was drugged with a white powder. The beer made Martysewicz collapse and the men carried him into an adjoining room and placed him on a couch. Draniewicz went through his clothes and found only a watch and between $1 and $2 in silver. The discovery made him angry.

The others then went out to a nearby saloon. When they returned they noticed that Martysewicz was not breathing. Muravlof pulled a mirror from the wall and held it before the man's mouth. No moisture collected. Then she and Miss Magjenheimer fled.

OLYMPIC FUND FAILURE.

The British Committee Announces Its Intention of Retiring.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—In consequence of the failure of the Olympic Games fund the special committee appointed in connection with the Berlin games in 1916 announces its intention to retire.

The failure of public support of the appeal for funds is shown by the fact that, of the $500,000 asked for the total amount subscribed has fallen short of $55,000. Moreover, of this sum a large part was promised on condition that the full amount was subscribed. The actual sum in the committee's possession after certain grants have been made is $29,965.

The appeal for funds was made last August over the signature of Lord Grey, Lord Harris, Lord Roberts, Lord Rothschild, Lord Strathcona, and the Duke of Westminster, and they were supported by a large section of the press.

FIND RAMPOLLA VALUABLES.

Searchers Discover Hidden Treasures, but Not the Missing Will.

ROME, Jan. 15.—Those who have undertaken the task of searching the apartment of the late Cardinal Rampolla for a last testament bearing a later date than that of 1889, fear that it will not be found. It is reported that the authorities are about to take more energetic measures, which will include the arrest of one of the men employed in the Cardinal's household.

The examination of the apartment continued to-day, particular attention being given to the furniture of the bedroom, most of which was taken apart. The writing desk was found to contain secret drawers, in which were many valuables. In a safe was found an envelope containing $700, which had been handed to the Cardinal by a foreign visitor to be distributed to the poor.

A complete inventory will be made. In the meantime the investigating Magistrate continues his interrogatories with the object of establishing, if possible, who is responsible for the disappearance of the missing testament.

TURKS HELD IN PARIS PLOT.

PARIS, Jan. 15.—The police have arrested two persons charged with complicity in the attempt yesterday to assassinate Gen. Mehmed Cherif Pasha, one of the chiefs of the Radical Turkish Party. They are Sheikowsky Iskander Bey and Burhann Eddine Bey, brother of the Turkish Minister at Brussels.

Iskander Bey, interrogated by Examining Magistrate Drioux, admitted that he knew both Cherif Pasha and his secretary, Pertev Bey. He was commissioned by the Turkish Government to watch them closely, and report all their doings, but he denied any knowledge of the intended assassination.

The police declare that Iskander Bey was in frequent conference with Azim Bey, the ex-Chief of Police of Constantinople, who is accused by Cherif Pasha of heading a band of secret agents with orders to suppress him. Iskander, also according to the police, consorted with a number of Turks known as "Fedais," or members of the Committee of Union and Progress, who were sworn to carry out any order of the committee, no matter how desperate the nature. Important documents have been seized at his apartment.

Burhann Eddine Bey is an actor and has been a frequent visitor at Cherif Pasha's house. The police charge that he aided the assassin by giving him details of the situation of the rooms and the habits of Cherif Pasha.

TO FIGHT NICARAGUA TREATY

Central American League Makes Bonilla Its Representative Here.

Gen. Policarpo Bonilla, ex-President of Honduras, who is in this country to oppose the proposed Bryan treaty with Nicaragua taking over the management of its finance on the ground that its tendency would be to separate Nicaragua from the other Central American countries and defeat plans for a union of Central American republics, received this cable message yesterday from the President of San Salvador:

Policarpo Bonilla, Hotel Pierrpont, New York:

The Patriotic League of Central America has named you its representative in the United States to defend the interests of Central America. You will receive your powers by first mail.

DARDANO, President.

Dispatches from San Salvador on Wednesday said that the Government of that republic had decided to join in the protest against the proposed Nicaraguan treaty.

Nicaragua Approves Canal Treaty.

MANAGUA, Jan. 15.—The houses of the Nicaraguan Congress in joint session to-day passed, virtually unanimously, a vote of confidence in the foreign policy of the Government, especially in relation to the United States. The vote was the outcome of a discussion of the proposed treaty with the United States in reference to a [illegible] Isthmian Canal.

BIG RADIUM OWNER THREATENS A STRIKE

O. B. Willmarth Indignant at Secretary Lane's Announced Policy.

MAY SHUT DOWN MINES

All His Colorado Product Goes Abroad and He Will Sail to See Mme. Curie.

A suggestion was made yesterday by O. Barlow Willmarth, President of the Colorado Carnotite Company, which controls ore deposits from which nearly a half of the world's available supply of radium has been extracted, that American radium producers might soon shut down their works as a protest against the threatened governmental policy of withdrawing all radium producing lands from entry.

Mr. Willmarth came here from Montrose, Col., on Wednesday. He will sail for Europe to hold conferences with Mme. Curie and others interested in the production of radium on the Mauretania Jan. 28. When he read in THE TIMES yesterday morning that Secretary Lane had announced that the withdrawal of radium lands would be made a governmental policy he sent for the reporters and wrote out a long telegram to Congressman Edward T. Taylor of Colorado, and another telegram to Gov. Ammons of Colorado. Then he wrote a three-page letter to Congressman Taylor. He showed copies of this letter to reporters when they arrived at his rooms in the Hotel Latham in East Twenty-eighth Street.

Mr. Willmarth said that every pound of ore his company has mined in Colorado in the past three years has been shipped to Paris, Berlin, and London, and that all American offers to buy the ore have been rejected. He also admitted that since Mme. Curie obtains all of her radium-producing ore from his company, those American surgeons who have bought radium abroad have probably bought radium that came from crude ore produced in America and shipped abroad to be refined.

"But I absolutely justify this policy," said Mr. Willmarth, "on the ground that we are entirely right in getting the best price the world's market will pay us for our ore. Every other commodity is sold where the best market prevails. More than that, no American offer has been made to us that would pay us to mine the ore.

"The process of extracting radium is kept a secret in Europe, and those familiar with the secret are not anxious to have control of it pass out from their own personal supervision. It is for that reason that they would rather pay us for our crude ore and refine it in their own laboratories than build laboratories out in Colorado where the mineral is produced.

"If they want to carry our ores 6,000 miles to their market that is their affair. If the United States Government wants to go into the radium business, let it go in right. Let it not go in by a method that will mean stangation all around. The mining of rare metals is the most precarious business in the world.

"If I just had that Congressional committee through which Secretary Lane expects to operate in front of me for ten minutes I'd tell them some concentrated truth about radium that would make them listen. In the first place, prospectors are out all over the Rocky Mountains now hunting for uranium ores. And this is only a few years after old miners who are still alive were shoveling it by the shovelful—every shovelful worth over $25—down to the dump as waste matter. Shall the Government have all these prospectors dismayed and destroyed, and then merely lock the lands up, unprospected, to be held forever and forever in limbo?

"Now we send out prospectors and we buy prospects whenever they are reported to us. Why not let the government do the same? Why not leave the prospector on the job of finding the uranium ore and then let the government bid for his prospect in competition with us? We will take a chance on that kind of business. Or let the government build a radium plant to which we can sell our ores, at the world's market rate. That is the only fair way—a way that will get results in radium.

"Only a short time ago we struck a pocket containing at least six tons—we do not know how much more—of ore that ran 50 per cent. uranium. That was something new, and I am going to Europe personally to see the first shipment of this newly found high-grade ore worked for radium. Our sales of the 10 and 12 per cent. ores made us profits enough to make up for our losses through the shutting down of the mines as vanadium mines. Now it is a humor of the situation to see them throwing the brown vanadium away in Europe as we formerly threw the yellow uranium away.

"I positively know that no European radium manufacturers own carnotite lands in America. All of us carnotite miners are at the mercy of the few radium factories in the world, and we depend upon the competition among them to get the value of our product. We work now under sufficient difficulty without being restricted to an insignificant American market.

"One thing we can do, and that is to shut down tight and wait till the Government creates a monopoly by withdrawing all carnotite ore bearing lands. Then we can mine our whole available supply in a single season and hold it for sky-high prices, which we will be in a position to force out of those who wish radium cures."

In his letter to Congressman Taylor Mr. Willmarth attacked Dr. Howard Kelly of Baltimore on the ground that he was "anxious to promote his ideas at the expense of the carnotite ore mining industry," and Secretary Lane on the grounds that his views "exhibited misinformation and mistaken opinions." He said he hoped Congress would give him a hearing before he sails for Europe if the idea of conserving radium lands is really gaining headway.

DEFENDS RADIUM PLAN.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Representative Martin D. Foster of Illinois, Chairman of the House Committee on Mines, in charge of the Administration bill for the reservation of radium-bearing lands upon the public domain, issued a statement to-night dealing with the reported opposition of the people of Colorado and Utah to the proposal.

Mr. Foster says the Government aims to have the carnotite ores in these lands mined "and the radium extracted for the treatment of cancer and other malignant diseases in the hospitals of the country." He expresses the fear that if this step is not taken these deposits "will become the basis of private speculation and that the radium, when obtained, will be sold at almost prohibitive prices."

"This, it is claimed," he asserts, "has been the manner of exploitation so far, and the result is that the United States, although having almost a world monopoly of the radium-bearing ores, has less radium for the treatment of her hundreds of thousands of sufferers from cancer than any prominent country of Europe. In view of the tremendous human problem involved, I cannot believe the people of Colorado will oppose a step to terminate a disease that levies a toll of 75,000 human beings annually in the United States.

"Less than a year ago the Bureau of Mines made the discovery that tons and tons of this precious ore had been shipped from Colorado to Europe and that no radium has been made in the United States. In 1912 enough of this carnotite ore to make nine grams of radium, the cream of the deposits, was shipped to Europe, while the total radium in this country at the present time is less than two grams.

"We shipped this wonderful carnotite at iron ore prices. Then our surgeons brought back the radium at diamond prices. We are now making radium in the United States. I understand most of this, too, is going to Europe. I have just heard of a contract with an American firm for six grams of radium for Europe to be delivered a gram a month.

GOOD ODDS FOR SHACKLETON

Insurance at Lloyd's to Cover Risk of Failure a Only 10 Per Cent.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Friday, Jan. 16.—The chances of Sir Ernest Shackleton's success have been the subject of an insurance transaction at Lloyd's. The rate quoted to cover the risk of failure to cross the antarctic continent was 10 per cent. The Times says:

"The optimistic view of the perils of the expedition which this quotation seems to imply suggests the possibility of it being rather a sporting operation than a serious business transaction.

"Even though the expedition has the official countenance of the Royal Geographical Society, there are probably few, if any, competent authorities on polar exploration who would venture to rate the difficulties and dangers of the undertaking so lightly. Much of the criticism is based on the assumption that the antarctic plateau which Scott and Shackleton traversed from the Beardmore Glacier to the south pole is continued onward from that point toward the Weddell Sea. A great deal of this plateau is 10,000 feet above sea level, and traveling on it is far more dangerous than on the fringe of the antarctic."

While Shackleton is in the antarctic an Austrian expedition under Dr. Felix König will be engaged in somewhat similar exploration work. The plans so far as announced are to carry out oceanographical work from South Georgia as a base and then push into the Weddell Sea, establish Winter quarters, and prepare the way for an eventual advance toward the pole by laying depots. Three sledge expeditions are planned for the following Spring for the investigation of the region around the Weddell Sea.

A start will be made in May, some five months before the British expedition sails from Buenos Aires, but Sir Ernest Shackleton pointed out yesterday that, as the South Georgia ice is bound to end in September, Dr. König's party is not likely to reach its Weddell Sea base much, if any, earlier than himself. In any case, he has no ground to complain of rivalry, inasmuch as the Austrian expedition was projected before his own.

The Austrian plans so far as announced do not contemplate anything in the nature of a transcontinental journey such as Sir Ernest Shackleton's.

DYING, WOULD SAVE MOTHER

Boy, Hurt, Asks Policeman Not to Take Him Home.

Peter Carroll went out last evening to get coal for the third floor rear of the tenement at 2,518 Park Avenue. With his father and mother ill the rooms had to be kept warm somehow, and the other five Carroll children had all they could do to and a little more to see that there was something to eat each night. Anna, 19, the eldest, a servant in some household; Margaret, employed in a factory, and Philip, apprentice to a blacksmith, were the bread winners for the family of seven, so the matter of fuel fell to Peter and Patrick. This is not easy when you are only 13 years old.

Still, around coal holes, in gutters, and on the streets where coal trucks have just lumbered by, pieces of coal are sometimes to be found, and this small gleaner was at work with his bag as late as 6:45 o'clock last evening, when, at the curb in Canal Place, just south of 138th Street, he came upon an empty truck halted there—empty from the point of view of the ordinary householder, and even of the coal company, but still with possibilities for as thrifty a person as Peter. He knew that near the hole in the wagon where the chute is inserted stray coals are left often, and to look for these he tried to lift the lever to open the gate. Just then the driver started the truck toward the sheds near by, and down the boy went under the wheels. The truck went on its way, leaving him lying there in the gutter with his left leg almost crushed from his body.

It was not long before his brother found him, and the brother told Patrolman Manney of the Alexander Avenue Station who he was and where he lived. Manney picked Peter up in his arms and started over the plank subway bridge to the rear entrance of the Park Avenue tenement. It was as he was carrying him up the first flight of stairs that Peter gathered his wits together.

"Not upstairs," he whispered. "Mother's sick up there, and she'd better not see this."

Then his face became twisted with pain, and the policeman slipped out of his coat, spread it on the floor of the tenement hallway, borrowed a sheet from an Irish woman on the second floor who stood there crying into her apron, and with this and his nightstick he managed a rude tourniquet and splint to hold until the ambulance came from Lincoln Hospital.

Meanwhile a little boy who had seen the policeman and his burden going through the rear yard knew there was something for him to do. Policemen were all right, but there ought to be a priest, he said. Mrs. Carroll would want a priest. So he ran the six blocks to St. Jerome's Catholic Church, and Father Bassard ran all the way back with him. He ran so fast that he was in time to climb into the ambulance, and it was on the ride to the hospital that the last rites were administered to Peter.

Last night the doctors said the leg would have to go, and that there was only the faintest chance that the boy would live. But somehow the whole story had reached the hospital along with the ambulance, and those who made inquiries there last night gathered from the faces of the attendants that Peter would come out some day if medical and surgical skill could save him.

The news reached the sick mother finally. They said it was better to tell her than to leave her worried when Peter did not come home. She said she would have to get up. Sick with heart trouble, the doctor had ordered her to bed, but she got up last night. The father, formerly a worker in the roundhouse of a big railroad, used to see to it that the children needed nothing, but he has been an invalid, and in the last year there have been three operations. He got out of bed only last Saturday, and he is too weak now to do even the lightest work. You could see by a look in the rooms that the home had been hard to keep together, but the place was neat last night, and there was something for dinner.

"How does she manage?" the policeman asked in regard to Mrs. Carroll of a neighbor on the second floor.

"Why, she's an Irishwoman," was the explanation given proudly in a broad brogue. "She doesn't know when she's beaten."

DAUGHTER FIGHTS JARDINE'S WILL

Mrs. McCarthy, Who Knew Her Father as "Smith," Supposed Miser Was Without Means.

HIS ESTATE WORTH $203,963

Bowery Recluse Served in the Civil War and Reared a Family Under an Assumed Name.

In an action now pending to set aside the probate of the will of Dudley Jardine, the recluse who died on Feb. 9 as a charity patient in Gouverneur Hospital, the story of the dead man's strange career has been brought to light. Jardine had been known for many years as William C. Smith, and had lived since 1890 in the lodging houses of the Bowery. For the last ten years he had been an inmate of the Germania Hotel at 81 Bowery.

It was in this place that he was taken ill, and from which he was sent to Gouverneur Hospital, where he died. When no one appeared to care for his body it was sent to the Morgue. One rainy night a week later Peter Chouinard visited the undertaking establishment of James F. Fallon at 368 West Fiftieth Street and begged him to save Smith from a pauper's grave. Chouinard explained that he was the custodian of the Squirrel Inn Library in the Bowery and lived at 455 Pearl Street. He told Fallon that he was the only friend Smith had, and that he believed that the old recluse came of good family. Smith, he said, was an omniverous reader, with a discriminating taste in literature, and was an accomplished musician.

Fallon called for the body at the Morgue and instituted an investigation which led to the discovery that "Smith" was in reality Dudley Jardine, a son of George Jardine, who at one time had a large organ factory in East Thirty-ninth Street, between First and Second Avenues. Later Fallon learned that a nephew of the dead man, Frederick L. Jardine, was living at 202 Lorraine Street, Montclair, N. J., and that another relative, Mrs. Charles Jardine, was living at 18 Stratford Court, Flatbush. Mrs. Margaret Jardine of 461 Tompkins Avenue, Brooklyn, a widow of the dead man's elder brother, Edward G. Jardine, came forward at the same time to make positive the identification.

On last Monday when John M. Shedd, the attorney for the executor, filed the appraisal of Jardine's estate in the Surrogate's Court it was disclosed that in the many years that Jardine had been sleeping in lodging houses and living on a pittance of $1.25 a week, he had $2,515 in cash deposited with the United States Mortgage and Trust Company and owned gilt-edged securities worth $201,411, making the gross valuation of the estate $203,963. Some of the securities which he owned are held by the Stock Exchange firm of Thomas Denny & Co. of 30 Pine Street for an indebtedness of $79,522.

The residuary estate, under the will, is to be divided into equal parts, amounting to $11,276 each, and these are to be distributed among charities.

Yesterday Joseph V. Gallagher of the firm of Daly, Hoyt & Mason, 15 William Street, began an action to set aside the probate of the will in behalf of Mrs. Anita McCarthy, whose husband, John McCarthy, is the janitor of the New York Society Library at 109 University Place. The McCarthys live with their six children in apartments in the basement of the library building.

Mrs. McCarthy, who is about [illegible] years old, said yesterday that she was the sole surviving child of Jardine, whom she always knew as William C. Smith. Under the name of Smith, she says, Jardine married her mother, Anita Blackwell. Her father, she said, had served in the civil war under the name of Smith, and her attorneys have verified this story from the records of the J. L. Riker Post, G. A. R., of which the dead man was a member. These records show that William Smith enlisted on Aug. 13, 1864, and was discharged from his company—M, 2nd N. Y.—in 1865, "on account of the close of the rebellion." Mrs. McCarthy said she had supported her mother since her father deserted his family when she was sixteen years old.

"There were three of us children," she said, "but my sister died in 1880 when only a child and my brother was killed in a railroad accident in 1902. My mother died three years ago.

"I remember my father very well, and we have some excellent pictures of him. We lived in a poor tenement on the lower east side until my father left us and took up his abode in a Bowery lodging house. We never saw much of him afterward. I remember that my mother saw him marching in a Memorial Day parade one year and called to him. He came oevr to where we were standing and said that he was living in a lodging house at 81 Bowery, and that he had no money to give to mother."

Mr. Gallagher has in his possession a birth certificate issued to Mrs. McCarthy by the Rev. Madison C. Peters after a thorough search of the church records, which shows that she was baptized as the daughter of "William C. Smith." The McCarthys have turned over to Mr. Gallagher a copy of Stanley's "Darkest Africa," on the fly-leaf of which is an inscription in the handwriting similar to that in which the will of Jardine is drawn. The inscription reads: "To Anita F. A. Smith. On your fifteenth birthday, May 18, 1891. From Papa."

On the fly-leaf of the little family Bible in the same handwriting is a record of the births of Mrs. McCarthy and her sister and brother. The record reads:

Addie Anita Faithful Smith, (Tuesday,) born May 18, 1876, 7:20 o'clock A. M., at 20 Essex Street.

Carolina Aida Leonora Smith, (Tuesday,) born Jan. 8, 1878. Died Oct. 29, 1880; 327 Delancey Street.

Willis C. Smith, (Wednesday,) born Jan. 14, 1880, 5:40 A. M., at 327 Delancey Street.

Mrs. McCarthy said last night that she had never suspected that her father had any other name than that of Smith until last April, when his will was filed for probate. At that time one of the Sunday newspapers published an article about the eccentric old recluse, with a photograph of him taken years before. Mrs. McCarthy had a duplicate of the picture in her possession, and learned for the first time that her father had been in reality a wealthy man.

FIND WAIF IN SUITCASE.

Six-Weeks-Old Boy Abandoned on a Ferryboat.

If the baby who is being cared for at Police Headquarters, Hoboken, had not used his lungs to register a protest, he might have been left to perish on one of the shelves in the lost parcel room at the Lackawanna Railroad Station yesterday. Wrapped in warm blankets and resting his tiny head on an elderdown pillow, the baby had been placed in a suit case and left on the upper deck of the Lackawanna ferryboat Netherlands. He is six weeks old.

After the passengers had left the boat on its arrival at Hoboken from Barclay Street, Giuseppe Accetto, a bootblack, found the suit case, and it was while he was talking to the clerk in the lost parcel room that the baby gave vent to the plaintive wail that revealed his presence. The child bore evidence of having been well nourished, and was prettily dressed. There were no marks on the clothing which could be used by the police as a clue to the identity of the parents.

Matron Forsdick, in whose care the baby was placed at Hoboken Police Headquarters, had an anxious time all day with the child, which suffered from croup, and City Physician Willis J. Arlitz was constant in his attention.

In the course of the afternoon a number of women called on Chief of Police Hayes, offering to adopt the waif. All were disappointed, however, for the baby will be sent to the County Almhouse at Snakehill to-day, while the requests for adoption will be handled by Miss Frances Day, Superintendent of the State Board of Children Guardians.

SHAW INVOKES MANN ACT.

Seeks to Prosecute Darling on White Slavery Charge.

Joseph A. Shay, counsel for Robert Marsden Shaw, the broker, who is suing Richard Darling, President of the Acme Sanitary Safe Company for $50,000 for the alienation of the affections of his young wife, sent a representative to the Federal Courts yesterday to inquire whether the case could be brought under the Mann White Slave amendment to the Inter-State Commerce act. No facts were given to Assistant District Attorney Harold A. Content, but hypothetical incidents were related to him.

He asked if there was any monetary feature in the case, and was informed that there was none. He said that until the Supreme Court had passed, as it is expected to do in the next few weeks, on the Jack Johnson and the Caminetti cases, the District Attorney's Office was not following the precedent set in those cases.

It is alleged that Darling met in the last week of December at a tea dance, the 18-year-old wife of Mr. Shaw, and that a week later the girl left her home at Morristown, N. J., and registered at the Hotel Ansonia, near which Darling has his apartments.

Darling denied the accusations made against him yesterday and said that, having learned that Mr. and Mrs. Shaw did not get on well together, he had met the girl and her mother at the Ritz-Carlton and tried to straighten the matter out. He had nothing whatever to do with her leaving her husband, he said.

ADOPT UNTERMYER CURBS.

Administration's Anti-Trust Legislation Resembles Lawyer's.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—A feature of the tentative plans of the Administration for anti-trust legislation this session is their resemblance to those suggested by Samuel Untermyer. Of the six proposals as published in THE NEW YORK TIMES this morning, five were embraced in the programme recommended by Mr. Untermyer. The sixth is for an extension of the statute of limitations, fixed by the Sherman law at three years, to five years.

The resemblance of the Administration anti-trust programme, including the formation of an interstate trade commission, to that of Mr. Untermyer attracted some attention at the Capitol today when the full text of a speech delivered by Mr. Untermyer before the Illinois Manufacturers' Association on Jan. 5 at Chicago was received by several members of the House from him.

Mr. Untermyer's suggestions also include "remedies" for strengthening the "administration" of the Sherman law. These are:

First—A combination among the owners of competing patents should render the patents void.

Second—Give the Interstate Commerce Commission exclusive control over the stock and bond issues of inter-

Third—Some limitation against allowing industrial companies to sell below cost without requiring them to sell their goods at a uniform price.

Fourth—A prohibition against industrial companies selling abroad more cheaply than at home when the article is protected by the tariff.

Fifth—A prohibition against manufactures of an article not protected by patent fixing the price at which it shall be sold.

Sixth—Make it unlawful and as conclusive evidence of illegality for any corporation to do business under a name other than its own or hold out to the public any business controlled by it as

DOOR ON COBEQUID SAVED MANY LIVES

If That Had Given Way Under Seas, Says Capt. Howson, All Would Have Perished.

READY TO TAKE ANY BLAME

Special to The New York Times.

ST. JOHN, N. B., Jan. 15.—Capt. J. Howson and the thirteen members of his crew who remained overnight on the wreck of the Royal Mail Steamer Cobequid, stranded on Trinity Ledge in the Bay of Fundy, were taken off to-day and were landed here to-night by the government steamer Lansdowne. It is expected that the Cobequid will be a total loss.

Capt. Howson declined to assign the cause of the disaster, saying that was a matter for the marine inquiry to determine.

"I was on the bridge myself at the time the steamer struck, and if anyone is to blame I am the man," he said, and added:

"The weather was extremely thick, the heavy snowfall making it impossible to see much further than the steamer's bows. This condition arose after we had passed Seal Island, and when it was too late to turn back and head for the open sea. We were taking soundings every half hour, but the approach to the ledges is in deep water, and, while one sounding showed plenty of depth, the next was being made just as the steamer struck.

"The shock when the vessel went on the ledges was not great, but it was sufficient to hold her hard and fast and to pierce the bottom. It was then almost low tide. As the water rose the holds were flooded, and it was necessary to draw the fires under the boilers to prevent an explosion. This cut off the power of the dynamo which operates the wireless apparatus, but in the meantime the S O S signal had been sent out with information regarding our location, which we then believed to be on Briar Island. It was twenty-five minutes before we received any answer to our calls from the Sable Island wireless station, a fact for which it is hard to find a reason.

Death Balked by a Door.

"As the water crept up in the steamer it became necessary to vacate the lower decks, and finally the only part of the steamer which was habitable was my own cabin and the ladies' boudoir, which adjoined it. Even then we were in fear of sudden death. The danger point was the wooden door. The deck in front of it had been forced up by the heavy seas, but there was danger that the door would be battered down at any minute. If this occurred, the whole deckhouse inevitably would be washed overboard. By almost a miracle of good fortune the remains of the emergency boat, which had been broken in two, were washed upon the deck and were frozen solidly in such a position that they acted as a breakwater and saved the door from destruction.

"All that day—Tuesday—we waited for possible salvation, but another night closed in without any material singn from the outside world. In the meantime the only provisions we had consisted of the dry biscuit and the beakers of water taken from the lifeboats. The water was frozen and had to be melted before we could use it. Of course, all heat was cut off when the furnaces were drawn, and the only fire we had was in an iron bucket, in the bottom of which holes had been punched to create a draught.

"The fuel consisted of oak paneling from the smoking room, and even some of the furniture, which it was necessary to break up for firewood. With the biscuits, melted water, and neat spirits and some bottled water for the ladies we managed to make out.

"The shock of the wreck and the heavy seas breaking over the steamer had dislodged one of the wireless aerials, and it was only after heart-breaking work with the ice-coated wires and apparatus that it was possible to use the wireless again, and then only at low tide, when the sending key was above water.

Chef's Meat Stew Abandoned.

"After the second low water we managed to get into the stores and get some more food, including some coffee beans, which we pounded up and used for making coffee—of a kind. The chef finally secured some meat, and became possessed of an ambition to make some hot stew for the ship's company, but he realized his ambition only as the rescue vessels approached, and in the excitement following the stew was overlooked and was allowed to grow cold without any one enjoying it.

"When we first struck, all the boats on the weather side were smashed, but we got the boats on the lee side clear and swung them out on the davits ready for use. It was well that we did, for if we had postponed this work until later the boats would have been frozen fast in the mass of solid ice and we should not have been able to get them clear. As it was, it took two or three hours of hard work to clear the falls and tackle before we were able to get the boats ready for use when they were needed.

"It was a welcome sight when the steamers Westport III. and John L. Cann hove in sight, but I might say that it would have been useless for them to arrive any earlier, as the seas were too heavy until that time to allow the safe transfer of the passengers and crew in the ship's boats. When the Westport was sighted we cleared the boats and filled the first with the women passengers and some of the crew and sent them off. The other three boats followed rapidly. There might have been room for all on board in the four boats, but the seas were still running quite heavy, and I did not think it was advisable to load them too full. The other officers and the remainder of the crew had the opportunity to go if they wished, and those who remained did so of their own free will and only because they volunteered, and, in some cases, insisted upon staying.

"The first boat got away about 4 o'clock, and it was so dark when the last one left that we could not see the steamer for which it was bound. After the boats got away one of the members of the crew, who had secured some pork from the store room, wading to the armpits in water to get it, sliced it up and fried some pork chops, which were eaten with great gusto, as this was the first hot food we had enjoyed since the wreck occurred."

Trinity Buoy Not Alight.

In addition to the difficulty of navigation caused by the heavy seas and the blinding snowstorm, Capt. Howson referred to the fact that the Trinity Ledge buoy was not alight, and, as he had learned, was a mile from its proper position.

"This was one mark we were depending upon," he said, "and we did not see it at all."

Speaking of the conduct of the passengers and crew the Captain said:

"Everyone acted splendidly. The passengers, after they had been reassured, were calm and gave no trouble, and the officers and the white members of the crew did more than could be expected of them. I must speak particularly of the conduct of Dr. Lister, who helped greatly with the passengers, and of the stewardess, Mrs. Jones, who behaved like a brick. She was constantly on the alert to help everyone, and she saved my fingers from being frozen more than once by rubbing them when they had become numb.

"For a day and half more than one hundred people were cooped up in the crowded quarters of the cabins, with no heat, except from the rude brazier, and no lights, except from a few candles, which we had to husband carefully to make them last us. Under the circumstances, I cannot speak too highly of the way in which everybody acted. The colored members of the crew, numbed by the cold to which they were not accustomed and frightened by the disaster, were rendered almost helpless, but they remained passive and gave no trouble.

"Behaved Like Bricks."

"The first night was terrible, the next night was not so bad, and the third night, with only a handful of us left, was quite all right. The Government steamer Lansdowne, which had arrived on Wednesday afternoon as the smaller steamers were taking off the four boatloads, stood by us all night and in the morning sent a boat for the rest of us. After we got on board they did everything they could to make us comfortable.

"I cannot say to much of the gallant conduct of the Captains of the Westport and the John L. Cann and Capt. Burns of the Lansdowne. They behaved like bricks all the way through. And of the men who remained with me on the steamer during the last night, I can only say that finer men were never made. Vacey, the head waiter, had both feet frozen and had to go to the hospital on our arrival here.

"Even in such a serious situation there were ludicrous incidents, and we could not help smile at the appearance of some of the boys who, when given permission to take what dry clothes of mine they could find, decked themselves out in my uniform frock coats and caps. The last to leave showed great consideration in saving what they could of my effects and even brought off my golf clubs and naval sword."

Capt. Howson said that he with the others brought to St. John expected to leave to-morrow for Halifax, where he would finish up the ship's business and where a marine inquiry might be held, after which he hoped to get away to his home in England.

Capt. Howson's statement that the light on the buoy that marked Trinity Rock was out was substantiated by the Canadian Marine Department officers here. G. H. Flood, agent of the department, says that he received word late on Jan. 7 that the light was out. An announcement was made in the newspapers and the Shipping Federation at Montreal notified.

A new buoy was placed on the steamer Lansdowne last Saturday to be taken to the ledge, but owing to the sickness of one of the crew and changes among the officers she was without her proper complement and unable to proceed to sea. She was ready to sail on Tuesday, the day the Cobequid struck.

Nobody to Blame, Says Director.

Special to The New York Times.

YARMOUTH, N. S., Jan. 15.—The ninety-six persons—twenty-four passengers and seventy-two ship's officers and seamen—rescued from the wreck of the Cobequid and brought here last night by the coastal steamers Westport III. and John L. Cann, and comfortably housed, were all reported to-night to be making a satisfactory recovery from the shock of their harrowing experience, and from the exposure to the biting cold which they were forced to endure for something like thirty-six hours on the wreck.

William C. Kenny of Southampton, England, a Director of the company owning the Cobequid, who was on board at the time of the wreck, said to-day that no one was to blame for the loss of the ship, the weather conditions being responsible.

J. W. Hitchner of Manchlane, Scotland, the chief wireless operator, said he started calling S. O. S. six minutes after the vessel struck. It was sixteen minutes before communication was established with Cape Sable. The Captain reported he thought they were on Brier Island, but was not certain.

"At 7:10 A. M. the dynamo gave out," said Mr. Hitchner, "and we changed over to the emergency set. Communication was established with Partridge Island and we were informed that the Lansdowne was leaving to assist us. At 8:17 a heavy sea rolled over the boat deck and into the wireless room, smashing the lifeboats on the starboard side and carrying away the aerials. We made repairs and after a time succeeded in re-establishing communication. We heard the Kronprinzessin Cecilie calling with a message, via Cape Sable, that she could not come to our assistance owing to shortness of coal, and saying that she had informed the steamer Belvedere of our plight.

"We were unable to acknowledge the signals from Cape Sable, owing to the great difficulty under which we were working. We called S. O. S. continually until high tide, when we were no longer able to stay in the wireless room. At 3 o'clock the aerial again was carried away, but was repaired. We again called S. O. S. and reported that we now thought we were on Trinity Rock, or possibly Brier Island. During the high tide the room was swamped and the received flooded, making it useless, but the transmitting set was working.

"We stayed in the room until the next high tide. At 5:11 A. M. yesterday we again went into the wireless room and rerigged the aerials and got signals working fairly well. We worked up to 8:15 A. M., when we were again forced from the room by the tide. At low water we again called, and we remained in the wireless room until taken off. My assistant, E. T. Shimpton, rendered very valuable assistance and showed excellent courage under the most trying circumstances."

SAVE FOURTEEN IN OPEN BOAT.

Crew of Schooner Martin, Lost in Storm—Many Craft in Distress.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Jan. 15.—The Plant Line steamer A. W. Perry, bringing the crew of the seven-masted Bath schooner Grace A. Martin, picked up adrift in an open boat at 5 A. M. to-day, docked this afternoon, and four of the reserve crew who were suffering from severe frostbite were rushed to the Chelsea Marine Hospital. Among the rescued was Mrs. Loraine Phillips, wife of the cook. She came through the ordeal in better physical condition than any of her companions.

The crew of fourteen persons had been adrift in the twenty-foot boat for twenty-one hours when picked up 100 miles east of Boston Light, and had suffered terribly from exposure in a seventy-mile gale with the thermometer 14 degrees below zero. The schooner sank in sight of the refugees an hour after they abandoned her at 8 A. M. yesterday, thirty miles south of Matinicus Light, on the Maine coast.

The schooner, which was bound from Norfolk to Portland with 5,000 tons of coal, was burdened so low in the water that when the terrific northwest gale of Tuesday night struck her the seas came aboard and washed her from stem to stern. The extreme cold iced up the scuppers so that the water could not run back again, and the craft was soon loaded with the weight of the tons of water which was held on her decks.

The water worked through the hatches and passageways and began to flood the hold. When the pumps were started the pitching of the vessel had slopped the water about through the cargo so that it was thick as soup from mingled coal dust and clogged the pumps.

When Capt. H. H. Wallace saw that it was dangerous to stay longer aboard the water-logged craft, all hands got away in the power boat that the schooner carried. Capt. Wallace broke a finger and sprained his left hand in getting the boat into the water, but they got away without other mishap, in spite of the terrific sea running and the low temperature that hampered every movement, clogging the tackle and freezing clothing stiff.

Expert seamanship was necessary to keep the little boat afloat, even with constant bailing. Those aboard had taken all the clothing they could collect before they abandoned the Martin, and the plentiful supply doubtless prevented them from perishing from the cold. The gasoline engine in the lifeboat froze up immediately, and they drifted until picked up. They had staved off hunger and thirst with a case of tinned beef, a basket of bread, and six jugs and two coffee pots of water, with which they had provisioned their lifeboat. With the exception of the Captain, the two officers, and the engineer, all were colored.

VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass., Jan. 15.—The revenue cutter Acushnet reached here from Nantucket Shoals to-day towing the schooners Silver Spray, Daniel McLeod, and Sunlight. All were badly iced up and their crews were suffering from frostbites. The Acushnet reported that the revenue cutter Itasca was on her way to port with the schooners Pearl Nelson and Jessie Hart 2d in tow, and that other vessels on the shoals were asking assistance.

On her way down Nantucket Sound yesterday the Acushnet communicated with ten schooners, all partly disabled by ice. At one time eighteen schooners and a tug were anchored off Chatham with colors union down.

SIEGEL DEPOSITORS REFUSE 30 PER CENT.

MR. VOGEL RAISES MONEY

Possibility of a First Payment to Depositors by the End of January.

Following the determination of the mercantile and bank creditors of the various Siegel concerns to dispose first of the claims of the 15,000 depositors of the failed banking firm of Henry Siegel & Co. as a necessary preliminary to any reorganization of the Siegel enterprises, it was learned yesterday that a tentative offer of settlement of the depositors' claims on the basis of 30 per cent. cash and security to insure payment of the balance has been made to the depositors. The depositors, however, through their counsel, J. P. Murray of Coudert Brothers, rejected the offer as too small, insisting on a more substantial cash payment of 50 per cent. or thereabouts.

John B. Stanchfield, counsel for Henry Siegel and Frank W. Vogel, the copartners in the failed bank, visited District Attorney Whitman yesterday. Neither Mr. Stanchfield nor the District Attorney would discuss their interview, but it was learned that it had been about the Siegel bank case, and that Mr. Stanchfield had explained the whole situation as it now stands. Assurance was given, it was said in the Criminal Courts Building, that substantial payment to the depositors would be made in the very beginning of the reorganization proceedings.

Already, it is understood, Frank E. Vogel, who has been busy gathering up funds among his and Mr. Siegel's friends and relatives in Chicago, has collected about $500,000, which would permit the cash payment of about 20 per cent. of the bank's $2,500,000 of deposits. The balance, it was said on good authority, would probably be guaranteed by a large downtown firm as underwriters, who would in turn be secured by stock of the various subsidiary stores and concerns of the Siegel Stores Corporation.

The District Attorney, it was said, was very unwilling to hamper by any adverse action any proceedings looking toward the repayment of the bank's depositors and reorganization of the Siegel concerns. He refused to give any intimation of his stand in the matter, however, either as to the present or the near future. Under the statute, he has two years in which possible action can be taken.

The need of general co-operation and the imperative necessity of avoiding any step that might upset the present reconstructive measures as concerns the depositors and creditors alike, was strongly emphasized by all elements concerned in the Siegel case yesterday. All of them, too, were very hopeful of speedy and satisfactory results. All were agreed, too, that the bank's depositors must be paid off first.

There was a stormy meeting of depositors yesterday in the loft space at 43 West Thirteenth Street, where the temporary office of the Siegel bank has been established. There J. P. Munch, Chairman of the Depositors' Committee of Ten, read to the meeting the letter from Stanchfield & Levy, Henry Siegel's counsel, giving assurance that steps were busily under way for the collection of funds with which to make an immediate payment to the depositors and security for the balance. Mr. Munch told, too, of his own interview with Mr. Siegel, saying that the latter had wept as he talked of the depositors.

A storm of discord broke upon the meeting when Mr. Munch urged all the depositors to put their case in the hands of Coudert Brothers, the law firm through whose dealings with the other elements in the case the present negotiations and results had been achieved. Benjamin Marcus, who said he was both a lawyer and a depositor, objected to this, saying that no lawyers were necessary at all. Mr. Marcus himself had appeared before the Senate Banking Commission on the day before, saying that he represented some of the depositors.

It was finally resolved that there should be another meeting of depositors at the bank on next Thursday afternoon. Meanwhile, at 2 o'clock this afternoon, the Depositors' Committee of Ten will confer with their attorney, Mr. Murray, and announce the terms on which they are willing to reach an arrangement for the time being toward settlement of their claims.

Mr. Munch, Chairman of the Depositors' Committee, announced at the meeting of depositors yesterday, that a cash repayment of 10 or 15 per cent. would not be considered a substantial sum by the depositors, and that no consent to such arrangement would be obtained. He added that he expected that the first money would be paid back to the depositors by the last week in January or the first week in February.

J. Samter Levy of the law firm of Stanchfeild & Levy said yesterday that he had received a telegram from Frank E. Vogel at Chicago, telling that Mr. Vogel was working with Levy Mayer, an attorney of that city, to collect ready cash to pay back as much as possible to the depositors of the failed Siegel bank. Mr. Vogel is expected to return here early next week. Mr. Levy said that his client hoped to pay back dollar for dollar all the deposits in his bank. A list of all the private assets of both Mr. Siegel and Mr. Vogel is being prepared for James N. Rosenberg, counsel for the receivers of the Siegel stores.

A full report will be made to the mercantile creditors of the various Siegel concerns early next week by Messrs. Siegel and Vogel, and if the assets raised in the meantime are as large as the creditors have been led to expect it was said yesterday that the reorganization of the various enterprises was practically assured.

Meanwhile Henry Melville, receiver for the failed bank, was informed by the experts whom he has employed to go over the books that they were altogether at sea in their efforts to decipher the confused system of bookkeeping employed. The experts reported, among other matters, that loans by the bank to the various Siegel stores and Mr. Siegel personally were made without the names of the borrowers appearing on the bank's books. Instead, it was said, the stores, Mr. Siegel, and several other borrowers were represented by a series of nine numbers on the books of the bank. Simpson Crawford, which borrowed almost $1,500,000, was No. 1; the Fourteenth Street Store, No. 2; the Boston Store of Henry Siegel Company, No. 3; Mr. Siegel himself, No. 4, and so on.

Only in one book, according to Mr. Melville, did the names of the stores and other borrowers appear, and that was a big leather-clasped, locked, private ledger, to which only the cashier and bookkeeper of the bank had access.

F. L. Champion, the cashier, according to Mr. Melville, told him that each morning he would report to Mr. Vogel on the amount of deposits, and thereupon, he said, Mr. Vogel would tell him to draw in the name of Henry Siegel & Co. upon Henry Siegel & Co., and when the draft was drawn Mr. Vogel would indorse it in his own name and tell Champion to charge part of the amount to the Fourteenth Street Store and part to the Simpson Crawford Company or to the Boston store. Often, according to Champion, Mr. Vogel would change his orders the next day. It is as a result of these many orders and counter-orders, according to Mr. Melville, that the books of the various borrowing concerns do not agree in many of the loans made by the bank.

James J. Hoey, Deputy State Superintendent of Insurance, made inquiry yesterday of Mr. Melville concerning the status of the deposits in the Siegel bank for the Benevolent Association of the employes of the Fourteenth Street Store. Mr. Melville informed him that he had no knowledge of any separate trust fund in that respect in the failed bank, and that if there was such an account it would probably appear as an ordinary credit account with the rest.

DINER HECKLES WHITRIDGE.

Holland Society Guest Asks About Third Avenue Stock.

Frederick W. Whitridge, President of the Third Avenue Railroad, speaking at the annual dinner of the Holland Society last night at the Waldorf, said the improvement made in that system was due to the intelligence and ability of the capable men associated with him in the management of the property. Mr. Whitridge's subject was "Common Sense in Business." He made reference to William G. McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasury, as having probably saved his tunnel railway from financial disaster before he left it by raising fares in the McAdoo tubes about 40 per cent. Edward F. Schenck, one of the diners, interrupted the speaker by asking:

"How about the 40 per cent. assessment on the Third Avenue line which I and others had to pay, though the stock dropped to 25?"

"Well, if you feel that way about it you had better get rid of it," replied Mr. Whitridge.

Mr. Schenck, who apparently thought Mr. Whitridge was making an attack on McAdoo, afterward shook hands with Mr. Whitridge, and told him he would not have raised the question but for his mention of McAdoo. The remark of Mr. Whitridge about the Secretary of the Treasury preceded a reference to Dudley Field Malone, who was also one of the speakers, in which he said the Collector of the Port was engaged in putting a "head-stone over the body of Tammany Hall."

Collector Malone said:

"We are working on a plan for the betterment of conditions throughout the city and State. The bosses and corruptionists cannot last in any party in this enlightened day."

TO PROSECUTE FOSTER.

Pemberton Residents Backing Bradley, Father of Girl Who Eloped.

Special to The New York Times.

MOBILE, Ala., Jan. 15.—Harry E. Bradley, father of Delilah F. Bradley, the eighteen-year-old Pemberton, N. J., stenographer and former Sunday School teacher, who figures as the principal Government witness against Joel M. Foster of Browns Mills, with whom she elopted, was not permitted to see his daughter this morning when he called at the sanitarium where the girl had been sent after her rearrest yesterday. She had not recovered from the nervous breakdown which had rendered her transference from the police station to the sanitarium advisable. Later, however, her condition improved considerably, and he stayed with her for some time.

Chief of Police Grenshaw does not believe the girl is as sick as she says she is. He declares she is shamming, and he has notified her physician that he is going to take her to court to-morrow if he has to do so on a cot. He also sides with her father in scouting the affidavit she made involving another man. The father maintains that her assertions were invented by Foster and herself with the idea of aiding Foster to escape the penalty for the offenses with which he is charged.

Mr. Bradley to-day received telegrams from wealthy residents of Pemberton placing at his disposal ample funds with which to prosecute Foster, and urging him not to return without his daughter. Bradley at once engaged lawyers, and they are working up a strong case against Foster. The latter to-day denied emphatically that he had asked his father, T. J. Foster, head of the International Correspondence Schools, for financial assistance.

FLOCK TO OLD GUARD BALL.

Madison Square Garden Crowded with Guests from Other Orders.

From late last night until early this morning, Madison Square Garden was crowded for the Old Guard Ball. The grand march, which began at midnight, was led by Rear Admiral Charles D. Sigsbee, U. S. N., retired, the reviewing officer and guest of honor, and Major S. Ellis Briggs, commanding the Old Guard battalion. In the march were Old Guardsmen in full uniform escorting visiting officers of the army, navy, and National Guard, the ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Boston, the Governer's Foot Guards of New Haven, the Minute Men of Washington, the State Fencibles of Philadelphia, the Fourth Regiment of Maryland, and officers from Governors Island representing the Department of the East.

Altogether there were more than 1,000 men in line, and the one among them who attracted the most attention was Capt. James F. Wenman, 90 years old. He led one of the divisions in the grand march and was seen on the floor in several dances. Other officers of the Old Guard who were in charge of divisions were Capts. C. H. Rockwell, D. Lowenbein, D. H. Lichtenstein, and J. H. Higgins, and Lieuts. W. D. Preston, Joseph G. Leikens, and W. D. Magovern. Among the boxholders were:

H. W. GRIFFITH DIES HERE.

Officer of Norfolk & Western Stricken at Church Concert.

Henry Walton Griffith, Secretary of the Norfolk & Western Railroad Company, with offices in Philadelphia, died suddenly last night in the parish house of All Angels' Church, West End Avenue and Eightieth Street. He had come to this city to attend a concert given by the choir of the church. Mr. Griffith was 56 years old and a bachelor. He was a member of several clubs in Philadelphia.

Mr. Griffith complained of feeling ill shortly before the close of the concert, and the sexton escorted him to a room of the parish house. Mr. Griffith died before Dr. Decoursey of the Polyclinic Hospital arrived at the parish house. There was no interruption of the concert, and few in the parish house knew of Mr. Griffith's death.

The identification of Mr. Griffith was made by means of a Federal income tax blank which was found in a wallet in his pocket. The police learned that Mr. Griffith had a sister in Philadelphia, and later the sister telephoned that the man, judging by the description given, undoubtedly was her brother.

FLOOD IN TIFFANY'S STORE.

Firemen Bail It Out and Protect Cases Full of Valuable Jewelry.

The second floor of Tiffany's jewelry store in Fifth Avenue was flooded yesterday morning when a water pipe connected with the automatic fire alarm signal burst and shed its contents over the jewel cases and the floor.

The bursting of the pipe turned in an automatic alarm and when Acting Battalion Chief Sherlock arrived he ordered rubber blankets spread over the show cases and the five exits of the building closed and guarded. The water which dripped through the floor to the ground floor was bailed out with buckets and soaked up by mops.

During the time the firemen were in charge nobody else was allowed in or out of the building, as hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of jewels and precious stones were in the show cases at the time.

Brandt Denies He Seeks Pardon.

ALBANY, Jan. 15.—Foulke E. Brandt, former valet of Mortimer L. Schiff of New York, now on parole from Dannemora Prison, has written to Attorney General Carmody from a Northwestern lumber camp denying that he desired an unconditional pardon. Gov. Glynn recently heard that friends of Brandt would make an application for such a release in his behalf. The Governor said he would deny it if made.

Gov. Glynn Names Dr. Spiegel.

Dr. Adolph Spiegel, Rabbi of the Congregation Shaari Zedek of Harlem, has been appointed by Gov. Glynn delegate from the State of New York to attend the Congress in Berlin, Germany, to protest against the violation of the Berlin Treaty of 1878, which guaranteed full rights of citizenship to all Jewish subjects.

MOYER AND 37 AIDS UNDER INDICTMENT

MANY ARRESTS FOLLOW

HOUGHTON, Mich., Jan. 15.—Charles H. Moyer, President of the Western Federation of Miners, and thirty-seven other officals and members of the organization were indicted to-day on charges of conspiracy in connection with the copper miners strike. The indictment is so worded that the charge against the men constitutes a misdemeanor. Several other bills were returned, but because they charged felonies, Judge P. H. O'Brien ordered the documents sealed until the men had been arrested.

Warrants were prepared for the thirty-eight union men accused of conspiracy, and Deputy Sheriffs scurried over the county late to-day serving them. More than a dozen individuals had been arrested to-night, and Circuit Court Commissioners in Houghton and Calumet were kept busy approving bonds of $1,000, under which many of the prisoners were released.

So far as could be learned none of the sealed indictments related to the deportation of Moyer and Charles Tanner on the night of Dec. 26. Besides Mr. Moyer, the following men were indicted:

C. E. Mahoney, Vice President of the Western Federation; J. C. Lowney, Guy Miller, W. P. Davidson, and Yanko Terzich, members of the Executive Council of the Western Federation; William J. Rickard and John E. Antilla, President and Secretary, respectively, of the Calumet local; Dan Sullivan and Charles E. Heittala, President and Secretary of the Hancock local; Sidney Thomas, President of the Ahmeek local; Ben Goggia, Mor Oppman, John Vallimaki, John Dunnigan, Patrick Dunnigan, Heimer Mikko, Andrew Petala, Peter Jedda, Henry Koski, John Huhta, Thomas Strizich, Victor Branden, Eino Wiitanen, Frank Gaaitenen, William Krall, Dolphus Little, Anton Pechauer, James Paull, W. T. Williams, E. James Rowe, Henry Grebb, Stephen Oberto, Jacob Oliver, George Toth, Louis Fodar, Joseph Gasperich, and James Kulice.

The indictment was in three counts, the first and second charging conspiracy to prevent mine employes from pursuing "their lawful avocation." The third count alleged that the conspiracy extended to an attempt to deprive the laborers of their property and rights.

The testimony of 137 witnesses formed the basis of the charges. In this list were included James McNaughton, General Manager of the Calumet and Hecla Mining Company; F. W. Denton, General Manager of the Copper Range Consolidated Company; Theodore Dengler, Superintendent of the Mohawk Mining Company; Charles Lawton, Superintendent of the Quincy Mine; August Beck, ex-Sheriff and now Chief of the Secret service of the Calumet and Hecla; Enoch Henderson, Superintendent of the Franklin Mine, and R. R. Seeber of the Winona Mine.

"This charge is no surprise to us," said Charles E. Heittala. "It has been openly acknowledged that at least nine of the jurymen owe allegiance to the Citizens' Alliance, and that body is frankly the enemy of organized labor. Everything we have done in conducting this strike has been open and above board. So far as I am concerned, my only known offense is that I have been an active advocate of, and worked for, the Western Federation of Miners. I cannot see how this constitutes any offense against the peace and dignity of the State of Michigan or any other commonwealth in the country."

DENVER, Col., Jan. 15.—Charles H. Moyer, President of the Western Federation of Miners, when informed today that he had been indicted on a charge of conspiracy, said that he would not decide upon a course until he had been formally notified of the indictment and consulted attorneys.

"I shall leave Denver in a few days for Indianapolis, to attend the miners' convention," he said. "From there I expect to return to the Michigan copper district."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—A telegram from Gov. Ferris of Michigan to-day asserted that statements attributed to Representative MacDonald of Michigan as to conditions in the copper district and quoted in the Senate by Senator Ashurst were false and traitorous.

Senator Townsend of Michigan presented the message, with a copy of a similar telegram sent to President Wilson by Gov. Ferris. tI aserted that law and order was being preserved in the copper district, the courts open, the Grand Jury in session, and the machinery of justice available to every citizen of the State.

Senator Bacon of Georgia objected to the reading of the message. "Neither the Governor of Michigan nor the Senator from Michigan has the right to have read here," he said, "that which is defamatory tothe character of a member of the other House."

GETS LIGHT ON COAL POOL.

Commerce Board Also Sifts Finances of the Reading Road.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 15.—Attorneys for the Interstate Commerce Commission at the investigation of the rates and practices of the anthracite coal carrying railroads to-day endeavored to show that there was a combination among certain corporations identified with the hard coal trade to fix a basis for rates.

Charles E. Henderson, formerly Vice President of the Philadelphia & Reading Coal and Iron Company, was the chief witness, and in the documentary evidence were letters written on July 9, 1901, and July 11, 1901, signed by G. M. Cumming, saying that at a meeting of the Temple Iron Company in New York it had been proposed to fix either a percentage or a flat rate to outside shippers. Those who attended this meeting were officials of the Erie, Reading, Lehigh Valley, Jersey Central, and Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Companies. Another letter set forth that George F. Baer, President of the Reading Companies, had advised that a flat rate be charged, because a percentage rate was not advisable or expedient. Mr. Henderson said he objected to establishing rates mentioned in the letters because he believed it could not be done legally. He said he told Mr. Baer of his objections, and was told to lay them before the committee in New York. Mr. Henderson further testified that so far as he knew the proposed rates were not put into effect at that time.

The finances of the Reading Company, Reading Railway, Reading Coal and Iron Company, and subsidiaries of these corporations, also were taken up. The witnesses included Gordon Chambers, Assistant Real Estate Agent of the Reading Company; W. H. White, Controller of the Reading Company and the Reading Railway, and George Ziegler, also an official of the Reading Companies.

The commission's counsel endeavored to show that the Reading Company, the holding concern for the other Reading properties, owned the stock of the Philadelphia and Reading Terminal Company, despite the fact that bonds amounting to $8,500,000, secured by this stock, were carried as a liability of the Reading Railway Company with no corresponding asset. This was not satisfactorily explained to the commission's attorneys.

W. W. Morgan of counsel for the commission in examining Mr. White brought out the fact that the Reading Railway paid to the Reading Company monthly in advance, instead of semi-annually in arrear, 8 per cent. a year on $10,000,000 worth of equipment, and also guaranteed to repair or replace damaged or destroyed equipment. The witness admitted that the railway company paid to the holding company more than $9,000,000 for replacements valued at more than $6,000,000, and that the excess of $3,000,000 was charged up to operating expenses of the railway company.

Mr. White also said the railway company paid in advance to the holding company various sums of money on account of dividends that had not yet been declared. Counsel for the Reading said this was not a violation of the law. The dividends amounted to 15 per cent. a year. It was shown that the Port Reading Railroad Company paid to the holding company in advance dividends of 12 per cent. before they were declared by the Directors, and that the railway company turned over to the holding company interest on $20,000,000 of bonds in advance in monthly installments.

MARTINE FOR U. S. MINES.

Senator Favors Federal Ownership of the Coal Supply.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Government ownership of the great coal mines of the country as a remedy for strike disturbances was recommended by Senator Martine of New Jersey to-day in a report submitted to Chairman Swanson of the Senate committee which investigated the West Virginia coal strike troubles. Senator Martine, who was charged with the inquiry regarding interference with the mails and the employment of contract labor, reported that the evidence failed to establish either of these conditions.

The report attributed much of the violence in West Virginia to the presence of armed guards, hired by the mine operators, and recommended the passage of a bill which Senator Martine introduced in the Senate last session prohibiting the employment of armed police by private organizations.

"Coal, under our civilization," said Senator Martine, "is a necessity. This great commodity cannot be increased a fraction of a pound, yet our population is multiplying by leaps and bounds each year, thereby increasing the demands for this article. We must have warmth for our bodies and fuel with which to cook our foods. With this condition existing, and, with avarice as the dominating characteristic in man, I, at the risk of criticism by many friends and countrymen, unhesitatingly say that government ownership of the mines is the only hope or solution for those who may come after us."

GIVE POLICE GREEN LIGHTS

And Herzog Says Citizens Can Wave Signals to Call Them from Shelter.

Mayor Mitchel received a new suggestion yesterday for making the lot of policemen on fixed post more comfortable in cold weather. The suggestion came from Dr. Alfred W. Herzog, a lawyer of 123 West Eighty-third Street, who wrote:

> Not soft hearted by nature, I can yet never pass a man on fixed post without feeling very sorry for him. In Mexico the following method was observed by me: Every policeman carries a green signal lantern. This lantern is not lighted by day, but otherwise at night.
>
> The policeman, wherever he may be, will place his lantern, lighted or unlighted as it may be, in the middle of the street. Anybody looking for a policeman will look along the street for the lantern; seeing it, run toward it, and lifting it up, swing it.
>
> The policeman may be standing for protection against wind and weather in some doorway, keeping his eye not only on the surrounding neighborhood, but also on the lantern.
>
> As soon as he notices anybody swinging the lantern he runs toward it and finds out why he is wanted. Would not a lantern used by the police in this city on fixed post answer the same purpose, and is it not much more needed here, where the weather is so inclement and changeable? In Mexico, where I observed this custom, the climate is very much milder.

According to his letter head Dr. Herzog is a "medico-legal expert and examiner in lunacy of New York."

GALES DELAY THE OCEANIC.

Liner's Steering Gear Disabled Temporarily by Heavy Seas.

Owing to the storm which has swept the western ocean in the last four days, the White Star liner Oceanic arrived yesterday twenty-four hours late from Southampton, Cherbourg, and Queenstown, bringing 362 passengers and mails. Among the passengers was Dr. Frederick A. Cook.

Capt. Harry Smith, standing on the ice-coated bridge of the Oceanic, said yesterday that the gale was at its worst on Tuesday, when heavy seas rolled over the ship's bows. One sea went over the Oceanic's bridge, carrying away the dodgers and smashing the windows in the pilot house. It also put the steering gear out of commission for a short time and caused the steamship to fall off into the trough of the sea until the relief gear was attached.

LOW PRICES FOR PICTURES.

'Still Life,' by Agricola, Brings $80; Eggleston's 'Wood Nymphs,' $47.50.

Low prices were the rule at the sale of the pictures from the estates of the late B. R. Redman and Daniel O'Day, at the American Art Galleries last evening, only four pictures of the eighty-one sold bringing $100 or more, and some as low as $5. A "landscape," by Blakelock brought $100, going to S. Rosedale; the "Head of a Saint," dated 1755, artist unknown, brought $52.50; Eggleston's "Wood Nymphs," brought $47.50; the beautiful mosaic "Still Life," by Agricola, sold for $80; E. A. Piot's, "A Lady of Smiles," sold for $77.50; Ernest Lawson's "Farmhouse by Moonlight," brought $80, and Frederic Ede's "Rippling River," the same price.

George Herbert McCord's "Leyden Harbor" went to John Levy for $105, and Haans Frey paid $125, the highest price of the evening, for an Italian picture, "The Happy Family," by Corriglia, an interior with a plump young woman winding a ball of yarn; Mrs. B. M. Carlisle paid $60 for Ernest Lawson's "Moonlight Symphony." The beautiful copy, by an unknown artist, of Raphael's "Chair Madonna," went to Knoedler & Co. for $100, and Charles W. Hawthorne's "Yellow and Red," a brilliant picture of a young woman, went to the Holland Galleries for $85.

The returns for the evening were $2,709. The remainder of the pictures will be sold this evening with others from a "Country Mansion."

Old Silver Tankard Sold for $105.

One of the most interesting pieces disposed of in the sale of a collection from an old country mansion at the American Art Galleries yesterday afternoon was an antique English silver tankard, London letter date 1750, which went to A. F. Clearwater for $105. An old English silver ale toby with the London letter date 1791 went to the same buyer for $32.50. A three-light Sheffield candelabra, English type of the eighteenth century, went to W. T. Chapman for $92.50, and a large five-light candelabra, silver plate on copper, to the same buyer for $115. The highest price of the afternoon was $310 for a massive Tiffany silver punch bowl and ladle. The returns for the afternoon were $4,357. The sale of furniture, &c., will be concluded this afternoon, with a sale of the pictures this evening.

DR. HOURWICH AT PROTOCOL HEARING

Arbitration Board Will Take Up the Controversy at Meeting Next Sunday.

Although yesterday was the last day given to the cloakmakers' union to oust its chief clerk, Dr. Isaac M. Hourwich, in the ultimatum sent by the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union which threatened otherwise to withdraw as guarantor of the union's protocol agreement with the manufacturers, no steps were taken. The matter was postponed pending an investigation of the cloakmakers' situation by the Federal Industrial Relations Commission, which was recently appointed by President Wilson to investigate the underlying causes of industrial unrest in this country and to report back to Congress.

The commission consists of Frank P. Walsh of Kansas City, Chairman; Prof. John R. Commons of Madison, Wis.; Mrs. J. Borden Harriman of New York, Frederick A. Delano of Chicago, Harris Weinstock of Sacramento, S. Thurston Ballard of Louisville, John B. Lennon of Bloomington, Ill.; James O'Connell of Washington, D. C., and Austin B. Garretson of Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Only four of the Commissioners conducted the hearing yesterday in the City Hall. Mr. Lennon acted as Chairman, Mrs. Harriman represented the public, Mr. Ballard, the manufacturers organizations, and Mr. O'Connell, Third Vice President of the American Federation of Labor, the employes.

Abraham Rosenberg, President of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, was the first witness called. He described the conditions in the cloak industry before and since the general strike of 1910, which resulted in the adoption of the protocol agreement, and said that it had improved conditions in the industry about 25 per cent.; done away with insanitary conditions in the shop almost entirely; abolished foot-power machines and substituted electric power; abolished the system of compelling employes to furnish their own machines, and done away with strikes and lock-outs. There were still, he said, occasional "stoppages of work" in the shops, but the union usually ended them in a few hours.

In a general way, he said, the clerks sent to the scene of differences by the union and the manufacturers' association were able to adjust about 75 per cent. of the disputes. Indeed, the whole trouble at present, he said, seemed to be a feeling that the cases so adjusted and dropped by the clerks ought to be thrashed out one way or another.

"I believe the fault of the present difficulty is that we have too many lawyers between us manufacturers and workers," he said. "I have suggested that we both eliminate the lawyers and get together as practical cloakmakers and cloak manufacturers, when, I am sure, we would soon reach an agreement. But we couldn't get the lawyers out. So today in our conferences, instead of talking cloaks and prices, we talk about abstract right and Supreme Court decisions for days and days and get nowhere."

The average wages of the workers, he said, was $16 a week for operators and from $10 to $12 a week for finishers.

John A. Dyche, Secretary of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, also thought the protocol a great improvement on what had preceded it in the industry.

"Influences are at work to create among the workers the impression that the union leaders are tools of the manufacturers," he said. "The whole trouble arose because the union unfortunately imported into this situation a certain person as a mediator who is by disposition not conciliatory and who refuses to recede from the situation; and he has the masses behind him."

Dr. Hourwich, at whom this statement was aimed, sat among the cloakmakers in the body of the council chamber.

Perez Kotler, Secretary of Local No. 1 of the Cloakmakers' Union, testified that the majority of the workers regarded the protocol as unworkable, giving protection only to the manufacturers. He suggested that an impartial Chairman be added to the present Board of Grievances. Julius Henry Cohen, attorney for the Manufacturers' Association, said such an amendment was now under consideartion by the Board of Arbitration.

POPE DENOUNCES THE 'NEW PAGANISM'

Cardinal Pompili on His Behalf Issues a Pastoral Letter Attacking Recent Developments.

GIVES WARNING TO PARENTS

Says the Tango and Certain Newspapers, Theatrical Performances, and Fashions Pervert Souls.

ROME, Jan. 15.—Cardinal Basilio Pompili, Vicar General of Rome, representing the Pope, has issued a pastoral letter denouncing the tango and also certain newspapers, theatrical performances, and fashions, which, he declares, are perverting souls. The Cardinal says:

"The tango, which has already been condemned by illustrious Bishops, and is prohibited even in Protestant countries, must be absolutely prohibited in the seat of the Roman Pontiff, the centre of the Catholic religion."

He urges the clergy courageously to raise their voices "in defending the sanctity of Christian usages against the dangers threatening and the overwhelming immorality of the new paganism."

He warns parents that if they do not protect their children from corruption they will be guilty before God of failure in their most sacret duties.

The Osservatore Romano, the Vatican organ, discussing the suspension of the Abbé Jules Lemire, the only priest who is a member of the French Chamber of Deputies, by the Bishop of Lille, says that this does not imply the Holy See's disapproval of a republican or of the republican ideas possessed by Abbé Lemire, but disapproval of his rebellion against episcopal authority. The suspension of the Abbé was the result of differences which arose over his political programme.

Owing to the very severe weather and the abundant snowfall, special measures have been adopted to protect the Pope from the rigors of the Winter season.

NO GREAT FRENCH LOAN.

Caillaux Plans to Meet Deficit by Various Short-Term Issues.

PARIS, Jan. 15.—Joseph Caillaux, the Minister of Finance, presented in the Chamber of Deputies this afternoon the new Cabinet's proposed solution of the budget difficulties, which have been agitating France and which brought about the downfall last month of the Barthou Ministry.

M. Caillaux proposes to meet the deficit of $158,800,000 in the 1914 budget, as far as possible, without resorting to the loan of a sum greater than $38,600,000, the loan to be of the short-term kind.

The extraordinary expenditure for the army of $282,000,000 and that for the navy of $84,000,000 will be met by four or five rapidly redeemable loans to be issued separately in 1914 and 1915, thus avoiding the overburdening of the money market with a single issue.

M. Caillaux counts on obtaining $88,000,000 from the proposed graduated tax on capital, $30,000,000 from the income tax, and $10,000,000 to $20,000,000 from new taxation, notably that of petrol, and from economies, to balance the 1915 and future budgets.

DANCER GETS DAMAGES.

Paper Said Napierkovska Caused Four Men to Commit Suicide.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, Jan. 15.—Mlle. Napierkovska, the popular Russian dancer, has obtained $2,000 damages in a suit against an Italian journal, the Tribuna, for defamation of character.

The newspaper accused the dancer of causing four young Russians to commit suicide, and, warning her admirers against the "atmosphere she produced," urged them to "beware of her smile."

THE "ZABERN SPIRIT."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 15.—Herr von Heydebrand, leader of the ultra-Conservative, reactionary, pro-military party, and known as the "Uncrowned King of Prussia," gave a diverting exhibition of the "Zabern spirit" animating his class of Germans in to-day's budget debate in the Reichstag.

In attacking the Imperial Government for yielding to Radical-Socialist pressure in connection with the tax provisions for the army increase, Herr von Heydebrand said:

"Why did not the Government stand firm? Why did not they simply tell Parliament to go to the devil?"

One of von Heydebrand's staunch supporters is Herr von Oldenburg, who declared on a celebrated occasion that the Kaiser ought to have the right at any time to send a Lieutenant and ten men "to close up the Reichstag."

BERLIN, Jan. 15.—Emperor William to-day again intervened in order to prevent another crisis in connection with the recent violent incidents at Zabern. He directed that an investigation be made to determine whether the decree of 1820 authorizing the military to ignore the civil officials was still in force and had been rightfully included in the army service instructions which permitted the acquittal of Col. von Reuter and Lieut. Schad.

Officials here declare it to be doubtful whether the decree should have been included.

The revocation of this ancient decree, it is stated, would remove the principal cause of the present Parliamentary and popular irritation over the affair.

The Presidents of the military courts-martial at Strassburg which tried Col. von Reuter, Lieut. Schad, and Lieut. von Förstner decided to-day that there could be no appeal against the acquittal of those officers.

NO MORE CUBAN GENERALS.

President to Head Forces Under Sweeping Reorganization Bill.

HAVANA, Jan. 15.—A bill for the reorganization of the Cuban Army was introduced into Congress to-day by the leader of the Conservative Party. By its provisions the Rural Guard is to be joined to the permanent army, the field artillery is to be suppressed, the rapid-fire gun sections are to be increased, and six new cavalry regiments created.

The measure proposes to suppress the Commander in Chief of the army and the Major Generals and to place the entire force under the command of the President of the republic and the Secretary of the Interior, aided by a general staff.

The proposals have created wide comment among army men and civilians.

HOME RULE PEACE NEGOTIATIONS FAIL

HINTS ASQUITH IS COERCED

Speaks of "Conditions on Which Government Held Office" as Preventing Solution of Trouble.

BRISTOL, Jan. 15.—Andrew Bonar Law, leader of the Opposition in the House of Commons, announced definitely in the course of a speech here tonight that the conversations between the party leaders over Irish home rule had so far been without result.

Nothing, Mr. Bonar Law said, was to be gained by "cherishing illusions," and he grieved to say that, so far as he was able to judge, there could be no result. He was convinced that the Government earnestly desired a peaceful solution of the Irish question, but the "conditions on which the Government held office" apparently made it impossible for it to take the only step under which a solution was conceivable.

If the Government could make the Unionists any proposals which would avert the prospect of strife in Ulster, said Mr. Bonar Law, the Unionists would be ready to consider them with every desire to reach a peaceful settlement.

ROBBED J. G. BENNETT.

Former Employe of the Paris Herald Remanded in Custody.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—A Frenchman, Ernest La Porte, who had been arrested at Southampton, was charged on an extradition warrant at the Bow Street Police Court to-day with stealing 140,000f. ($28,000) from James Gordon Bennett.

The accused, who was employed on The Paris Herald, said when he was arrested: "I might have taken more. I left 15,000f. in the safe." On him was found the sum of 25,000f. in French coins and notes.

He was remanded in custody.

DUCHESS AS A BURGLAR.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—Lymington, Hampshire, to-night saw a Duchess in the part of a burglar.

The burglary formed part of the plot of the play "Pistols for Two," in which the Duchess of Westminster appeared with the well known actor, Arthur Bourchier, at the local theatre in the cause of charity.

The Duchess had to submit to "rough" usage, as among other things, she was held up by a revolver, gagged, and put in a cupboard.

LINCOLN NOTEBOOK IS SOLD FOR $2,250

SALE TOTAL NOW $47,192

The sale yesterday at the Anderson Galleries of the Lincoln collection of the late Major William H. Lambert brought a total of $31,517. Of this amount $28,266 was obtained at the afternoon session. The total to date is $47,192.

George D. Smith last evening gave $775 for a presentation copy of James R. Lowell's "Ode Recited at the Commemoration of the Living and Dead Soldiers of Harvard University, July 21, 1865." Albert Galler paid $290 for the only copy on gold of Jules E. Roiné's Lincoln Centennial Medal. Mr. Smith obtained for $450 an early ambrotype by J. H. Brown of Lincoln without a beard, and $230 for a daguerreotype portrait of Lincoln, smooth-shaven and in evening clothes.

George D. Smith obtained most of the papers in the afternoon sale, acting, it is said, as agent for Henry E. Huntington.

He paid the highest price of the day, $2,250, for the notebook in which Lincoln pasted contemporary newspaper accounts of his speeches relating to negro equality, for use by Capt. James N. Brown, one of his political adherents, in the campaign of 1858. The book contains manuscript notes by Lincoln, and a long autograph letter of his. On the inside of the front cover Lincoln has written:

"The following extracts are taken from various speeches of mine delivered at various times and places, and I believe they contain the substance of all I have ever said about negro equality. The first three are from my answer to Judge Douglas, Oct. 16, 1854, at Peoria."

Record Prices for Letters.

The extraordinary letter which Lincoln wrote on April 1, 1836, to Mrs. Orville H. Browning about the rejection by Miss Mary S. Owens of his proposal of marriage, went to Mr. Smith for $1,250. This letter was kept by Mrs. Browning for more than a quarter of a century. Then she allowed Ward H. Lamon to copy it, and it was published in his life of Lincoln. This was a new record price for a Lincoln letter, but shortly afterward still another new record price, $1,375, was made by a two-page quarto letter, dated City Point, April 6, 1865, and addressed to Gen. U. S. Grant. It was written only eight days before Lincoln was shot. It relates to the proposal by the Confederate Assistant Secretary of War, John A. Campbell, to allow the Virginia Legislature to meet in the hope that the Legislature would withdraw the Virginia troops from the Confederate Army. This important historical letter went to Albert Galler.

Previous to yesterday's sale the record price for a Lincoln letter was $1,050. This was paid by Andrew J. Bowden for George H. Richmond at the Adam Badeau sale, May 19, 1902, at Anderson's. It was a one-page quarto letter, Washington, April 30, 1864, to Gen. Grant, expressing satisfaction with what he had done and confidence in his future operations. The letter was sold subsequently to Wilfred Buckley of Birmingham, England. Later on Mr. Buckley resold it to George H. Richmond, from whom it was purchased by W. K. Bixby of St. Louis, its present owner.

Twenty-two letters from Lincoln to Lyman Trumbull, covering the period from the organization of the Republican Party in 1856 to the inauguration of Lincoln in 1861, brought a total of $10,555, or an average of about $480 each. The highest price of this lot was $1,100 for a "private and confidential" letter, Dec. 10, 1860, in which Lincoln says:

"Let there be no compromise on the question of extending slavery. If there be, all our labor is lost and ere long must be done over again."

In another of these letters, Dec. 24, 1860, Lincoln says that he can scarcely believe the report that the forts of South Carolina will be surrendered by order of President Buchanan, but, if it be true, he will announce publicly at once that they are to be retaken after his own inauguration. This went to Mr. Smith for $1,060.

Other Interesting Letters.

A political letter from Lincoln to his law partner, William H. Herndon, June 22, 1848, brought $575. C. L. Morgan paid $350 for a letter from Lincoln to his step-brother, John D. Johnson, Nov. 25, 1851, about their mother. A letter to Owen Lovejoy, Aug. 11, 1855, on the slavery question, went for $455. A letter to Henry C. Whitney, Dec. 18, 1857, about "Long John" Wentworth, brought $300. An "especially confidential" letter, June 19, 1860, to Samuel Galloway, went for $350.

An autograph page from the sum-book of Lincoln, 1824, brought $360. Lincoln's autograph praecipe in his first law case sold for $85. A fragment of one of his speeches on slavery was knocked down for $330. Another fragment of a speech on equality, two pages quarto, brought $305. Notes used by Lincoln in a speech at the City Hall, Hartford, Conn., March 5, 1860, realized $240. An autograph manuscript in Lincoln's hand but unsigned, for use by Lyman Trumbull at the Springfield, Ill., celebration, Nov. 10, 1860, brought $300.

The original manuscript memorandum by Lincoln for his plan of campaign written in September, 1861, went to the Rosenbach Company of Philadelphia for $580. Mr. Smith paid $1,600 for Lincoln's original manuscript drafts of a bill to abolish slavery in Delaware. The original manuscript of Lincoln's address at Baltimore, April 18, 1864, went to the Rosenbach Company for $925. Charles Sessler of Philadelphia obtained for $550 one of the law books from Lincoln's library containing his signature in three places.

The sale of Part I. will be ended this afternoon.

NEW FLIM-FLAM GAME.

A well-dressed young man of engaging manners worked a brand-new flim-flam game yesterday and got away with $19 before his clever plan to separate accommodating strangers from their money was discovered. He appeared first at the box office of Hammerstein's Victoria Theatre in Times Square, just after the matinée rush, and, producing a twenty-dollar bill, said he had been sent from a near-by café to get $20 worth of quarters. The young man at the box office shoved two stacks of quarters, each stack containing $10, over the little counter in front of him. These quarters were rolled into packages by machinery, and at each end of the package a quarter was exposed to view so that no mistake would be made in the denomination of the coin.

The young man accepted them ratefully, dropped a pleasant remark about the "bill" at the theatre, and stepped away. A moment later he was back again, still smiling.

"What am I thinking of?" he said. "I was told to get $10 in quarters and $10 in dimes."

The ticket shover, after explaining that he could not accommodate with dimes, gave the young man back a ten-dollar bill, and accepted a package plainly showing a quarter at either end. Later, when he opened the package to make change for a customer, he found that it contained a steel bar with a quarter fastened at either end.

The ticket shover hurried over to the café which the young man had mentioned.

"Did you send a clerk after some quarters?" he asked anxiously.

"What are you giving us?" responded the cashier. "You mean you sent us a messenger after $10 worth of quarters."

Then they compared notes, and the cashier examined his packages of change. The well-dressed young man of engaging manners had, it turned out, worked the same flim-flam game on him.

The police were notified. They didn't recognize the crook by the description given. His version of the flim-flam game was a new one to them, it was said.

PANKHURST LECTURE CASH.

Promoters of Militant's Tour Fall Out Over $270.57.

Memories of the recent visit of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst to this country and her lecture tour were revived in the Yorkville Court yesterday when William J. Potts of 1 West 104th Street appeared as complainant against John Ostrander, a theatrical manager, of 49 West Forty-fourth Street, charging the larceny of $270.57.

Potts said he advanced $925 to Ostrander for the purposes of the Pankhurst lecture tour, and that Ostrander failed to return to him the balance of $270.57 when a settlement was expected.

It was shown that when Mrs. Pankhurst lectured in Chicago $2,811.50 was taken in; that $226 was received in Toledo, and $595.25 in Detroit. Against the total receipts were the following expenses: Chicago, $2,699.17; Toledo, $171.05; Detroit, $666.95. Potts, through counsel, said that repeated demands had been made on Ostrander for the balance due him, and his attorney said there was an agreement by which Potts was to get 50 per cent. of the profits.

Magistrate Krotel declared that the case was one for civil action, and he dismissed it. Nothing was said as to the receipts in New York from the lectures.

JEROME DEFENDS COURSE WITH THAW

Says He Could Not Have Been Taken Without Legal Process, as Chandler Asserts.

WILL FIGHT HIS RELEASE

William T. Jerome replied yesterday to criticisms of his handling of the Thaw case in a letter written by ex-United States Senator William E. Chandler of New Hampshire. Ex-Senator Chandler said that Thaw could have been taken from New Hampshire to Matteawan without legal process by keepers from Matteawan if they had notified Gov. Felker of their rights and had asked him to prevent interference with the return of Thaw. Then, ex-Senator Chandler said that the representatives of the State of New York could have extradited Thaw on the ground that he was a lunatic escaping from justice.

"The trouble with the letter of ex-Senator Chandler," said Mr. Jerome, "is that his suggestions are contrary to the Constitution of the United States. Thaw was not being punished at Matteawan for a crime. He had been acquitted of the charge of murder, and had been incarcerated in Matteawan because he was a lunatic, not because he had been guilty of wrong-doing.

"The Constitution does not permit the extradition of a man not charged with crime. Thaw was not serving a sentence for a crime in Matteawan. He had not been found guilty of breaking any law. In contriving his escape from Matteawan he did enter into a criminal conspiracy, and it is for the crime then committed that his extradition is sought. The representatives of the State of New York would have no legal ground for their position if they went into New Hampshire branding Thaw as a fugitive from justice, supposing that no indictment had been found for his conspiracy to escape from Matteawan.

"It is not contended that Thaw was guilty of a crime in escaping from Matteawan. The charge is that he committed a crime in conspiring to make his escape.

"Ex-Senator Chandler's statement that Thaw's return should be asked because he is fleeing from the justice of his original commital to Matteawan is mistaken, since Thaw was not sent there after conviction and sentence for crime, but in order to protect the public and himself from the consequences of his mania."

Mr. Jerome has completed the brief which he will submit on the question of releasing Thaw on bail. This will be argued before Judge Aldrich probably toward the end of next week. Besides submitting his brief Mr. Jerome will assert orally that Thaw should not be released on the report of the lunacy commission in New Hampshire that it was "reasonably probable" that, if he was admitted to bail he would not be a menace to a community.

"The report of the commission was hardly a recommendation for Thaw's release," said, Mr. Jerome. "The dictionary says that 'probable' means more likely to happen that not or that the evidence is stronger that one thing will happen than another. It would be rather rough on any community to turn a lunatic loose because it is found that he is more likely not to be a menace than he is to be a menace. The report does not give the assurance that there is any degree of certainty that Thaw will not be a menace."

Mr. Jerome will argue at the hearing before Judge Aldrich that the members of the commission which made this doubtful report were not in a position to speak with authority on Thaw's mental condition, because they failed to use the public records regarding Thaw which were available to them in the evidence taken at the Thaw trials and at the four hearings on his applications to be released from Matteawan.

First Editions of Mark Twain.

An exhibition was opened at the American Art Galleries yesterday of first and other editions of the writings of Mark Twain and Lafcadio Hearn, which will be sold there by auction on Jan. 20. They are said to be the first collections of books of these authors that have ever appeared in the public market. They are the property of the Tomlinson-Hume Company, in bankruptcy, and of Merle Johnson, Mark Twain's biographer. On Jan. 19 the libraries of the late John Mack and Gaylord Wilshire will be sold.

CAR BARN GANG ACTIVE.

South Harlem Neighborhood Association Will Act.

Borough President Marcus M. Marks and Assistant District Attorney Frank Moss will be the principal speakers at a meeting of the South Harlem Neighborhood Association in Public School 101, Lexington Avenue and 111th Street, next Monday evening. Better recreative facilities and riddance of gangs are some of the special objects of this association.

The district in the South Harlem Neighborhood Association is bounded by 116th Street, Ninetieth Street, Fifth Avenue, and the East River. This district includes the whole of Harlem's Little Italy. Here also the car barn gang has been causing trouble for years. There are two playgrounds in the section, one in 101st Street, between Second and Third Avenues, and the other in Jefferson Park. Complaints have been made that the playgrounds are not used to their capacity because of the gangs that rove in the district.

Borough President Marks, it is expected, will be asked to provide more police protection for the district, and also to use his influence for the wider use of the public schools for recreative purposes.

STRIKE LEADERS ALL PUT IN JAIL

Movement in South Africa Believed to be Collapsing Owing to Government's Measures.

JOHANNESBURG SIEGE ENDS

Gun Trained on Trades Hall, and an Announcement That It Will Be Used Lead to Surrender.

CAPE TOWN, Jan. 15.—In strong contrast with the hesitancy displayed in the July strike, the Government has adopted a vigorous policy, which already seems to have broken the back of the present strike movement.

Simultaneously with the short work made of the defiant Trades Federation leaders at Johannesburg, the entire executive of the railway and harbor employes' societies of Cape Town and Pretoria were placed under arrest, and to-night practically every important strike leader throughout the Union of South Africa is in the hands of the police, while from every direction come signs of weakening on the part of the men.

A great many men have returned to work, and the railway authorities are increasing the services. They express themselves as confident that they will have normal services running in all three provinces within the next thirty-six hours.

JOHANNESBURG, Jan. 15.—Mr. Bain, Secretary of the South African Federation of Trades, and his band of 300 comrades, who had barricaded themselves in the Trades Hall here since Tuesday, surrendered unconditionally to the police to-day. Bain and ten of the ringleaders were arrested and lodged in jail.

A seven-pound field gun trained on Trades Hall proved an irresistible argument to Bain and his companions. The Government authorities gave them a quarter of an hour in which to yield, informing them that if they did not do so they would be buried beneath the ruins of their fortress. They surrendered within the time named.

Bain this morning, before his surrender, requested an interview with Gen. Louis Botha, Prime Minister of the Union of South Africa.

A "SALOME" FOR $40.

Oscar Wilde Relic Among Articles at Richmond Sales.

An old painting, "Salome," by B. C. Sessia, was knocked down for $40 to George D. Smith at the George H. Richmond Auction Company's sale yesterday. The woman has just placed John the Baptist's head on a platter and stands gazing at it.

An original pencil drawing of Oscar Wilde, by Harper Pennington, beneath the portrait a Latin quotation in Wilde's autograph, and above the portrait three pen and ink sketches by J. McNeill Whistler, with his autograph signature in lead pencil, brought $8. "Old Fort Dearborn, Chicago," colored lithograph view by Kellogg, Hartford, Conn., about 1856, went for $15. A colored lithograph view of a harbor scene at Newport, R. I., brought $15.60. "The Two Princes," etching on vellum by P. T. Arendsen, signed proof, sold for $9.50.

Robert Friedenberg paid $15.50 for "View of Brooklyn from the United States Hotel," tinted lithograph by Michelin.

Mme. Nordica Is Improving.

Further improvement was reported yesterday in the condition of Mme. Lillian Nordica, striken with pneumonia after escaping shipwreck near Thursday Island off the coast of Australia. According to three cablegrams from Thursday Island given out here by her husband, George Young, the singer was better Tuesday. Wednesday her concondition remained the same, but she passed a fairly comfortable night and more improvement was noted yesterday.

DELAYS HOLD BACK SUBWAY SYSTEM

Chairman McCall Admits the Work Will Not Be Finished by Jan. 1, 1917.

In order to lay the plans of George A. Harwood, chief engineer of the electric zone of the New York Central Railroad, for the modification of the present crosstown tracks of the Interborough Subway at Times Square so as to permit of the continuation of uninterrupted train service between the east and west sides of the city, it was decided yesterday at a meeting of the Forty-second Street Association in the Green Room of Aeolian Hall to request Public Service Commissioner Maltbie to receive a delegation. This will be nominated by Walter J. Salomon, the Chairman of the meeting.

The absolute need of action on the part of the commission in regard to the Forty-second Street question was also brought before the meeting. At the present time no decision has been reached as to the connection to be made between the old Park Avenue subway and the new Lexington Avenue line at the Grand Central, and the commission has taken no action with regard to the subway section below Lexington Avenue and Fifty-third Street. The question as to whether or not the B. R. T. Broadway line is to have an express or a local station at Times Square is yet undetermined.

On the rest of the Lexington Avenue route to and beyond the Harlem River the work of subway digging has been in progress now for eighteen months. Some of the contractors are very far advanced in their work, and it is certain that there will be considerable stretches of subway tracks completed long before it is possible to connect the Lexington Avenue line with the old Subway. The same thing is true of the Interborough's west side line, if there is to be, in accordance with the idea suggested by Mr. Harwood and the New York Central, an uninterrupted crosstown connection for the Interborough at Times Square.

Chairman McCall admitted yesterday that it already seemed hopeless to expect the new subway system to be completely finished by Jan. 1, 1917, the date fixed in the contracts. It is generally estimated that a subway section takes from three to three and a half years to build, and it is impossible to hasten the work beyond a certain amount, however freely money is spent. It does not appear probable at present that the all-important connections at Times Square and the Grand Central can now be completed in time to permit the new system to be open at the date fixed.

With regard to the Grand Central connection, the commision is waiting on the action of the Board of Estimate. Last July the board agreed to the diagonal connection at Forty-second Street on the understanding that it should not be adopted by the commission unless the easements could be obtained at a figure which seemed reasonable. All efforts to drive a bargain with the owners of the Grand Union Hotel at a price acceptable to the commission have so far failed, and so the commission adopted the Fortieth Street connection as an alternative. It sent this across to the Board of Estimate for its approval in November, but has not yet received it back.

Chairman McCall said yesterday that just as soon as the Board of Estimate would place the Fortieth Street route on the same plane as the Forty-second Street connection, he would call a meeting of the commission and proceed to a definite decision. The formal adoption of the alternative plan, he pointed out, would not pledge the board to anything, but would enable the Commissioners to consider the rival schemes on terms of equality. It is understood that on the action taken by the commission with regard to the Grand Central connection depends the plan of the New York Central for the plot formerly occupied by the children's hospital at Forty-second Street and Lexington Avenue. The diagonal station, if it were built, would come directly across this parcel, and the designs for the hotel which is to be built there would be materially altered.

No progress has as yet been made in the third-tracking of the Interborough elevated tracks or in the construction of the extension of the Third Avenue elevated line along Webster Avenue.

With regard to the third-tracking a reason given by the company for the delay in starting is that the commission has not yet approved its selection of all the express stations. The Interborough submitted a list some months ago, which was approved in part, but as yet the commission has not taken final action in regard to those express stations concerning which its decision was reserved.

NATIONAL IN HURRY TO SIGN PLAYERS

President Tener Sounds Note of Warning to Baseball Club Owners.

The tip has been passed in the National League, and from President John K. Tener, too, that no time should be lost by the various club owners of the organization in getting their players under contract, with the result that there is a general scurrying in the senior league by club owners and managers. President Charles H. Ebbets of the Brooklyn Club is on a "gum-shoe" trip to the West, with his destination a mystery. President Charley Murphy of the Cubs has just returned from Lansing, Mich., after Johnny Evers had come back and reported failure in his attempt to sign Vic Saier. Murphy did what Evers could not do, because Johnny was not allowed freedom in naming terms. President Schuyler Britton of the St. Louis Club was in Pittsburgh yesterday rounding up Pitcher Bill Doak. Secretary Stephens of the Cincinnati Club made a journey to Pittsburgh Tuesday to make sure of Heinie Berghammer, who is to succeed Joe Tinker at short stop for the Reds, and while there he met Johnny Evers, who was endeavoring to get Bert Humphries's signature to a contract. An ultimatum from his booking agent, demanding that Dooin fulfill theatrical engagements for the next two weeks will prevent the Phillies' manager from making any jaunts to players' homes, but the club will probably have a scout out to round up the players. Notwithstanding this activity, the major league magnates say they do not regard the Federal League seriously.

Only President Harry N. Hempstead of the Giants seems to be immune from the order to do a little hustling for the good of the league. The New York President sits calmly in his office each day, while Secretary John B. Foster is enjoying his vacation in Bermuda, and Manager John J. McGraw is globe trotting at the other side of the world. President Hempstead announced yesterday that he had received no more contracts, but notes of assurance had been sent from some of his players now pastiming in California, and their contracts are expected in a few days. The possibility of sharing in another world's series, with the certainty of a series with the Yanks in case the big prize is missed, is the only argument needed to bring the Giants into the fold. President Hempstead declares that he is not worried about any player on the New York roster, and hopes to announce in a short time that every contract sent out has been returned with the player's signature.

Twenty-six contracts have already been promulgated at the office of the National League in this city, as compared with fourteen up to Jan. 16 one year ago. In the number are several more long term contracts than was the case a year ago. In fact, the long-term contracts signed this year promise to excel in number those of any year since the fight between the National and American League, if not in the history of the National League. The major leaguers realize now that a signed player is immune from offers from the Federals, a situation that did not prevail in the days of the National-American conflict, when players were grabbed whenever possible, regardless of their signed contracts. During this week five Brooklyn players, two Cubs and one member of the Boston Braves have signed contracts for two or more years, and many more have been offered the players.

The signed contract of Infielder Luke Boone, who was purchased from Dallas of the Texas League last season, reached the Yankees' office yesterday. Boone hit only .223 in 147 games in Texas, which hardly promises well for a stay in the majors. He got a short trial with the Yanks at the Polo Grounds during the latter part of 1913 and made a good impression as a fielder.

Ned Hanlon, the leading figure of the Baltimore Federals, paid a flying visit to New York Wednesday night and departed yesterday morning. He was accompanied by Secretary Harry Goldman of the Baltimore Club. The visit was made for the purpose of getting players, and the announcement was made last night that three former major leaguers, who had later been turned over to the International League, had been snared by the Federals. The trio consists of Enos Kirkpatrick, formerly with Brooklyn; Guy Zinn, once with the Yankees and later with the Boston Nationals, and Frank Smith, the former White Sox pitcher, who was with Montreal last season.

From Baltimore comes a report that the major leagues have devised a plan to prevent the invasion of Washington by the Federals. The transfer of the Jersey City team of the International League to Washington, thereby giving that city continuous baseball, is the plan decided upon, according to information from a "thoroughly authoritative source." The report has it that a meeting is to be held in this city soon to arrange the details. Such a plan would undoubtedly be welcomed by the International League as Jersey City has been a weakling for some time, and threats to transfer the club have become numerous during the past few seasons.

President James Gaffney of the Boston Braves yesterday announced that he had already signed five players, three of them being members of last year's team. They are Shortstop Maranville, Pitcher Otto Hess, Outfielder Leslie Mann, and Pitchers Herche and Crutcher. The two last named are youngsters. Catcher George Gibson of the Pittsburgh Club and Pitcher Bill Doak of the Cardinals were other National Leaguers who signed contracts yesterday.

FEDERAL CLUB HERE?

Muckenfuss Plans to Place Baseball Team in Corona, L. I.

New York will be included in the circuit of the Federal League, according to W. Stewart Muckenfuss, the former St. Louis baseball man, who has been in business in this city for several years. He announced last night that he has become interested in the Federal League, and with other promoters is willing to finance another baseball club in this city.

Mr. Muckenfuss was for fourteen years connected with baseball in St. Louis with the old St. Louis Browns, and was one of the best-known men in the major leagues years ago.

He announced last night that a site for a baseball park had been secured at Corona, L. I. The site is the same one which was sought by the late John T. Brush a few years ago, when there was a hitch over the releasing of the Polo Grounds.

Edward Hanlon of Baltimore was with Mr. Muckenfuss in this city a few days ago, and together they looked over the Corona site and decided to take it. The ground is now being filled in, and if the present plans go through the Buffalo or Toronto franchise will be transferred to Long Island.

Mr. Muckenfuss pointed out that when the new dual subway system is completed next year, Corona can be reached in twenty minutes from Manhattan, and it is now only a short trip on the Long Island Railroad. He plans not only a big baseball park, which he will try to have completed by next Summer, but also an extensive amusement park in the same vicinity.

The former baseball promoter stated last night that he and his fellow-promoters meant business, and believed that there was plenty of room here for another major league baseball club. The Federal Leaguers have been trying for several weeks to get some New York promoter interested in the matter, and finally Mr. Muckenfuss decided to shoulder the proposition.

TWO SUPERBAS SIGN.

No One Except Tinker Outside the Brooklyn Baseball Fold.

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 15.—Charles Stengel and Joseph Riggert signed contracts to-night to play with the Brooklyn team of the National League, according to the announcement of Wilbert Robinson, manager, who, with Charles Ebbets, owner of the Brooklyn Club, came here to-day to get the signatures of the two players.

"All of Brooklyn's players now have signed contracts with the exception of Tinker," said Mr. Robinson, "and I think there is very little doubt about his getting in line."

Ebbets and Robinson left to-night for Chicago, and while neither would discuss the subject, friends said it was probable they would have a conference with Tinker to-morrow.

Tigers Scorn Federal League.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 15.—Negotiations that have been pending for nearly two months between the Indianapolis Club of the Federal League and Owen Bush, shortstop of the Detroit American League team, practically were ended late to-day, when Bush refused to sign a local contract. The player declared that he was satisfied with the salary offered and the terms of his contract, but that he was not ready to sign a contract with any team at this time. George Dauss, pitcher, and Pat Bauman, infielder of the Detroit team, had not accepted the contracts offered by the Federal League to-night, and, according to announcement made by officials of the local club last night, the negotiations will be ended. President J. A. Gilmore, who came here from Chicago to try to induce the players to sign with the Federal League, returned to his home late to-day.

Coffey to Coach Fordham Again.

The Fordham University baseball team, through its manager, Bartley A. Moynahan, '14, announced yesterday the re-engagement of John T. Coffey, '10, as coach of the nine this Spring. Indoor practice will begin after the midyear examinations next week. Manager Moynahan has arranged a baseball series to decide the intercollegiate championship of the city. Games have been scheduled for the Maroon nine with Columbia, New York University, and the College of the City of New York. Seven veterans of last season's team are still at college, so a successful team is anticipated.

Baseball News in Brief.

Outfielder Johnny Bates has signed a one-year contract to play with the Cincinnati National League team. Bates stated that he had been approached by men representing themselves to be from the Federal League, but had decided not to desert the Cincinnati Club.

David L. Fultz, President of the Baseball Players' Fraternity, announced yesterday that Frank Baker and Eddie Collins of the Athletics had been expelled from the fraternity because of non-payment of dues. The same action was taken in the case of George Baumgartner of the St. Louis Americans.

Eighty per cent. of the players of the American League have been signed for the approaching season, according to a statement made by B. B. Johnson, President of the league.

The Oakland (Cal.) Baseball Club has released Pitcher Dwight Stone to Montgomery and Pitcher Schwenk to Nashville of the Southern League. Both pitchers were purchased last year from the St. Louis Browns.

The sale of Pitcher Zerah Z. "Rip" Hagerman of the Portland Coast League Club to the Cleveland Americans was officially announced yesterday.

Suit to recover $145 back alimony was brought in the Superior Court at San Jose, Cal., yesterday by Helen H. Chase, against her former husband, Hal Chase, first baseman of the Chicago Americans. Mrs. Chase alleges that since Dec. 1 Chase has paid her no alimony. Mrs. Chase obtained her divorce on a counter-suit when her husband instituted proceedings for a separation. She was granted $100 a month for herself and child.

IRISH HOCKEY TEAM LOSES TO ST. NICKS

The St. Nicholas Skating Club, by defeating the Irish-American A. C. at St. Nicholas Rink last night, is now tied with the Hockey Club seven for the lead in the Amateur League race. The St. Nicks won last night by a score of 3 to 2, the result being in doubt until the final whistle. It was the fastest and cleanest game of the season, and both sevens settled down to their best hockey and showed a big improvement over the rough-and-tumble work which has characterized other league games this year.

Superior team work and accurate passing won for St. Nick. The Irish club played a fine game, and most of the way showed a defense which was difficult to break through. Tom Kelly, the Irish-American goal tender, turned back a dozen shots, which looked like sure goals, while Pierson, the Santa Claus goal guardian, was also on the job, and several of his stops were bitterly disappointing to the Irish-American skaters.

While the checking was severe at times and several of the skaters got bad tumbles, the only intentional roughness was charged to George Harmon, who was twice ruled off the ice for short periods for tripping Hill, the St. Nick cover-point. Kilgour, the Canadian player, was in the Irish club line-up for the first time, his eligibility having been established to the satisfaction of the league. Kilgour played a fast game at centre and was all over the ice, although all of his shots were easy for Pierson to check in their flight.

The first part of the game showed the best defensive hockey of the year. The stick work of both teams was clever and not one of the skaters had a chance to make a free shot. Early in the game Turrell of St. Nicks managed to shoot the disk into the net, but there was off-side play, and the tally did not count. When Harmon was exiled from the ice in the first half for giving Hill a bad spill, the St. Nicks got together and swept down the ice in unison, but found Kelly as solid as a rock.

The first goal of the game went to St. Nicks after more than twelve minutes of play. From an exciting scrimmage in front of the Irish club's net Peabody made a quick, short shot, and the rubber whizzed between Kelly's skates for a count. Within two minutes the Irish-Americans had tied the score and the club's rooters sent up the first big cheer of the season. George Harmon scored the goal, making a long straight shot, after carrying the puck down from his own territory. Before that period ended Fellows-Morgan, St. Nick's rover, took a pass from Turrell and put his team in the lead by a score of 2 to 1.

The Irish-Americans showed a lot of speed early in the second half and there were several fast rushes by McGrath and Kilgour, but the wide-awake goal tending of Pierson off-set their ambitious efforts. Early in the second period Stickney, the Irish club's tall, lanky left wing, made a pretty pass from the side, shooting the rubber in from a difficult angle.

This tied the score again and the Irish-American rooters set up a howl for their team to shoot the winning goal. The game became fast and furious and a little rough. Dufresne, skating down the ice rapidly, ran amuck of Hill, who took a tumble which carried him twenty yards along the ice. McGrath and Kilgour made hard, vicious drives at the St. Nick nets, but Pierson turned them aside and saved the game for his team. Peabody shot a goal, but it was not allowed, because it was made on a forward pass.

The winning goal was scored by Turrell after thirteen minutes of play. Fellows-Morgan made a spectacular run down the rink, and made a hard shot at Kelly. The goal tender pushed the rubber back into the rink, and Turrell caught the rebound and with a tricky shot from the side won the game. The line-up and summary:

St. Nicholas.	Position.	Irish-Am. A. C.
Pierson	Goal	Kelly
Trimble	Point	Dufresne
Hill	Cover point	Garon

PRINCETON WINS ON ICE.

Dartmouth Blanked in Hockey at Boston by Fast Tiger Skaters.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 15.—Princeton outplayed Dartmouth at hockey to-night, adding another game to their list of victories. They beat the Hanover seven only 2 to 0, but generally were more aggressive than the Granite State players. The match was well played throughout, being fast and clean. The Tigers showed themselves the better skaters, and had it not been for the very effective work in goal by Donohue the score against Dartmouth would have been larger, so often did Baker, Peacock, Kilner, and Kuhn shoot at their opponents' net.

Both goals were made in the first period, the first by Baker and the second by Kilner. Baker's goal was made on a skillful shot from the side of the rink after he had picked the puck out of a scrimmage.

Baker, who was all over the rink, also figured in the other goal, carrying the puck past the Dartmouth defense and behind the cage, from where he passed it to Kilner, whose shot was true. Dartmouth's attack did not amount to much, except for a while early in the game. Once Tuck romped through the entire Tiger team and had an open shot. His drive was a wicked one, but Winants got in front of it. The summary:

Princeton.	Position.	Dartmouth.
Winants	Goal	Donohue
G. Peacock	Point	Dellinger
Emmons	Cover point	Johnson
McCall	Left wing	Frost
Baker	Rover	Wanamaker
Kuhn	Centre	Tuck
Kilner	Right wing	Murchie

Kinsella, Hockey Player, Suspended

Charles Kinsella, the Canadian skater playing with the Wanderers hockey team, was suspended for thirty days by the Governing Board of the Amateur League last night for his attack on Referee R. O. Ellis, after the game last Tuesday evening. Kinsella had no defense to make, except that he lost his head, and in the heat of his anger attacked the official for ruling him off the ice. Kinsella denied that he intentionally knocked Ellis over during the game. Several witnesses were heard.

It was the first case of its kind that has come before the board, and it decided to make an example of Kinsella and stamp out the roughness which has been apparent in several of the games. Kinsella is one of the best players on the Wanderers team.

TRAVERS GOING ABROAD.

Champion to Play for British Amateur Title Next May.

Jerome D. Travers, the national amateur golf champion, is going abroad to compete in the British championships. Yesterday he announced that he had engaged quarters at Sandwich, where the tournament will open on May 18. Travers is not going to play much until just before sailing, unless it be to familiarize himself with a putter other than the Schenectady, which is barred in Great Britain. He will sail about March 10 or 15, or about two weeks later than Fred Herreshoff, who also plans to go abroad.

Besides taking part in the amateur tournament at Sandwich, the champion of the United States will go over to France for the amateur tournament of that nation at La Boulie, beginning May 25. He will then return to England for the open tournament at Prestwick, June 18, but is not likely to return to France for the "open" at La Touquet, July 6. He probably will return to America before then. Travers said last night he would let his Metropolitan and New Jersey titles go by default. He expressed considerable pleasure that Francis Ouimet, the youthful amateur who captured the national open title last September, would cover nearly the same itinerary.

Ouimet, however, plans to compete for the St. George's vase at Sandwich previous to the amateur championship, and may possibly go back to France after the British open tournament to take part in the French open play.

Travers has been made a life member of the Mohawk Golf Club of Schenectady, N. Y., where he played last Summer. He speaks highly of the possibilities of the links, on which considerable money will be spent this year.

John Reid, Jr., Secretary of the U. S. G. A., calls attention to the fact that handicap reports have been received from only 182 clubs out of a total of 364. Some of the clubs still unheard from are among the most prominent in the country, and unless their reports are received without further delay, the Executive Committee will publish a list of the delinquents. Members of those clubs who do not reply will be ineligible to compete in the national amateur championship.

SLATER IN GOLF FINAL.

Staten Island Player Metropolitan Hope in Advertisers' Tournament.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., Jan. 15.—Harold Slater of Fox Hills, Staten Island, is the hope of the Metropolitan golf district in to-morrow's final for the championship trophy in the advertising golf tournament. He will play R. M. Purves of Woodland, who led in the qualification series on Monday. Slater's victory to-day was from T. A. Ashley, a clubmate of Purves, by three and two. Purves won from R. R. Mamlok of Fox Hills by six and five. In the consolation, J. D. Plummer of Springfield disposed of T. T. Rushmore of Garden City in a hot match, which a putt on the home green decided. Plummer plays George C. Dutton of Belmont to-morrow.

New York is sure of two trophies in the second division. W. R. Hotchkin of Montclair and W. W. Manning of Upper Montclair will play for the division prizes, and C. A. Speakman of Siwanoy will be the opponent of S. K. Evans of Knollwood in the consolation.

In the third division consolation, Harry D. Cashman of Forest Hills will play F. A. Sperry of Westward Ho. In the fourth division, C. W. Harmon of Wykagyl will oppose C. W. Yates of Glen Ridge, while E. C. Kavanaugh of New York will play S. L. Allen of Moorestown in the consolation. New York is out of the fifth and sixth divisions.

Foursomes, with the contestants wearing Scotch Tam o' Shanters, were a novel ovation of the day, net score prizes being offered in two classes. J. J. Hazen of Oakland, paired with W. J. MacDonald of Calumet, won Class A, with a card of 82—3—79. In B Class, F. S. Voss of Dunwoodie and J. S. Rowe of Hartford, Dr. A. R. Gardner of Dunwoodie, and R. C. Wilsen of Marion, returned scores of 96—10—86 and 95—9—86.

W. Burkhard led the distance running pack which started from Bronx Church House last night in the weekly five-mile handicap, and, with his allowance of 1 minute 45 seconds, was an easy winner in the elapsed time of 27:41. D. Field, from the limit mark of 3 minutes 25 seconds, was second, while H. Cameron, from the 1-minute mark, just beat George Soons, the scratch man, for third position. W. Welsh, 1 minute, and F. Columbia to Race Syracuse.

Columbia University will enter a relay team to compete against the Syracuse four at the Boston Athletic Association games to be held in Boston on Feb. 7. So far this is the only date which has been named for the Columbia quartet. The one-mile championship race at the Columbia indoor games will in all probability be the only other race in which the team will compete.

YALE'S NEW COACH GETS BIG SEND-OFF

The New York Athletic Club paid a high tribute to Eugene J. Giannini, for the last twenty years physical instructor and rowing coach of the club, and who has been engaged by Yale University as rowing coach, last night, when he was the guest of honor at a banquet held in the large dining room of the clubhouse, Fifty-ninth Street and Sixth Avenue.

Over 150 of Giannini's personal friends in the club attended the affair, and, besides the many complimentary things said about the old athlete and of his ability in teaching the various kinks in the many games he excelled in when he was a competing amateur, he received an elaborate gold medal from the Governors of the New York Athletic Club and a full chest of table silverware from the other members of the club. This present was decided on as the most appropriate under the circumstances, because "Gene's" engagement to Miss M. Higgins has been announced and the wedding will take place in a few months.

The newly elected President of the club, William H. Page, presided at the raised table, and others on the dais were Harry Buermeyer, ex-Supreme Court Justice Bartow S. Weeks, Frederick S. Allen of Yale's Athletic Board, ex-United States Minister to the Argentine Republic Charles H. Sherrill, who was Captain of the club for seven years; Evert Jansen Wendell, Harvard, '82, and T. Gerrisch, Harvard, '85, who all spoke in the highest terms of the guest of the evening and congratulated Yale on procuring his services.

One of the hits of the musical feature of the dinner was a song composed by a member of the club, the first verse and chorus of which follow:

Air of "So Long Mary."

  Godspeed to Gene,
  (Chorus.) To Giannini.
To the New York Athletic Club a loyal son
  he's been.
  (Chorus.) Our Giannini.
As a member he was staunch and true,
Number Six upon the "Chippie" Crew;
In feats of strength he was famous, too,
And brought our club renown.

(Chorus.)

So long, "Gene!" Oh, "Gene," we will miss you so;
Yale has got you,
To New Haven you will go,
But we will all be rooting for "Old Eli"
  and our "Gene";
He'll give Yale the best crews she has ever

Nickalls Accepts Yale Crew Position

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 15.—Announcement was made to-day that Guy Nickalls, the old Oxford oarsman and coach of the London crew, has cabled his formal acceptance of the offer to assist in coaching the Yale crews. He is expected to arrive here early in February, and will remain with the oarsmen until the annual regatta with Harvard in June. Eugene F. Giannini, rowing coach of the New York Athletic Club, will come here either to-morrow or Saturday, and commence active work in training the sweep swingers.

Columbia Crew Rally To-day.

The necessity of holding rallies to get Columbia University students out for crew practice is apparent in the announcement made there yesterday of a mass meeting to be held in Earl Hall at noon to-day to stir up interest in the sport. Although ninety men have promised to come out for the 'Varsity and freshman crews, only two-thirds of that number have reported to Coach Rice, and drastic measures are now being planned to get the men out.

American Curlers Win at Duluth.

DULUTH, Minn., Jan. 15.—The American curling squad won the international trophy, feature of the bonspiel, here last night, winning from the Canadian rinks, according to scores announced to-day, 67 to 63. The famous Langtry Rink of Winnipeg lost to the Brower Rink of Duluth, 6 to 16, and the McNabb Rink of Grand Rapids, Mich., won a close contest from the Lowes of Winnipeg, 8 to 7. The McNabbs of Grand Rapids downed the Stevensons of Superior, 13 to 3, in the "Duluth event" to-day.

Stoddard Not a Polo Candidate.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 15.—Major Louis E. Stoddard of this city, who played No. 2 on the polo team that defeated England last year, announces that he will not be a candidate for the team this year. Mr. Stoddard's wife died last month.

Cathedral Midgets Beat Fordham.

The Midget five of Cathedral College administered the first defeat of the season to the Fordham Prep. basket ball team on the home court yesterday by the score of 22 to 13.

SQUASH IN CLUB COURTS.

Harvard and Heights Casino Defeat Princeton and Columbia.

Harvard and Heights Casino overwhelmed Princeton and Columbia, respectively, at squash tennis yesterday in the interclub tournament. Playing on their own courts the Crimson racquet wielders won four games to one, while at Brooklyn the local players downed the Blue and White team six games out of seven. Harvard used all second string men, while the only player on the Heights Casino team to meet defeat was A. J. Cordier, the national handicap champion, who lost his match in straight sets by the scores of 15—8, 17—14.

In the series between the Crimson and Orange and Black teams W. P. Sanger was the only Harvard player to fall before his opponent. S. H. Bird won from Sanger after two hard matches 18—16, 15—10. The first set was nip and tuck throughout and deuce was called at 15—all. Bird succeeded in adding the necessary points to give him the victory. The second set was also evenly contested during the early stages, but Sanger appeared to tire near the end and Bird won. The only three-set match was between G. F. Waterbury, Harvard, and St. Little, Princeton. Waterbury lost the first set after a hard tussle by the score of 15—17, but rallied in the next two sets and tallied thirty games, while Little put together but 8. D. Phelps scored an easy victory over K. G. Stern, but J. Taylor gave J. Corbett a stiff argument before the latter could claim a victory by the score of 18—16, 15—5.

One of the most interesting matches in the Brooklyn courts was between the old tennis rivals, C. M. Bull, Jr., Heights Casino, and Lyle E. Mahan, Columbia. The latter outplayed his opponent in the first set after the score had reached 13—all, but in the next two sets the local representative was seen at his best, and the match proved easy for Bull. The contest between R. Goepel, Heights Casino, and R. Putnam, Columbia, proved a long drawn-out affair. Seventy-nine games were played, of which Goepel won 40 and Putnam 39. The easy manner in which the Columbia player won the first game indicated a victory for him, but Goepel rallied, and, after determined opposition, won the next two sets and match. The summaries:

HARVARD vs. PRINCETON.

S. H. Bird, Princeton, defeated W. P. Sanger, Harvard, 18—16, 15—10; J. W. Burden, Harvard, defeated H. M. McCoy, Princeton, by default; G. F. Waterbury, Harvard, defeated H. Little, Princeton, 15—17, 15—2, 15—6; D. F. Phelps, Harvard, defeated K. G. Stern, Princeton, 15—5, 15—1; J. Corbett, Harvard, defeated J. Taylor, Princeton, 18—16, 15—5.

HEIGHTS CASINO vs. COLUMBIA.

C. M. Bull, Jr., Heights Casino, defeated Lyle E. Mahan, Columbia, 13—15, 15—10; 15—2; J. L. Lowe, Heights Casino, defeated H. G. Bulkeley, Columbia, 15—7, 15—9; Mr. Boyesen, Columbia, defeated A. J. Cordier, Heights Casino, 15—8, 17—14; J. H. Williams, Heights Casino, defeated H. S. Keeler, Columbia, 15—11, 17—15; R. Goepel, Heights Casino, defeated R. Putnam, Columbia, 7—15, 18—14, 15—11; George Abbott, Heights Casino, defeated M. L. Cornell, Columbia, 15—8, 15—3; R. E. T. Riggs, Heights Casino, defeated Arthur L. Marvin, Columbia, 15—4, 15—11.

TOM REILLY N. Y. U. COACH.

Alumnus of University to Take the Place of Jake High in Football.

That alumni coaching will prevail at New York University as far as football is concerned became known last night, when action to that end was taken with the appointment of Tom Reilly, 1905, who was made head coach for next year, with Rudie Gorsch, 1911, the assistant. Reilly, therefore, displaces Jake High, the Brown man, whose work of last year for the New York University eleven was generally commended.

Reilly has acted as one of the coaches at New York University for the last four years without pay, while Gorsch prepped the Erasmus High School team which showed so prominently a couple of years ago. It was stated that alumni influence is responsible for the change in the coaching system, although it is generally conceded that no criticism can be expressed in regard to High's work, which is admitted to have been first class in view of the material with which he had to do.

High has got out the largest squads that have ever been seen at New York University, and further than that he kept them out throughout the season, thereby strengthening affairs for a succeeding season.

New Officers for Hudson B. C.

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Hudson Boat Club was held last night at the clubhouse, when the Secretary's report showed the club to be in good financial standing and the membership near the limit mark. The Minstrel Committee has arranged to hold a show the latter part of next month. Capt. Kunz is planning for an active season. He intends getting a junior eight out for Decoration Day, and many members have already started training to get in the boat. Harry Norman, the club champion, has been training hard all Winter, and expects to show great form on the water this Summer. The officers elected follow: M. E. Robinson, President; C. E. Connolly, Vice President; G. S. Higgins, Sr., Treasurer; H. B. Norman, Financial Secretary; C. E. Lewis, Secretary; George Kunz, Captain; T. Cunneen, First Lieutenant Captain; J. Aspell, Second Lieutenant Captain. Board of Directors: N. Kunz, H. Cherman, C. Lewis, J. Hessler, D. Montagnon, G. Hessler, and W. Becker.

Gymnasts at Brooklyn Y. M. C. A.

Unusual interest centres around the joint New York University and Bedford Y. M. C. A. exhibition of gymnastics to-morrow night. Coach John Bissinger, ex-world's champion, and Paul Krimmel, holder of the 1912 North American Turner championship, will both be seen in action in addition to the two teams. The Y. M. C. A. team, under the leadership of Capt. S. J. Marvin, is working to master the fancy turns, and their fellow-gymnasts are enthusiastic over their fine form. The college team, which is being trained by Mr. Bissinger, is also rounding out into excellent condition. The programme will include a Swedish gymnastic drill by the Y. M. C. A. boys, a wrestling bout by the A. A. U. national 135-pound champion, Eli Hallikman, and partner, and gymnastic work on the horizontal bar, side horse, parallel bars, flying rings, and Indian clubs.

Basket Ball Player Has Appendicitis

Through the illness of E. H. Sisson, Dartmouth College will lose the services of its star forward on the Green basket ball five. Sisson was stricken with appendicitis last Saturday night after the Princeton-Dartmouth game at Princeton, and had to be operated on at the General Hospital at Hanover, N. H., on Monday, where he is recovering. The loss of Sisson is a blow to Dartmouth's prospects in the intercollegiate basket ball series.

PLAN TO INCREASE JERSEY AUTO FEES

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 15.—If the Legislature looks with favor upon the suggestion contained in the annual report of State Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Job H. Lippincott, made public here to-day, New Jersey will have a practical method for increasing its revenue. Not only will the scheme provide more money for the maintenance of the State's roads, but it will afford funds to be devoted to other purposes.

Mr. Lippincott says the increasing need of money for the purpose of repairing roads makes it important that there should be more revenue derived from the licensing of motor vehicles. His recommendation is that the present schedule of fees be repealed and that 60 cents per horse power be charged for all registrations, unless automobiles are exempted from personal taxation, when he would advise that the fee be about $1 more a horse power.

At present the charge is $4.50 for horse power up to ten, $7.50 from ten to twenty-nine, and $15 for thirty or more. He says the new schedule would insure a revenue to the State of $1,500,000, as against about $750,000 for the coming year.

The report shows that a total of $72,781.68 was in bank to the credit of the department at the close of business on Dec. 31; that the total receipts of the department during the year were $661,446.31, as against $496,653.35 in 1912. Fines collected amounted to $21,285.31, as against $15,136 for 1912. There were 49,588 automobile licenses issued, as compared with 43,919 the previous year; 8,419 motor cycle registrations, as against 6,188 in 1912; 55,246 drivers' permits, as against 51,145 for last year.

Commissioner Lippincott recommends the compulsory reporting of accidents by owners or drivers, establishment of a traffic commission to formulate road rules, police power for inspectors, increasing of the number of special inspectors to thirty, uniformity of laws and policies between States, enactment of a law for the licensing of motor buses, and regulation of searchlights and prohibition of the use of muffler cut-outs.

Commenting upon the apparent existence of an organized band of motor vehicle thieves, Mr. Lippincott says:

"There would seem to be a system informally organized in the cities of New York and Philadelphia for the purpose of stealing and disposing of automobiles. The ramifications of this system have extended into the State of New Jersey, and at the present time some of our best men are engaged in a comprehensive investigation of this matter. With the co-operation of the authorities of New York City, it is believed that this gang of automobile thieves can be completely broken up, and, what is more important, that the receivers of stolen goods, a number of whom we have reason to believe are located in New Jersey, will be forever retired from business, prosecuted, and sent to State prison.

1913 AUTO REGISTRATIONS.

A tabulation of the automobile registrations by counties for 1913, together with the fees paid for automobile licenses, was issued yesterday by the Secretary of State's office. It shows that a total of 118,477 pleasure cars and 13,780 commercial cars were licensed in this State last year. Chauffeurs to the number of 56,702 were licensed, and the State collected from all these sources $1,275,727.27. The county tabulation follows.

To demonstrate that cyclecars were practical for use over difficult roads and in bad weather, a Falcon cyclecar has just been driven from Cleveland, Ohio, to Staunton, Va., about 1,000 miles, over roads of many sorts, some of them cumbered with heavy snow. The trip took ten days.

DRISCOLL KNOCKED OUT.

After several unsuccessful attempts, Jim Flynn, the Pueblo Fireman, has scored a knockout in New York. His victim was Jack Driscoll, the Brooklyn light heavyweight, who lasted less than six rounds before Flynn last night at the Atlantic Garden A. C. Flynn, however, did not have an easy time in accomplishing his object, as he took enough punishment to beat any ordinary boxer, but he tore in regardless of the jabs and uppercuts of his opponent with one object in view, and this he succeeded in only after putting his opponent down six times for the count of nine. Driscoll took his punishment gamely, and after being knocked unconscious in the sixth round when he was revived he broke away from his seconds in his corner and wanted to continue the contest.

It was a slugging contest from the start. Each man carried a punch stiff enough to end the contest in the event of the owner being able to get it over successfully. Flynn bore in and worked havoc on Driscoll's wind and jaw with his short left jolts and hooks. He rocked Driscoll's head from one side to the other and drew blood from the nose and mouth. The Brooklyn fighter kept after his man and refused to break ground. He groaned under the avalanche of smashes, but was always ready to renew the hostilities with the lingering hope of reaching some weak spot in Flynn's defense.

The Western heavyweight put Driscoll down for the count of nine in the second round with a left to the jaw. As the Brooklyn man arose he received another hard blow on the same spot and went down again. The gong saved him, and he was helpless as he was dragged to his corner, where he fell off his chair. From this point he was a beaten man, although he gamely tried to stave off the inevitable. Flynn was desperate in the sixth round, when he waded in with [illegible]dy blows, which took all the fight out of Driscoll. When Flynn drove a piston rod like blow in the stomach Driscoll was unable to respond at the call of time.

YAMADA LEADS CUTLER.

Japanese Billiardist Passes Bostonian in 14.1 Game.

Koji Yamada, after being in the ruck during the first two games, pulled up on even terms with Albert Cutler of Boston last night when he won his second victory over the Bostonian in their five-block match at 14.1 balkline billiards at Doyle's Academy. The Jap made his start on Wednesday, when he scored his first victory, and further strengthened his chances by winning yesterday, leaving the men tied at two blocks all. The score was Yamada, 500, and Cutler, 408, and to-day will witness the playing of the rubber contest which will decide the first winner of the new style game.

The uphill work of the Oriental has been the sensation of the last two games, for in the first and second contests the Bostonian appeared to have the edge on his opponent and ran what appeared a commanding lead. He was 100 points in the lead at the conclusion of the second block, but the persistent work of the Jap showed its effect, and he now leads in the aggregate score 1,921 to 1,874.

In the afternoon game Yamada emerged the winner over the Bostonian 200 to 173, running out his tally in twenty-five innings for an average of 8, and in the evening contest was again the winner, 300 to 235, in twenty-seven innings, for an average of 8 19-27. Cutler's averages were 7 19-25 and 10 20-28, respectively. The scores:

Poggenburg Loses Again.

A handicap of 100 points proved too much for Ferdinand Poggenburg of the Amateur Billiard Club to overcome last night, and as a result he received his second defeat in his handicap match at 18.2 balkline billiards at Maurice Daly's Billiard Academy, Forty-ninth Street and Broadway. Poggenburg's opponent was C. Conners, and the latter tallied his necessary 200 points in thirty-four innings while Poggenburg scored 234. Under the conditions of the match the latter is required to tally 300 points in each block of the match in order to win, while his opponent must make only 200. Poggenburg's total for the two nights of play is 447, and in order to win the match he must score 463 points in the final block this evening.

Matthews Wins Close Billiard Game.

Morin Wins Billiard Game.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 15.—Charles R. Morin of Chicago defeated William R. Cullen of Buffalo in an interstate three-cushion billiard game here to-night by a score of 50 to 43. Morin's high run was 8.

Boxer Racer Recovering.

RACINE, Wis., Jan. 15.—Jack Racer, a welterweight fighter from Davenport, Iowa, who was rendered unconscious after being struck several blows in a fight with Barney Richter last night, is out of danger. Racer was revived in the ring, but later lapsed into a semi-conscious condition, and was taken to a hospital. It was at first believed he was seriously injured.

THE ARMY-MILITIA PLAN.

In spite of the provision of the Dick law, under which the National Guard is controlled by the Federal Government, to the effect that the militia might be called upon by the President to serve either within or without the territory of the United States, Attorney General WICKERSHAM was of the opinion that the President has no Constitutional right to send State soldiers into a foreign country with an army of occupation. By the terms of the new bill, to be introduced in the present Congress, the National Guard will constitute a fighting force to invade a foreign country. The bill has been prepared under the eye of Secretary GARRISON, after consultation with the militia Adjutants General lately in conference in Washington, and is designed to supersede the Volunteer Army bill now before the Senate. It revives the plan of payment of the National Guardsmen, which was buried in committee in the last session, and puts into form the Secretary of War's ideas of developing from the present National Guard system an effective reserve force in case of trouble. In his annual message to the President Mr. GARRISON took a gloomy view of the present efficiency of the State soldiery as an adjunct to the regular army. He believes that the nation should pay the militia for the sake of securing greater jurisdiction over it. He demands an increase of the numbers of the militia from 120,000 to 250,000 men.

New York State's National Guard now comprises, approximately, 16,500 men; its full strength under the existing conditions would be about 18,000, while if the new Militia bill passes the required force in this State will not be much under 40,000. This indicates the radical change in the composition of the National Guard which the War Department now favors, and, in view of the feeling in Washington that the new bill will be passed in the present session without much opposition, the matter demands serious and prompt consideration. The cost of the proposed new system to the Federal Government would be about $8,000,000 yearly; its extra cost to the people of each of the States would be appreciable. If it is difficult to fill out a quota of 18,000 officers and men, how much more difficult it will be to meet the requirements of the new plan.

We must have an army reserve, of course, and doubtless the efficiency of the State troops can be greatly increased, but if Gen. WOOD's plan of a two years' term of enlistment for the regular army had been adopted, as it should have been three years ago, we would now be in the way of having trained reserves to draw upon. The demand for a large increase of the militia will place a burden on some of the States, in spite of the payment of small sums for service by the War Department, that they may feel unable to bear. Therefore it is obvious that the plan calls for enlightening debate.

THE PRESIDENT'S 'DISPLEASURE.'

It is reported that President WILSON is exceedingly displeased with the attempt in the House to turn over the places of all the Assistant Postmasters to the spoilsmen through a rider to the Post Office Appropriation bill. He has not deemed it necessary to announce in advance that he will veto the bill to kill the rider—though he would be amply justified in doing so—but his views on the subject have been communicated to the committee in charge of the bill by Postmaster General BURLESON, who, we understand, condemns the purpose of the amendment.

We are not surprised that the President should take note in time of the extremely dangerous movement that is on foot in his party in Congress to break down the merit system and to fasten on the Wilson Administration the indelible stain of submission to the spoilsmen. He has, as we conceive, already shown far too great patience with the first steps in this movement. The exemption from the legal tests of appointees to be Deputy Collectors was bad, but it remained true that the President could, if he would, cancel that exemption. The exemption of the Deputy Marshals was ingeniously devised to evade his control. As to the Assistant Postmasters, they were to be taken entirely away from his influence and made completely subservient to the spoilsmen. The President could not tamely submit to such an impudent assault upon the principle he professes and upon the powers granted him by law without both humiliation and serious injury to his prestige, and, indeed, to his reputation for sincerity.

There is little reason to doubt that the spoils raiders will ultimately listen to the protests made in behalf of the President. If not, nothing could be more right and more safe for him than to come to an open issue with them. He could not, in fact, surrender to them without irreparable disaster.

DR. BIGGS'S APPOINTMENT.

Gov. GLYNN cannot be too highly praised for his choice of Dr. HERMANN M. BIGGS as State Commissioner of Health. Dr. BIGGS's work as a bacteriologist has given him an international reputation, and the methods he has applied in executing the policies of the Health Board of New York City have been copied in the chief cities of the world. As Chairman of the State Public Health Council, created last year under what was called the "most advanced health statute in the country," he has already begun the work of doing for the State at large, in the way of sanitary regulation, what the Health Department here has done for this city.

The Public Health Council has sweeping powers. It can enact a sanitary code with a view to cleaning up the rural districts wherein the death rate is now higher than the death rate in the crowded chief city. As State Commissioner of Health Dr. BIGGS will now have large control in bringing about salutary reforms.

THE GOVERNMENT'S ALASKA RAILWAY.

The House Naval Affairs Committee performs a useful service in making it possible to test statements made in debate in the Senate regarding the construction of a railway by the Government in Alaska by comparison with the facts as to the usefulness of the railway after construction. The argument of Senators is that the railway would save its cost in reduction of the navy's bills for coal. The freight on 300,000 tons of coal comes to $1,500,000, and it would be better to pay that money as interest on the railway to the coal fields. Those objecting to the proposal are worse than malefactors. They are pirates, seeking to make for themselves the profits Senators patriotically propose to make for the Government. The opposition might cease if Senators would guarantee anything. They do not guarantee that the railway can be built for the money, and they are prudent not to do so before the surveys are made. They do not guarantee that the $1,500,000 freights will not be lessened after the opening of the Panama Canal, and the basis of the proposal is thereby weakened at the foundation. They do not guarantee that the coal will be mined after the railway is built, and they do not guarantee the price of the coal if it should be mined. They do not include in the cost of the railway the cost of the fleet of steamships which is necessary to make the railway fully useful. They do not seem to have taken the trouble to ascertain the quality of the coal which they irresponsibly rate so highly.

While this debate was proceeding Admiral GRIFFIN of the Naval Steam Engineering Department was testifying before the House Naval Committee that Alaskan coal from the Bering River district was not desirable for naval use. Six hundred tons picked for quality was carried by dog sleds to Puget Sound and burned in the furnaces of the revenue cruiser Maryland. It showed 71 per cent. of the efficiency of ordinary coal, and the Maryland could not maintain the cruising speed which she makes with ease when using Pocahontas coal. The difficulty was that the thermal units shown by chemical analysis could not be developed in practice, because of clinkers and products of combustion which clogged the drafts. Another test will be made with coal from another Alaskan field, and the navy has hopes, which, if they are disappointed, will end the experiments.

Nobody opposes the development of Alaska, either by mining coal or building railways. The only objection is to involving the Government in trade risks such as are unsuitable for Governments. It is not well to entangle the Government credit with business undertakings. A Government's credit is its most precious possession and needs guarding like other treasures. The theory of those pressing Government undertakings to a total of a billion dollars in concrete proposals actually pending, and a score of billions in projects less advanced, is that the Government credit is indestructible.

Why should such risks be run if private capital is willing? A prudent first step might be to take off the mileage tax of $100 a mile of main line on Alaskan railways, and to make laws enabling a profit as well as safeguarding the public interests. Experts say that roads should precede railways, and might be an acceptable substitute for them for a long time. The Government or the private railways would then grow up with the country, and not be built prematurely and on a basis of extravagant hopes. Removal of obstacles would promote the prospects of Alaska better than extravagant appropriations.

NEW YORK MORE CIVILIZED THAN BOSTON.

New Yorkers long ago ceased to feel humiliated, or even vexed, when their city was pointed to as a terrible example, as a sink of political iniquity, and as the seeding ground and harvest field of the powers of evil. They knew that New York was not only a great city, but a good city. They felt sure that some time folks would find it out. Our virtues are discovered at last. The Springfield Republican perhaps transcends our hopes, but certainly not our merits in the comparative study, here reprinted, which it has made of the political habits of New York and Boston:

> For some reason, Boston fails to get Mayors in the same class with New York Mayors. For a dozen years the Mayors of New York have been high-grade men—men of natural ability, experience in affairs, and unsullied public character. A city can be proud of itself when it elects in succession a SETH LOW, a MCCLELLAN, a GAYNOR, and a MITCHEL. The office of Mayor of New York is a big one, but New York seems to have acquired the habit of placing in it men who measure up very well to the requirements of the position.
> It is futile, if not ridiculous, to compare Boston's Mayors of recent years with the New York Mayors of recent years. Tammany itself, the most berated political machine in America, that is to say, in the world, gave to the city MCCLELLAN and GAYNOR; and the Democratic Party has given to it MCCLELLAN, GAYNOR, and MITCHEL, if the fact be taken into account that in national affairs all three have been Democrats. It is no more than the truth to say that, since the days of Mayor VAN WYCK, either Mr. FITZGERALD or Mr. CURLEY, Boston's first choices for her highest honor, would have been impossible in New York. Mr. HIBBARD, the last Republican Mayor of Boston, was far below the later New York standard in natural ability and grasp of public affairs; he would scarcely have been considered as a fusion candidate for the city's chief executive office, even if he had already been Postmaster there.
> Boston has an enormous percentage of "foreign" population, but so has New York. Boston has a powerful and aggressive liquor interest in politics, but so has New York. Boston has unscrupulous public service corporations and financial overlords seeking favors or special privilege from the City Government, but so has New York. Boston has vice and crime to contend with, but so has New York. Boston is weighted with the civic indifference of some of her citizenship, but so is New York. Boston has lost to the suburban cities as residents a large number of middle class people still doing business in town, but so has New York. Every handicap Boston has can be paralleled in the case of New York, and there you are. Why, then, the difference?
> It is difficult to think of a single reason except that, of the two cities today, New York is the more civilized. In civic and political conscience New York has Boston beaten, let us say, "to a frazzle."

We have always held the opinion that The Springfield Republican was an uncommonly enlightened newspaper. If now some of our esteemed contemporaries in the West and South would undertake a candid examination of New York as a financial centre and would have the courage to put before their readers a true picture of Wall Street, the people in those large areas of this fair land in which Mr. TILLMAN's cow was supposed to find pasturage would get a more just and sane idea of the character and the deeds of men who do business in or near that thoroughfare.

THE FIREMEN.

As usual, when the cold spell was at its worst and the temperature was below zero and falling, the number of fire alarms in this city greatly increased. Within twelve hours there were thirty-five alarms, and a dozen or more of these entailed upon the firemen much more hardship than mere exposure to the severest weather known in this neighborhood in many years, and fire-fighting under the most difficult conditions, with water freezing in the hose pipes and the frozen spray blinding and chilling them. Men, women, and children were carried down icy ladders by the firemen and no lives were lost.

It is well to dwell a little on the courage, devotion, and perfect discipline of this force while the wintry weather is still upon us. We are proud of our firemen, of course, and are all willing to admit that we do very little from year to year to make their tasks less difficult. New York is renowned now, as it always has been, as a city of many fires. In the matter of fire prevention we seem to be incapable of learning much from experience. But in our most sympathetic moods we do not realize the full extent of the hardship and peril of the fireman's life. The description of the fire fighters' experiences in the twelve hours between midnight Tuesday and noon Wednesday brings forcibly before our minds the fact that the age of sturdy heroism is not passed.

THE FEARS OF GREECE.

It is a curious commentary on the relative futility of the terrible sacrifices made in the double war of the Near East that Greece, which seemed to have gained most from the struggle, should now be praying the Powers to defend her from the aggressions of Turkey. When the treaty of "peace" with Turkey, approved by the Conference of Ambassadors at London, was signed, the increase in territory for Greece was estimated at 56,000 square kilometers, and the increase in population at 1,900,000. This was nearly as much as had been gained by Bulgaria and Servia combined. The losses in killed and wounded were estimated at 68,000, about the same as those of Servia and less than half those of Bulgaria. Meanwhile Turkey had lost 124,000 square kilometers of territory and nearly 4,000,000 of population. The statesmen in the European capitals were speculating on how long it would be before Turkey broke up and on the future progress of Greece. To-day Turkey is menacing Greece and M. VENIZELOS is making the rounds of the European Chancelleries, seeking friendly intervention. Surely the whirligig of Time has brought its revenges swiftly.

Probably the Greek Premier will ultimately get what he is seeking. Germany, which has secured much influence in Turkey and has obtained an important part in the development of its army, will hardly countenance aggression toward Greece, which would be conducted chiefly by means of the navy, where the influence of England is predominant. Great Britain is sincerely interested in the postponement to the latest possible date of any new conflict in the Near East, and Russia is still more so, wishing time to develop the diplomatic advantages she now possesses. Italy can have no desire to see the power with which she has just closed a costly and successful contest strengthened in the Aegean and in the Mediterranean and the strength of Greece diminished. That the countries and races which have been fighting each other in the Balkan Peninsula have reached a stable relation with each other cannot at all be assumed, but it is not likely that their equilibrium, unstable as it must be, will be seriously disturbed at present. The strain of the last fifteen months has been very great and costly, not only to the nations immediately involved but for all Europe. It is a fair inference that Turkey will not be allowed to provoke a renewal of it.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Magnificent Work of Rescue.

Sufficiently thrilling stories of rescues from sinking or burning ships far from land have been printed recently, and in several there were displays of skill and courage that well entitled the rescuers to be called heroic. It is with no intention to detract from their fame that one notes the saving of the Cobequid's passengers and crew as a more difficult, more dangerous, and therefore greater achievement than were any of those performed in the open sea.

The conditions, in fact, were about the worst possible for rendering assistance. The little vessels that gave it had to contend with the swirling currents of the Bay of Fundy, to do it while a furious Winter storm was not far from at its height, and the scene of operation was just where the perils were greatest—close to the reef on which the Cobequid had grounded and almost as close to one of the cruelest coasts in the world. While they remained there the rescuing steamers themselves were in hardly less danger than the object of their solicitude, and none could know this better than did those who had so promptly answered the Royal Mail boat's faint and despairing call.

They rear and train real sailors up in that region, however—men who learn seamanship of the old-fashioned sort in the hard school of Grand Banks fishing, and in that at least as hard of running small steamers from one port to another in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. What they do not know about storms and fogs and reefs, and how to conquer them, is not known by anybody. They pay a dreadful price for the teaching every year, since they belong to a class that has come to view death by drowning as what might be called the "natural" ending of every man's career. At any rate it is, and for generations has been, the end for many of them, and how any escape it is a wonder to every occasional observer of that coast and the weather common there. Magnificent harbors are numerous along that coast, but to get into them is often a task requiring a special and mysterious ability, and the penalty of the slightest mistake is disaster, usually fatal.

Perhaps the rescued earned as much admiration as the rescuers. The sufferings of the former must have been almost intolerable, but there is no hint that they were not borne with calm fortitude, and the conduct of Capt. HAWSON, his officers, and crew was evidently perfect. There was nothing to forget or conceal about this wreck.

A Proposal Full of Interest.

Quite the most exciting of the many rumors as to the identity of our next Police Commissioner is the latest, which allots the place to JOHN C. GROOME. He is the man who created and now rules the Pennsylvania Constabulary, a body of soldier-policemen hardly less famous and not less efficient than the one it most nearly resembles, the Northwest Mounted Police of Canada.

Major GROOME is a man who appeals to the imagination. Born to wealth and high social standing, he has chosen to live laborious days in the service of the public. When disorder and lawlessness had come to be the normal condition in the coal fields of his State, when politics and murder were in congenial partnership there, and when crimes of violence hardly ever led to prosecution and almost never to punishment except as summary vengeance inflicted by other criminals, the task of restoring and maintaining order was intrusted to him. He very promptly performed it, and with not less of tact than of firmness and courage.

The police in the mining towns were in many cases worse than useless; they were selected from the class against which they were supposed to give protection, and usually they sympathized with and assisted in perpetuating the reign of terror. The idea that Major GROOME's constables could change established conditions excited smiles at first, but the smiles soon gave way to seriousness, for when the men with the long clubs rode into one of the mining towns, the old intimidations and influences were found to be no longer trustworthy and "due process of law" became the rule, not the exception.

The Major's greatest triumph, perhaps, has been, not the repression of riot, but the exclusion of politics from the selection and management of his men. That he is tactful as well as firm is shown plainly enough by the fact that he has retained his position year after year in spite of refusing to give either patronage or service to the politicians who expected both of him and were accustomed to displace officials of the unaccommodating and indocile sort.

There seems to be no large likelihood that Major GROOME would come here even if the place of Police Commissioner were offered him. Certainly he would not except on conditions as to independence and authority which we are unwonted to grant. And inevitably there would be against him as an "outsider" the same outcry that welcomed Col. WARING. But if he should come, the experiences of gangdom would be full of interest and excitement.

Wanderers Return Disappointed.

Those much-discussed American farmers who began to cross the line into Upper Canada in such numbers a few years ago were no great loss, and if, as reported, they are now returning about as fast as they went, it is no great gain.

They are, to be sure, a sturdy and enterprising lot, with many admirable qualities—potentially the best of citizens, in short—but their theory of agriculture is deplorably unsound, and that they will ever accept and practice a better one is highly dubious.

They deserted us because they were miners rather than farmers, and because the supply of new land here for them ruthlessly to exploit was about exhausted. They went where they could repeat the reckless operation, but the harder climatic conditions of Canada or the greater distance from markets prevented them from making the expected quick profits.

Meanwhile the acres which they had robbed and reduced to worthlessness—for themselves—have for the most part been taken up by farmers of another sort and are producing crops far larger than ever before.

Wholesale Price of Bananas.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A cargo of bananas consists usually of four different grades of fruit, such as six hands to the bunch, seven hands to the bunch, eight hands to the bunch, and nine hands to the bunch. In some cases the nines do realize $1.50 per bunch in the good season and the other grades, sixes, sevens, and eights, in proportion, but at no time has there ever been a cargo that sold for an average of $1.50 per bunch. Prices that prevail at present at public auction are: Six hands, about 20 cents per bunch; sevens, about 30 cents; eights, about 40 cents, and nines, about 50 cents to 60 cents.

While the cost of bananas looks reasonable at the point of shipment, one must add the freight to bring such bananas to New York, which averages from 15 cents to 25 cents per stem, and to this must be added the usual expense of unloading the cargo in New York plus the port charges and wharfage, and the profits are not what your correspondent thinks they are, nor anything near them. In fact, during four or five months of the year the banana is imported and sold at a loss in New York City. Many of the importers would prefer to stop the business during this season, but as ships are hired by the year and fruit contracted for a number of years this commodity must be moved regardless of weather conditions or prices in the United States.

J. J. CUNEO.

Jersey City, N. J., Jan. 14, 1914.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In answer to "Fairplay" in respect to the difference in price between Jamaica and New York on bananas, consideration must be given to port charges, loading expense, freight charges, unloading expense, selling and loss of fruit in transit. After this has been done his attention is directed to the fact that the 32.3 cents is the amount per stem and not per bunch.

J. W. BEALL.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

When I read in a recent issue of THE TIMES a list of the one hundred neediest cases that applied for charity to three leading charity organizations, I was deeply impressed with the fact that about 50 per cent. of the families involved were each dependent upon a widow for support. I believe we ought to establish, either privately through some philanthropic institution, or publicly, a live and efficient Widows' Employment Bureau, whose sole function it should be to procure immediate and proper employment for all widows who may desire it. A good illustration of such employment is manifest on the elevated lines in Brooklyn, where on a number of stations the ticket agents are women.

An efficient and wide-awake bureau should be able to make negotiations with a number of business firms whereby positions of a quality similar to those on the Brooklyn elevated lines would be offered to widows exclusively. The humanitarian trend of modern business, as recently expressed by the Ford Automobile Company and other organizations, should be an aid in the quick realization of the above suggestion.

HYMAN L. ROTH.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a communication appearing in this morning's TIMES Edwin G. Lawrence asserts his belief in the efficacy of prayer, "even though the object to which the prayer is addressed is merely an 'energy,' because prayer is an expression of a desire, and if one firmly desires a certain thing to come to pass he will surely do all in his power to hasten its coming."

This may all be very true, but nevertheless, in the humble opinion of the present writer, those who adduce the argument that prayer is useful in its reflex action upon the mind simply commit a pious evasion. This is certainly not prayer in a reasonable sense of the term, since the very act of worship involves belief in a special, personal providence, regardless of what name may be employed to designate the latter. It seems a little insincere, to say the least, for one who does not believe in divine intervention to implore a deity—or "energy," if you please—that is conceived of as being impersonal, to grant that which (if it comes at all) must come by the operation of natural laws.

National Academy's Art Exhibit.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Harking back to the subject of lack of space to hang pictures of artists in the National Academy of Design, so pathetically set forth by President Anderson, how does it happen that thirty-nine of the exhibitors at the Academy have two pictures each on the walls? See catalogues. Out of 250 that is rather a large ratio, isn't it? If only one space had been allowed these favored thirty-nine, thirty-nine painters who didn't get in at all for lack of space might have had some show, mightn't they? How is it, anyhow?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Why should a pedestrian "keep to the right"? The City of New York has no such ordinance, no such rule is taught in the public schools, high schools or colleges, no police officer has authority to enforce an unwritten law—and no woman would observe it. Rather than buck the streams of students of Wadleigh High School, Townsend Harris Hall, and the College of the City of New York I walk in the carriageway.

BARNARD'S GROWTH

Shows Young Women Incline Toward "Liberal" Studies.

We hear a great deal to-day about the development of "vocational" at the expense of "liberal" education. There is also at work, however, a striking tendency in favor of "liberal" training. Any one who closely observes the professions open to women at the present time must be impressed by the fact that it is becoming more and more necessary for a woman to have a "liberal education," certified by a college degree, before entering on professional training. If she wishes to occupy a responsible position as a teacher, for example, a physician, a social worker, a college degree is almost indispensable as a prerequisite to her professional studies. We have always needed in New York a women's college, to provide that liberal education which aids so essentially in personal development and happiness. It is now obvious that we need one also to preserve for the women of this city an open gateway to the professions.

Twenty-five years ago a group of public-spirited citizens founded Barnard College to furnish to the girls of New York what they had hitherto been unable to obtain in this city—an opportunity for higher education of the best university standard. Educationally a part of Columbia University, with the quality of its instruction guaranteed by that institution, Barnard was entirely separate financially, supported by its friends. Unlike most colleges, it was founded quite without endowment, on the promise of fifty persons to subscribe annually $100 each for four years. With this modest guarantee, in the Fall of 1889, the college opened its doors in a small private house at Forty-fourth Street and Madison Avenue, and enrolled its first freshman class of fourteen students, with a few specials.

Thus founded on faith, to meet a real and pressing need, Barnard College has rapidly grown and prospered. Its graduates now number 1,200, and in its buildings on Morningside Heights it has at present nearly 800 students. The undergraduate body is a widely representative one, coming largely from New York, but with a considerable proportion from distant parts, from Oregon and Alabama, for example, and even from Honolulu and New Zealand.

The education which the college gives its students is of the sort traditionally called "liberal." It includes some prescribed work in English, in history, in natural sciences, in mathematics, in economics, in modern lauguages, in the classics, with a wide range of electives, and it requires of every student some rather extensive and advanced work in whatever subject she may select as her special field. The curriculum is designed to help its students develop into intelligent, well-balanced women, able to get the greatest possible amount of happiness out of life, and to be useful members of the community. The graduates whom Barnard has sent forth have justified its work. Hundreds of them are now serving New York as able and devoted teachers in the schools, skilled scientists in the research laboratories, zealous workers in many fields of philanthropy and social service, intelligent mothers, broad-minded and public-spirited citizens.

With its present resources Barnard College cannot continue to receive and care for the increasing numbers who apply for admission. If it cannot obtain from the friends of women's education a substantial increase in endowment and buildings, the doors must be shut to many ambitious and able young women who are eager to enter.

In buildings designed for only 500 students the college is now caring for 800. It has no gymnasium; it has no auditorium large enough to contain its undergraduates; its reading room is sadly overcrowded; it lacks sufficient space for lunch rooms, rest rooms, studios, laboratories, and classrooms; it needs an additional dormitory for students who live at the college.

Barnard is seriously handicaped also by shortage of endowment. Tuition fees pay scarcely three-fifths of the cost of instruction, and each year the college runs some thousands of dollars behind. To keep its teaching at a high standard, to pay fair salaries, to develop new lines of work demanded by the new needs of to-day, the college requires a million dollars additional endowment.

It is to meet these pressing needs that the college is now trying to raise a two-million-dollar fund, half for buildings and half for endowment. About $500,000 has already been pledged. The recent benefit performance of "Madama Butterfly," so successfully managed by our loyal alumnae, was a notable episode in this campaign, and netted over $6,000. Even this handsome sum, however, is but a "drop in the bucket." We regard the benefit as far more valuable in bringing before the public the needs of the college and its great value to the city, so forcefully expressed by Mayor Mitchel in his speech that evening. When they realize the facts the citizens of New York will surely respond to the appeal of Barnard, and contribute funds sufficient to support a college large enough and strong enough to give to all the really able and ambitious women who seek it that liberal education which leads to personal happiness and useful service.

Contributions may be sent to George A. Plimpton, Treasurer, 70 Fifth Avenue.

WHEN IT SNOWS.

And, shaking his hoary, old head;
"How badly the Earth needs a coating of white!
I'd better attend to that planet to-night,
And cover it over," he said.

So he called for his icicle crown, and Jack Frost,
To help him, came scurrying down.
Then over the meadows and hills high and low,
Till they'd hidden the Earth, bare and brown.

Jack finished by etching on each pane of glass
An exquisite picture, as upward they passed
By the route which the snow-fairies know!

But the feathery flakes told their story to me;
(And now you will know, since I've told)
When it snows, 'tis the Frost King who kindly decrees
To warm with white blankets the gardens and trees,
So the poor naked Earth won't take cold!

Edgar Gorer announces the purchase from Henry Sampson of New York City of a collection of old Chinese porcelains which he considers more important than any in America, excluding those in museums, such as the Altman anad Morgan collections. Mr. Sampson has been more than twenty years in bringing it together, having started with pieces of blue and white at the first Brayton Ives sale in 1891. The great strength of the collection in its present form lies in the single color specimens. One of the sang-de-boeuf variety is said to be worth $50,000, and a little ruby beaker not more than four inches high is placed at $10,000. The collection includes nearly 1,000 pieces, and the value of the whole is said to be more than $1,000,000. At the end of the present year it will be exhibited at the Dreicer Galleries, the New York agents of Gorer. Until that time it will be in storage. Mr. Sampson has concentrated on porcelains, but he owns also a few American paintings, including an Inness of the finest quality.

At the Ehrich Galleries is an exhibition of French portraits of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, including a number of that keen and sprightly appeal made by the well-trained French painter at work upon rewarding material. There is Aimee Duvivier's version of an eighteenth century Marquis whose name is not more familiar to the public of to-day than the name of the artist who so scrupulously recorded his agreeable features. No one who sees the portrait will fail to remember, however, the quizzical and friendly smile of the eyes, the quiet painting of the gay and fashionable costume, the sense given by the books and papers lying about as accessories that they formed an important element in the life of the sitter.

Another portrait that makes a vital impression is that of a Cardinal painted by Van Loo. There are the Cardinal's robes as the artists paint them to-day, a gorgeous mass of reds pricked out with the pattern of lace, but above them rises the face of a true "Prince and Senator of the Church," keen, firm, intellectual, deeply initiated.

Largillière appears at his least distinguished perhaps in his picture of a lady, and at his most efficient in the portrait of a fleshy gentleman in red. There is a ruddy likeness of Coyzevox, the sculptor, by Hyacinthe Rigaud, and there are portraits by Tocque, Lebrun, Boilly, and Lancret, the last a "Première Danseuse" in a decorative environment, painted woodenly. There is also an insipid Greuze. Nothing in the group quite reaches the point of human interest that we attain in the modest Duvivier portrait.

$5,000 PLUMS ARE FALLING.

The Mayor and Two Commissioners Fill Seven Subordinate Jobs.

Several more vacant places in the city administration were filled by appointments yesterday. Mayor Mitchel appointed Theodore D. Rousseau as executive secretary at a salary of $4,800 to succeed James Matthews, who is to be Assistant Secretary of the Board of Estimate.

Street Cleaning Commissioner Fetherston appointed Arnold B. MacStay Secretary of the department and Andrew E. Kalbach Deputy Commissioner in the Bronx.

Dock Commissioner R. A. C. Smith appointed Richard C. Harrison First Deputy of the Dock Department, Edward de V. Tompkins Second Deputy, and Charles J. Farley Chief Clerk.

The Mayor said he had reached no conclusion regarding the appointment of a Corporation Counsel or of a Health or a Water Commissioner.

Mr. Rousseau was born in Savannah, Ga., and has been connected with newspapers in Nashville, Tenn., and Louisville, Ky., and this city. Mr. MacStay was once a candidate for State Controller on the Independence League ticket, and for two years was President of the Central Federated Union of Greater New York. Mr. Kalbach was graduated from Annapolis in 1896, served in the navy until 1908, then became connected with the Rapid Transit Subway Construction Company, and later became general manager of the New York City Interborough Railroad Company. He is an independent Democrat, and his salary will be $5,000 a year. Mr. Harrison was formerly Second Deputy Dock Commissioner. His salary, as well as that of Edward de V. Tompkins, is $5,000 a year. Gordon Ireland is a lawyer and a Progressive. His salary will be $5,000 a year.

The Mayor talked appointments yesterday with Samuel S. Koenig, Chairman of the Republican County Committee, and Eugene McGuire, leader of the independent Democrats in the Bronx. The Mayor was asked if he had recommended Clarence J. Shearn to Gov. Glynn for Public Service Commissioner. He said:

"I would be glad to recommend Mr. Shearn because he has made a splendid record. I think he would make a fine Public Service Commissioner. I did not exactly recommend him, however. Indirectly his name was suggested to Gov. Glynn, but not in the way of a request from me."

The Mayor added that he knew of several other persons who would make good Public Service Commissioners, but he didn't mention names.

TELEPHONE CO. GETS DELAY

The New York Telephone Company, according to a decision made yesterday by the up-State Public Service Commission, has until Jan. 22 for filing its statement of receipts and expenses of operation in New York City. The telephone company was directed two months ago by the Public Service Commission to file the statement, and Dec. 22 was set as the date on which the report was to be made.

President Bethel of the telephone company said that a report could not be made at that time, and the commission granted an adjournment until Jan. 5. A reduction of ten per cent. in subscribers' rates was granted by the company voluntarily at about that time. As the company said that it had not been able to get the report ready, a further delay was granted, which yesterday was extended until Jan. 22.

DEFIANT TO WILSON OVER POSTAL SPOILS

ATTACKS OUR DIPLOMATS

Tennessee Congressman Calls Them "Political Reprobates," Who Ought to be Abolished.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The prospect of a serious quarrel between President Wilson and Democratic Congressmen became more apparent to-day when Representative John A. Moon of Tennessee, Chairman of the House Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads, openly announced his refusal to be influenced by protests from the President and Postmaster General Burleson against the adoption of the "spoilsmen's rider" to the Post Office Appropriation bill, taking about 2,400 Assistant Postmasters out of the protection of the civil service regulations. President Wilson had made it known that he would veto the Post Office bill, which carries more than $300,000,000, if the objectionable rider were retained.

"No domination by the Postmaster General," exclaimed Mr. Moon, in the general debate on the bill, "nor threat of veto from the President, ought to swerve us from the course we believe to be right."

Several Democrats supported the President's view, condemning the attempt to remove Assistant Postmasters from the civil service as a return to the spoils system, and Democrats are lining up for and against the Administration on the issue. The Republican minority will vigorously oppose the adoption of the rider.

Mr. Moon bemoaned what he characterized as the trend toward federalization of the Government and attacked the foreign diplomatic service of the United States, picturing our Ambassadors and Ministers as a "distinct class" and condemning them as "a gang of political reprobates and society degenerates that ought to be wiped out of existence."

"This commitee is not here to bow to the will of the President or the Postmaster General," Mr. Moon asserted. "No domination by the Postmaster General, nor threat of veto from the President, ought to swerve us from the course we believe to be right. The views of the President and the Postmaster General, however, much as I respect them, as I do, certainly will not control me in my vote in this Post Office committee.

"Your Government is being consolidated," said Mr. Moon. "It is built on the theory of ultimate supreme power under a system of federalistic domination and construction of the Constitution. What are you going to do about it? You have got all the hundreds of employes now under the civil service. Not a single representative of the Federal Government, save the members of the House and by recent amendment, the Senators, is chosen by the American people at the ballot box. Your President is chosen by the Electoral College. He, in the exercise of that exalted power, under the Consitution, with his Cabinet and officers, chooses all the other representatives of your country. There stand with a life tenure the administrative officers of the Government. If you wanted to make a monarchy of this republic all you would have to do would be to apply the civil service to Congress, the President, and his Cabinet."

Mr. Moon assailed the diplomatic and consular service, asserting that those in the consular service were all Republicans, and covered by the civil service, but that "they are of no account except some representatives they send in now and then."

Only wealthy men were now selected as Ambassadors, said Mr. Moon, adding:

"Must the leaders of society, with the false glare and glitter of their position, falsely represent the feelings and sentiments of the American people? You have not the slightest use in this day and time for an Ambassador or Minister in any court on earth. In these days of cablegrams and post communications your Government, if it should have any trouble anywhere, might communicate with its business Consuls or with the Governments direct, and deal with all questions of international importance.

"Your diplomatic service is a superfluous appendage to a republic in this day, and your whole Diplomatic Corps, in the interest of economy and good Government and a decent conception by foreign people of the views, habits, and conditions of the American people ought to be abolished. But they are of the House of Lords of the United States. They form a distinct class, so distinct, I understand, that they scarcely pay any attention to the Senators who vote for their confirmation when once they have approached the throne of royalty. It is that gang of political reprobates and society degenerates that we ought to wipe out of existence.

"There is a remedy. You are drifting rapidly to the exercise of central power. If you adopt the policy of the purchase of telegraphs and telephones you will have proceeded far to the federalization of power. If you go further and become the owners of the railroads you will see a vast army of people in control, all forming a Federal menace to human rights and human liberty, under a constitution in which the people have no right or no part in selecting the officers to administer it."

Folk Dances Also at Mrs. Reginald De Koven's Home in Aid of Girls' Branch of Athletic League.

There was a large attendance yesterday afternoon at the entertainment given at the residence of Mrs. Reginald de Koven, 1,025 Park Avenue, in which prominent society people appeared in tableaux, for the benefit of the Girls' Branch of the Public Schools Athletic League.

The entertainment was held in the great Elizabethan hall on the second floor of the house, which was taxed to its capacity. So great was the crush that the sale of tickets at the door had to be discontinued shortly after 3 o'clock.

A stage had been erected at the south end of the hall, with its handsome tapestries and musicians' gallery, with two immense gilt candelabra standing on each side of the purple velour curtains, which disclosed, during the first part of the programme, arrangements from old masters in tableaux, designed by John W. Alexander and Ben Ali Haggin. The second half was given up to folk dances arranged by Miss Elizabeth Burchenal.

Near the stage was an old-fashioned harpsichord, and on this Miss Frances Pelton-Jones played gavottes, fifteenth century jigs, and caprices, afterwards furnishing the music for the tableaux, which was quite in accord with the spirit of the old masters portrayed. Miss Pelton-Jones wore a Court costume of the Louis XVI. period, and Miss Greta Torpadie, who sang French and English ballads, with harpsichord and guitar accompaniment, was also in attractive costume.

In the arrangement of old masters Mrs. Newell Tilton appeared in a Sir Joshua Reynolds, Mrs. Henry Rogers Winthrop and Gerald Onativia posed after a Venonese painting, and Miss Meraud Guinness and Master Noël Guinness were seen in a Fragonard picture. Lady Decies, Mrs. H. Kierstede Hudson, and Miss Katharine Porter posed after a painting by Frederigo Zuccaro. A George Romney group was posed by Mrs. Pomeroy T. Francis, Miss Theodora Larocque and her young sister, Miss Elizabeth Larocque, and F. Louis Mora appeared in an Edouard Manet painting.

There was interest in the appearance of Lady Decies in the tableaux, and the posing of little Miss Tanis Guinness, the youngest daughter of Mrs. Benjamin S. Guinness, after Sir Joshua Reynolds, was also greeted with rounds of applause. Miss Guinness, who is only 5 years old, almost outdid her elders in poise and naturalness.

The floor was cleared after the tableaux for the folk dances. Miss Margaret A. Wolf did a Grecian dance, and then came a Swedish and Danish folk dance, in which appeared Mrs. Lorillard Spencer, Jr., the Misses Amy C. Hutton, Margaret D. Leverich, and Margaret Stimson; Knud Bay, Henry Leverich, Lieut. Frank Phipps, Austin L. Sands, William Caldwell, and the Misses Elizabeth and Ruth Burchenal, whose dancing in the Danish "Firetur" with Mr. Caldwell and Mr. Bay, was spirited and picturesque.

Among those present were Mrs. James Speyer, Mrs. Walter P. Bliss, Mrs. Benjamin S. Guinness, Mrs. Egerton L. Winthrop, Jr., Mrs. Magee Ellsworth, Mrs. Henry Phipps, Mrs. William A. Delano, Mrs. Otto H. Kahn, Mrs. Stuart Duncan, Mrs. E. Henry Harriman, Mrs. Herbert Lee Pratt, Mrs. Frank L. Polk, Mrs. Edward Meany, Mrs. Edward C. Delafield, Mrs. S. R. Guggenheim, Mrs. Lindon W. MAGISTRATE STOPS ANOTHER FILM PLAY

GRAND JURY SEES FILMS

Goes to Park Theatre in Taxicabs to Pass on "The Inside of the White Slave Traffic."

Another moving-picture drama dealing with the white slave traffic was closed yesterday by the police. The newest film to come under the ban was "A Victim of Sin," which has been one of the features of the programme at Hammerstein's Victoria Theatre. The picture was withdrawn yesterday afternoon, and William Hammerstein announced last night that he would not attempt to show the picture again.

Chief Magistrate McAdoo announced yesterday afternoon that if an attempt was made to show the film, "A Victim of Sin" picture anywhere to-day in Manhattan or the Bronx he would issue warrants for the arrest of all concerned in the production. This announcement was made after the Chief Magistrate had received a written report from Philip Bloch, chief clerk of the City Magistrate's court. Mr. Bloch had been directed to view the film as the result of complaints which came to the Chief Magistrate's office and to the police department. The police made an independent investigation after reading Mr. Bloch's report. Magistrate McAdoo issued the following statement:

"From the reports made to me and the talks I have had with the author of the film called 'A Victim of Sin,' it is obvious that it is a gross, raw paraphrase of the play called 'Damaged Goods,' written by Brieux, and which has been played here in New York. I am told by the author that the play has been indorsed by clergymen and other men of high standing. The question for me as a Magistrate is not what extraordinary men think of it, but how it would appeal to the ordinary citizen."

Mr. Bloch's report said:

"My own conclusions and the impression made upon me are that the entire exhibition is disgusting and comes clearly within the provisions of Section 1,140A of the penal laws of the State of New York in reference to immoral exhibitions. I cannot see where any good moral lesson can be taught by this exhibition."

Late yesterday afternoon William Hughes, the reported owner of the film, "A Victim of Sin," called at the office of Chief Inspector Schmittberger at Police Headquarters, where he announced that he intended to give a production of the film as soon as he could procure a theatre in this city. When informed that the matter was no longer in the hands of the Inspector the film owner left for Police Commissioner McKay's office. From the Police Commissioner he learned that the department would act as soon as warrants were issued by the Chief Magistrate, and he was referred to Magistrate McAdoo. Mr. McAdoo said that the film was a direct violation of the penal law, and that warrants would be issued if any attempt was made to show it.

For the benefit of the Grand Jury an exhibition of the moving picture play, "The Inside of the White Slave Traffic," which was raided by the police, was held at the Park Theatre yesterday afternoon. Sixteen members of the additional Grand Jury, of which William G. Muschenheim is foreman, in charge of Deputy Assistant District Attorney Floyd Wilmot, went to the theatre in taxicabs. After seeing the film the Grand Jurors returned to the Criminal Court Building without commenting on what they had witnessed. The jury will vote to-day whether or not to indict Samuel H. London, the author of the film play, who was arrested and held for the Grand Jury at the time the police stopped the performance.

It was said last night that the Grand Jury would see a special performance to-morrow of "The House of Bondage," the play raided at the Cecil Spooner Theatre in the Bronx which is to be produced at the Long Acre Theatre on Monday night under the auspices of the Sociological Fund of The Medical Review of Reviews, the sponsor of the white slave film dramas.

CYRIL MAUDE HOST AT PLAY.

Sees "The Little Cafe" with Audience of Actors He Has Invited.

Cyril Maude, the English actor, was the guest of honor and also the host at a special performance of "The Little Café" at the New Amsterdam Theatre yesterday afternoon. Mr. Maude, who is playing at Wallack's Theatre in "Grumpy" appeared in "The Little Café" when it was first produced, as a farce without music, in London. Klaw & Erlanger arranged yesterday's matinée, and then asked the English actor to invite his own audience.

All of the boxes at the New Amsterdam Theatre were draped with English and American flags, and at the end of the performance the curtain was raised and the members of the company sang "The Star-Spangled Banner" and "God Save the King."

Klaw & Erlanger sent a large bunch of American Beauties to Miss Margery Maude, Cyril Maude's daughter, and Mr. Maude, in turn, presented the women members of "The Little Café" company with flowers.

With Mr. Maude in his box party were his daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Austin Strong, and Mr. and Mrs. Hartley Manners, (Miss Laurette Taylor.) Slezak—the Great Tenor
The Hardman—a Great Piano

WHEN Leo Slezak sings at Aeolian Hall to-morrow night New York music lovers will hear two magnificent instruments in combination.

The voice of one of the world's greatest Tenors and—the tone of the Hardman Piano.

City.

Dear Sirs:—

Before I set foot in America the Hardman Piano had been recommended to me by musical friends in whose judgment I had absolute reliance. Now after using the Hardman Piano for several years in my home, on the concert stage and at the Metropolitan Opera House, I can readily understand the warmth of their eulogies of its beautiful quality of tone, touch and stability.

My accompanist, Oscar Dachs, the distinguished Vienna pianist, who played your concert grand in my tour of your country last season, warmly shares my enthusiasm for your piano. He has truly said, "In magnitude of tone and sympathetic singing quality, I have never before heard its equal."

Sincerely yours,

DELANEY LAYS BARE GRAFT IN HIGHWAYS

HE MAY SUPPLANT OSBORNE

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 15.—Commissioner John H. Delaney of the Department of Efficiency and Economy took up the investigation of the State Highway Commission to-day and it resulted in some startling disclosures.

All the testimony had to do with nine miles of road under construction in Broome County which an expert witness described as the poorest he ever had inspected. Other witnesses testified that its poor condition was caused by changes in specifications and supplementary agreements sanctioned by the Highway Department, which involved what one of the witnesses characterized as "a gift from the Highway Department to the contractors," aggregating $11,127 on the work so far completed.

Engineers who complained about the quality of the work and the use of materials not provided for in the contract were threatened by the contractors with removal "unless they kept their noses out of the contractor's affairs." The evidence showed that three engineers who had been persistent in their efforts to hold the contractors to the terms of their contracts actually were supplanted by directions from the Albany office of the State Highway Department. Then, as now, John N. Carlisle was at the head of the department.

Gov. Glynn was well pleased with the result of Mr. Delaney's work, and it was intimated at the Capitol that he might supersede James W. Osborne as special graft investigator unless the latter's investigation began to show results without much more delay. Mr. Osborne has announced that he will resume his investigation here on Saturday.

The contract involved in the testimony taken to-day was let to W. H. Cowhig of Albany, but was sublet to the Hollington Company of Troy. Cowhig has gone to California. Several witnesses testified that the Hollington Company was synonymous with John E. Consalus, chief political lieutenant of Joseph J. Murphy, the Democratic boss of Rensselaer County. Several contracts in which Consalus was said to be interested were under fire when John A. Hennessy investigated highway graft under William Sulzer. Then Mr. Murphy took sides with Mr. Sulzer in his fight against Charles F. Murphy, the Tammany leader, and after that little was heard about the Rensselaer County contracts.

Poorest He Ever Saw.

John B. Wright of Amsterdam, who was first assistant engineer and resident engineer in charge of the Broome County work, said it was the poorest he ever had inspected. He said that in his report to Deputy Commissioner Rickard he recommended that payments be withheld until the road work was improved and that the engineer in charge be relieved, because he failed to do his work, "through fear or neglect."

"Why did you say through fear?" he was asked.

"I knew that the same contractor in other cases had threatened engineers with removal when they objected to his work," Mr. Wright said. "I was transferred myself in 1911. I had charge of the road work in Montgomery, Fulton, and Schenectady Counties. I was told that if I did not keep my nose out I would be relieved. I didn't keep my nose out, and I was relieved to Allegany County. The threat was made by John E. Consalus, who was in the Hollington Company."

Mr. Wright said his removal took place before John N. Carlisle became the head of the Highway Department.

John P. Kelly, the engineer in charge of the Broome County work, said the brick was laid at first upon the poor sub-base. The brick was not tested in Albany, he said, and it was so soft that it could not be grouted. He reported this to Perry Filkins, the division engineer, who told him to go on with the work.

Mr. Kelly said he recommended that the contractor be paid for only a third of the work in July, 1913, for the reason that the work was not in good shape.

"Mr. Holroyd and Mr. Boughton of the Hollington Company came to my house and asked why I was crucifying the company," said Mr. Kelly. "I told them payment of a third was all they were entitled to. They told me they would report the matter to Joe Murphy and Perry Filkins."

Mr. Kelly referred to Joseph J. Murphy, Democratic leader of Troy.

"Did you regard that as a threat?" he was asked.

"That was the way I took it," Kelly replied.

"Did Mr. Edgerton, the division engineer, ask you to allow the payment for two-thirds of the work?" Mr. Delaney asked.

"He did," was the reply.

"What were his instructions?"

"I was informed that the Albany office had wired instructions to accept good gravel in place of crushed stone."

"As a result of your talk with Mr. Edgerton, did you allow the increase?"

"I approved the increase."

"Why did you approve it?"

"I regarded that my objections to the laying of the sub-base had been overruled."

His Complaints Ignored.

Mr. Kelly said he wrote a letter to Mr. Edgerton July 22, 1913, saying the work on the road was unsatisfactory.

"I inspected the road in August with Mr. Wright," said Kelly. "I told him the gravel and much of the other material was unsatisfactory. I told him it would be a good thing if I could go to Albany and consult some of those higher up in the department about the road, as I was powerless to compel good work."

"Why did you say you were powerless?" Mr. Delaney asked.

"Because my complaints to the Binghamton office seemed to do no good," Mr. Kelly replied.

The engineer said he made an estimate of the cost of the top dressing for the road. It was $5.27 a cubic yard. Subsequently a supplemental agreement was made. He said he sent a copy of the supplemental contract to R. M. Bennett and asked him to protest.

"When you found that the department had permitted the contractor to use a stone costing $5.27 a cubic yard in place of one costing $5.50 at the same contract price, what did you say?"

"I said that it seemed that they could do as they pleased, and that I did not see any need of going near the job again," Mr. Kelly said.

Mr. Kelly said he had computed the difference in cost between the crushed limestone and the substituted local gravel. The gravel, which was said to be a mixture of shale and clay, cost $1.62 a cubic yard, and the crushed stone cost $2.12 a cubic yard, a difference of 50 cents a cubic yard. He said that 7,845 cubic yards had been laid and that the saving to the contractor was $3,933.50.

"How did you regard this saving?" Charles A. Jackson, chief examiner, asked.

"As a gift from the department to the contractor," was the reply.

The amount saved on the other stone, Kelly said, was $7,194.

At this point A. S. Norton of Cobleskill, a quarryman, was called to the witness stand and he testified that crushed limestone was sold at from 65 to 85 cents a ton in the Summer of 1913.

To this was added 45 cents a ton for freight. He estimated that one and a fifth tons were used for each cubic yard of road.

When Kelly was recalled he said that on July 20 he received from R. K. Fuller, secretary of the Highway Commission, a telegram authorizing the use of gravel in place of crushed stone on the road. The contractor already was using the gravel at that time.

"I was removed after I had been told that they would put on a man who would not be so particular," was his reply.

"Dopey Benny" Fein, "Waxie" Gordon, "Little Abie" Beckerman, and Rubin Kaplan, arrested for complicity in the murder of Frederick Straus, a City Court clerk, who was killed by a stray bullet last Friday evening in a gang battle before Arlington Hall in St. Mark's Place, were discharged from custody for lack of evidence by Coroner Feinberg yesterday. Assistant District Attorney Deacon Murphy consented to this action, saying he did not have enough evidence to warrant an indictment.

After the hearing Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty said the police had been unable to get eye-witnesses who could identify "Dopey Benny" as one of those who took part in the shooting, nor did he have any identification for Kaplan. He had statements from Edward Morris, Arlington Hall's "bouncer," that "Waxie" Gordon had run to him for aid in escaping after the shooting, and from Samuel Lipsig of 58 St. Mark's Place identifying Beckerman as one of those who took part in the shooting. These, however, were not corroborated, and in this shape were not sufficient evidence on which to hold the prisoners.

"The discharge of the prisoners," Mr. Dougherty added, "does not mean that the case is closed. We are still working on it."

"Dopey Benny" and his followers were jubilant when released. The gang leader told reporters that his arrest in connection with the shooting was part of a systematic persecution of him. His attorney, ex-City Magistrate Charles G. F. Wahle, appeared before Judge Malone in General Sessions when two indictments against Fein were called. Judge Wahle asked that the cases be put over, but Judge Malone set them down for trial on Monday, saying that it was important that they be brought to trial immediately.

The first charge against Fein is that on Aug. 9 he assaulted Sergt. Patrick E. Sheridan, threatening him with death, while the policeman was making an inspection of a house which was the resort of vicious characters. The other charge is that on Sept. 16 he was carrying a fully loaded revolver in violation of the Sullivan law. He is out on $7,000 bail to answer these charges.

THINKS THE KARLUK IS LOST

Arctic Hunter Caught in the Same Ice Pack Believes Crew Is Safe.

The lost ship of the arctic explorer Stefansson, which was blown out of sight of land in the Arctic Ocean on Sept. 3 with twenty-five men on board, was carried in an ice pack north and east, and has been destroyed by now, in the opinion of L. L. Lane of Seattle, Wash., who was in the Arctic Ocean on a whaling and hunting trip when the ship disappeared. Mr. Lane, who is at the Hotel Astor for a few days, said yesterday that no ship and no crew that had been carried by the wind and ice in the direction in which the Karluk was seen moving had ever returned.

"I believe," he added, "that Stefansson's crew is safe, for among the crew was a man named Jack Hadley, who knows the arctic as no one else does. He can bring the crew back to civilization if any one can. The ship was well stocked with provisions, and there were sixty dogs on board, so, with Hadley to lead the way, I do not see why the twenty-five men should not come back safely across the ice."

Mr. Lane went to the arctic last Summer in his boat the Polar Bear. With him were eight men from Boston, two of whom were searching for specimens for the Smithsonian Institution and Harvard University. It was in August, three weeks before the gale of Sept. 3 that carried away the Karluk, that he came into contact with the ice pack in which the Karluk was held.

"We were in open water near the pack," he said, "when we saw the Elvira, a whaling ship, in difficulty near us. Her propeller was broken and she was unable to break through the thin ice forming around her. The Polar Bear steamed up close and we threw her a line, intending to tow her out, but just about two minutes before he could have reached her a great quantity of ice drifted down on us, and the Polar Bear was locked in the pack with the Elvira. At that time the Karluk was about 150 miles west of us."

Mr. Lane said that the Elvira, which he had tried to save, had been wrecked by the ice, but that her crew had escaped to another boat. His own ship, the Polar Bear, he said, had been lifted out of the water, and for three weeks preceding the storm lay on her side on top of the ice.

SUMMONS 18 CONTRACTORS.

Eighteen Rochester contractors were served yesterday by District Attorney Whitman with subpoenas duces tecum, requiring their appearance here on Monday to testify in the John Doe graft investigation. The subpoenas direct the contractors to bring with them all correspondence with Arthur A. McLean, Treasurer of the Democratic State Committee, and William H. Kelley of Syracuse, Democratic leader of Onondaga County.

Hanger, who testified before the Grand Jury on Tuesday, was recalled yesterday. When asked to give his definition of "expert advice," he showed some hesitancy, and, it is said, was unable to frame a satisfactory reply. Another witness yesterday was Kenneth Robinson, who is said to be a clerk in the Security Bank. J. Waldo Smith, Chief Consulting Engineer of the Board of Water Supply, was also a witness. His testimony related to the awarding of Aqueduct Contract 90, as a result of which the Grand Jury indicted Thomas Hassett, formerly Secretary of the Board of Water Supply. This contract went to the T. A. Gillespie Company at a price $217,000 above the lowest bid.

BRONX COUNTY BUSINESS.

Register Says It Is 50 Per Cent. of That of Manhattan.

Register Polak of Bronx County announced yesterday that already the volume of realty business transacted in the new county had reached the mark of 50 per cent. of that of Manhattan. He said it was originally predicted that he Bronx County Register's office would hardly have 30 per cent. of the Manhattan volume of transactions. This applies to the number of transaction, not the value, which, of course, is far behind.

The total amount of mortgages received at the Mortgage Tax Bureau of the Register's office in Bronx County up to and including Jan. 14, 1914, is $1,068,181.83.

In their efforts to retain Miss Ida Smith in her position as Postmaster of Douglaston, L. I., civic workers there won a temporary victory yesterday when the Post Office Department at Washington notified Postmaster Alfred J. Kennedy of Flushing that the establishment of a free-delivery service at Douglaston and the neighboring community of Little Neck will be deferred. The telegram was received yesterday afternoon, an hour before the Little Neck Post Office was [illegible] to go out of business.

Conductor, Arturo Toscanini.

Mr. Toscanini resumes control of the performances of "Die Meistersinger" at the Metropolitan Opera House this season, and the first performance given there last evening was under his direction. "Die Meistersinger" was transferred from Mr. Hertz, who had conducted the performances of it ever since he came to the Metropolitan Opera House in the season of 1909-10, when it was first given near the end of the season, so that there was time for only two representations. He kept it for the next two seasons, giving five performances in 1910-11 and three in 1911-12. Last season it was restored to Mr. Hertz.

The performance was not one to rejoice the hearts of lovers of Wagner's comedy, either in its general effect or in the contributions of most of the singers. With all the beauty of certain kinds that belonged to Mr. Toscanini's reading, it was not one that will take a rank among his most successful achievements or that will obliterate cherished memories of admirable performances of "Die Meistersinger." The work is a comedy so purely and essentially Teutonic in its embodiment of the German spirit and its picturing of mediaeval burgess life that a conductor of Latin blood and training can scarcely be expected to understand it to the fullest extent. Mr. Toscanini did not do so last evening. The audience was unusually apathetic and found little to rouse it to enthusiasm.

Mr. Toscanini's attention is obviously directed chiefly to the orchestral score, of which he obtains an exquisitely finished performance in its way, and one kept very subdued, with many minute nuances within the dynamic scale he has adopted. He also takes a tempo that is unusually rapid almost throughout. His treatment of the score is, on the whole, rather unyielding; there is little consideration for the singers in it; they are kept pretty strictly toeing Mr. Toscanini's mark, with little opportunity to make their effects of comedy or to obtain flexibility and expressiveness of declamation. As an orchestral performance it may be admired, but it leaves little room for the real spirit of "Die Meistersinger." The whole performance is hampered by the spirit in which it is conducted.

Nor did most of the principal singers accomplish much to enliven the performance. Mr. Urlus, the Watcher, has seldom sung with less beauty or acted with less spirit and romantic fervor or made a less advantageous appearance upon the stage. Nor did Mme. Gadski, who has for so many years been admired in the part of Magdalene, in which she made her first appearance in New York, equal many of her previous impersonations, either in singing or in the impression of naiveté. Mr. Weil failed to penetrate into the geniality, humor, and tenderness that belong to Hans Sachs, and he sang and acted with considerable dryness. Why should not Mr. Putnam Griswold have an opportunity in this part?

There was consolation in the inimitable Beckmesser of Otto Goritz, which remains a classic and a most consistent and delightful portrait; also in the David of Mr. Reiss, likewise a classic. The new baritone, Mr. Schlegel, who has done better things, showed a singular stiffness as Rothner. There seemed to be a generally prevailing anxiety among the chorus in the riotous scene at the end of the second act. They sang with more energy than they rioted, and at singing it was very good, indeed.

MARGARET HUSTON SINGS.

For the second time this week a comparatively unknown artist made a successful appearance here when Margaret Huston, soprano, gave a song recital yesterday afternoon in Aeolian Hall. The other case was that of Jaime Overton, a young California violinist who was heard the afternoon previously in the same hall and made a very good impression.

Miss Huston, although she was heard here several years ago, is practically new to this public. She gave a very interesting recital after she had overcome the effects of a slight hoarseness and more nervousness, which hindered her in the beginning. In the first place, her programme provoked interest at once, for it was entirely modern, the oldest music represented being that of Moussorgsky. The others were Hugo Wolf, Max Reger, Richard Strauss, Weingartner, Debussy, and Herbert Hughes.

The singer interpreted their songs with much artistic feeling and intelligence. Her exposition of the Debussy moods was particularly happy. Her voice was intelligently used and of good quality, and there were times when she colored her tone with an extra resonance that added considerably to the effect. What took best with her audience were some Irish songs, original and arranged, by Herbert Hughes. These she sang with a charm which caused the audience to demand encores at the end of the programme.

THE PHILHARMONIC PLAYS.

Orchestra Gives Fine Performance of Mendelssohn's Overture.

The principal work on the programme of the Philharmonic Society's concert last night at Carnegie Hall, was Brahms's Symphony No. 2. Besides this the orchestra played Mendelssohn's "Fingal's Cave" overture, and the overture to "Tannhauser." Mischa Elman was the soloist again, playing Tschaikowsky's concerto. Owing possibly to the first performance of "Die Meistersinger" at the opera, the audience was not as large as usual.

Mr. Stransky and the orchestra were in most effective accord last night and there were many beauties to the performance. Mendelssohn's overture, which is very largely a piece of descriptive writing, was given with all the delicacy of feeling and sauvity which belong to the playing of this composer's works, and to none more than this example of it. The symphony of Brahms, with its classical simplicity and repression, received a thoughtful treatment, the second movement being given with specially good effect.

Mr. Elman's playing of Tschaikowsky's concerto was noteworthy for the quality of vigor and life, and the technical accomplishment. It cannot be said that there were many subleties of expression or great depth of feeling brought to bear on it. There were little niceties of style that were frequently violated, one of the most conspicuous of these being the tendency to a rough attack on every entrance of the solo instrument, even though that entrance was on a weak beat. Mr. Elman also overlooked the full possibilities of a noble cantabile at the outset of the second movement.

Mrs. Guinness to Paint Billie Burke

Through a contract entered into yesterday by Charles Frohman with E. J. Clode, the publisher, and Mrs. Benjamin S. Guinness, the latter is to paint a life-sized portrait of Billie Burke, the actress, in the character of Norah Marsh, in her play, "The Land of Promise." This will be Mrs. Guinness's first portrait of a stage celebrity, although she has painted many of men and women prominent in the social world. The pose chosen for Miss Burke's picture will represent her entering the log cabin, the opening scene of the third act of "The Land of Promise."

Clergy to Greet Forbes-Robertson.

A group of New York clergymen, anxious to encourage the Shakespearean drama, will give a luncheon to Forbes-Robertson at the Fifth Avenue Restaurant next Monday afternoon. Dean William M. Grosvenor of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine will preside, and there will be greetings from clergy of about ten religious communions, among whom will be Dr. Nehemiah Boynton, Dr. Percy S. Grant, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, Dr. Charles J. Smith, Dr. J. Lewis Hartsock, Dr. Harold Pattison, and Dr. E. Bryard Young. Ben Greet and [illegible] are also to be present.

LIEUT. WHEELER CLEARED.

Lieut. George S. Wheeler of the Fifth Street Police Station, who was sent to Arlington Hall, 19 and 23 St. Mark's Place, on Friday evening in command of the reserves after the gang fight at the Lenny-Dyke Association ball, and who was put on trial for neglect of duty by order of Police Commissioner McKay, was exonerated yesterday by Deputy Police Commissioner Newburger. Lieut. Wheeler was suspended after Samuel Lipsig of 58 St. Mark's Place had complained that Lieut. Wheeler had rebuffed him when he demanded the arrest of Edward Morris, the watchman at Arlington Hall, who he said had aided one of the men who participated in the shooting to escape.

Lieut. Wheeler said that he had rebuffed Lipsig because he was interfering with what he considered the more important work of trying to get an ante-mortem statement from Straus, the man who was killed. He said that he knew Morris, and that there was no necessity of arresting him immediately, since there was no danger that he would run away. Morris was arrested later.

Patrolman Rosenstock of the Fifth Street Station was put on trial on the charge that he failed to inform his superiors of a warning he had received that there was to be trouble at the Lenny-Dyke ball. Rosenstock said the information came to him in an offhand way, and that he had discredited it like many other rumors. He said that he would call Chief Inspector Schmittberger as a witness in his defense. He said that he had told Inspector Schmittberger of this information some nights before the ball. The trial was adjourned until to-morrow morning.

TARIFF HURTS PORTO RICO.

Ex-Gov. Colton Says Sugar Industry in Time Will Meet New Conditions.

George R. Colton, ex-Governor of Porto Rico, whose term expired last Novebmer, said yesterday at the Hotel Wolcott that the removal of the tariff on sugar had injured the sugar industry in Porto Rico. He added, however, that the men who had suffered most were those who had not been forehanded, and that in time the industry on the island would be adjusted to the new conditions.

"It is very hard for the sugar men in Porto Rico," said Mr. Colton, "to compete on equal terms with those of Cuba, because the soil is muche better adapted for raising sugar cane in Cuba and the product can be exported at much less expense than in Porto Rico. In Cuba the cane is planted once in seven years and practically grows itself, whereas in Porto Rico a great deal of artificial fertilizer and cultivation are necessary.

"Many sugar men have been ruined by the new law, but for the most part they were those who had overexpanded their business and were operating without any reserve fund. As soon as the industry can be adjusted to suit the new conditions I believe that sugar again will be profitable on the island, maybe not as profitable as it was, but still profitable enough to attract investors."

Mr. Colton said that political conditions in Porto Rico were very satisfactory when he left, but he did not wish to discuss President Wilson's "home rule" plan for the island.

SUES HEALER FOR $10,000.

Mrs. Frowert Says "Spiritual Influence" Estranged Her Husband.

Mrs. Genevieve Frowert, an actress, whose stage name is Jane Heston, began suit for $10,000 damages in the Supreme Court yesterday against Stewart C. Rowbotham, a Christian Science healer. Mrs. Frowert says that Rowbotham estranged her husband, Percival K. Frowert, from her by the use of "spiritual influence." She also accused Mrs. Stetson of having told Mr. Frowert that his wife was "error" and should be eliminated.

Mr. Frowert is in the advertising business at 23 West Forty-second Street. Formerly he lived in Philadelphia, and it was there, according to his wife, that he became a convert to the teachings of Christian Science as set forth at that time by Mrs. Stetson. When one of the Frowert children became ill he refused, his wife says, to have a physician prescribe, and she found that the advice of the healer outweighed hers.

Mrs. Frowert alleged that her husband had instructed the children's governess not to allow her to see her children. Mr. Frowert replied that he would have no objection to his wife seeing the children if she would only give up her association with the stage and lead a normal married life. The marital troubles of Mr. and Mrs. Frowert first were brought before the Philadelphia courts in May, 1910.

City Engineers Ask for Less Pay.

The three consulting engineers of the Board of Water Supply, John R. Freeman, William H. Burr, and Alfred Noble, upon their own request have had their salaries reduced from $6,000 a year each to $3,000. The Board made the announcement yesterday, and the three engineers in asking that their salaries be cut in half explained that the Catskill Aqueduct was about completed, and that therefore the work they were doing for the city was only about one-half of what they performed when the construction of the aqueduct began.

BRENNAN WILL FILED.

The will of Edward Brennan, who died on Dec. 31, 1913, leaving an estate estimated at about $65,000, was filed for probate yesterday in the Surrogate's Court in Bronx County. Mrs. Catherine C. Brennan, wife of the decedent, of 3,601 Olinville Avenue, receives from the personal estate of her husband $7,000 in trust for life. Each of the children receives a similar amount in trust from the personal estate until he or she reaches the age of 30 years, when the principal is to be paid to each child outright. The children are Lorette C., Edward C., Francis J., Mary C., Catherine, and Raymond Brennan, all living at 3,601 Olinville Avenue.

The will directs that the bequests to the children are to be "enjoyed by them respectively free from the control of their respective husbands and wives." And the will also says: "It is my further desire that if any of my children becomes of dissipated habits or unworthy in the judgment of my executors and trustees, I direct that his share of income from my estate be withheld in the discretion of my executors and trustees until such time as he or they have reformed."

SUES TRUANT SCHOOL HEAD

The Rev. J. W. Mayo Charges That His Son Died of Neglect.

Hobert H. Todd, Principal of the new Parental School, between Flushing and Jamaica, to which habitual truants are committed, and Justus Saunders, an attendant in the school, are defendants in an action for $15,000 damages instituted by the Rev. Joseph W. Mayo of the African Methodist Church in Flushing, who charges that his son, Alden Mayo, 13 years old, died because of neglect while an inmate of the school.

The case was called before Justice Crane in the Queens County Supreme Court yesterday, after a jury had been selected, went over until to-day.

The complaint alleges that when the boy was committed to the school in 1912 he was well and strong. He was a drummer in the school band and first reported sick on May 26, 1913, but was compelled to take his place in the band in the Decoration Day parade, when he collapsed in the streets in Jamaica and was sent back to the school in an automobile. Meantime, it is alleged, he was given pills and oil by Saunders until a visit from his father on June 2, when the boy was sent to the Jamaica Hospital, where he died a day or so later.

The defense will contend that the boy was not neglected, but received proper care and medical attendance.

Urge Polak for Eustis's Place.

Register Edward Polak yesterday received a delegation of Bronx business men at his office, who urged him to permit the use of his name in the effort to secure a Public Service Commissionership for the Bronx in place of Commissioner Eustis. The Register heretofore has declined to enter the race. In the delegation were George Price, Harry Cahn, Henry Kiralfy, B. A. Trotta, Sam Greenberg, Charles Webber, B. R. Koch and others. Mr. Polak finally agreed to have them present his name for the office.

THREE MEN

Here are three men who are just now in the American public eye; two with most fascinating life stories; each with very definite convictions; each with something to say in Sunday's NEW YORK TIMES.

JOSE SANTOS CHOCANO
FERRARI-FONTANA

CHOCANO is one of the big men of South America; a writer whose poems are known wherever Spanish is read; an experienced diplomat to foreign governments; a native of Peru. He talks of South American commercial possibilities; of the Panama Canal; of President Wilson; of the Monroe Doctrine; of Huerta and the Mexican situation. What he has to say about the Panama Canal may give you a point of view you never thought of.

FERRARI-FONTANA is the great new tenor who has captivated the music lovers of New York. Boston claims to have discovered him first, but in matter of fact he was discovered in Rio Janeiro. His American grand opera success is the result of accident. He was called in to fill the place of a leading tenor who was absent, made a great hit, and was immediately engaged. His life story is crowded with interest.

LORD KINTORE

LORD KINTORE is in the United States to talk for the Anglo-American Exposition which will celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of peace between England and America. There are more than three hundred buildings completed or in course of erection at Shepherd's Bush, London, to house this celebration, and Lord Kintore is here representing more than two thousand prominent Englishmen who have thrown themselves heart and soul into the idea and who are pledged to devote themselves to its success. Incidentally he will have some encouraging things to say in THE TIMES on Sunday about our Panama-Pacific Exposition.

FEMINISM
"biological bosh"

Professor Sedgwick of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology calls a spade a spade in his reply to the much-talked-of article on "Feminism" in a recent number of The Atlantic Monthly, and which was reprinted in The New York Times on Dec. 14. The feminist movement is thoroughly washed, given the blue-bag treatment, put through the wringer, hung up to dry, and then ironed out flat. In Professor Sedgwick's article you see the whole process.

Centres of Public Health
UNIVERSITIES

President Farrand of the University of Colorado is known throughout the country as an aggressive defender of the public health. He has an idea of unusual interest to present to readers of THE TIMES.

HENRY FORD Answered

The most talked-of news event of last week was the profit-sharing announcement made by Mr. Henry Ford. The New York Times will publish an answer to this profit-sharing plan by Mr. Jacob Wertheim, who praises Mr. Ford's motive, but takes issue with his method. Mr. Wertheim recently retired from the Presidency of a $20,000,000 corporation so that he might be free to work out his profit-sharing theories in a practical way under conditions which would not involve the interests of outside shareholders. His ideas are fully set forth in this article.

THE NEW YORK TIMES
The best way to meet the "all sold" of your newsdealer is to give him a standing order.

DEMANDS $2,750,000 OF BANK'S LAWYERS

PLOT TO RUIN HIM CHARGED

And Plan to "Cheat and Financially Wreck the Northern Bank of New York."

The four members of the law firm of Gifford, Hobbs & Beard were made defendants in a suit begun yesterday in the Supreme Court for the recovery of $2,750,000. The action is an outcome of the failure of the Northern Bank of New York. Besides asking for this huge sum, the complaint seeks to enjoin the firm from disposing of any of the property in dispute and to compel it to give an accounting of every transaction with the bank by which it profited. The appointment of a receiver to take charge of all of this money and property is demanded.

The suit was begun by William Duncan Cameron, as attorney for Frank Demarest, one of the bank's depositors. Mr. Cameron, it is said, represents more than a score of depositors whose claims amounted to several hundred thousand dollars.

The complaint contains 115 paragraphs. The defendant firm is made up of James M. Gifford, Charles B. Hobbs, Anson McCook Beard, and John D. Fearhake. They are well known corporation lawyers, and represent such important interests as the Columbia-Knickerbocker Trust Company, the American Agricultural Chemical Company and the Union Typewriter Company.

Throughout the story of the failure of the bank as told in the legal papers appears the figure of Joseph G. Robin, the revelation of whose financial operations two years ago startled the city. Robin spent a brief term in the penitentiary after pleading guilty to grand larceny. When Robin was released a short time ago he became active in pursuing some of those whom he accused of having conspired against him.

The complaint says that the Northern Bank was solvent on Dec. 27, 1910, when it was closed by order of the State Superintendent of Banks. Robin at that time owned or controlled 3,500 shares of its capital stock while Mr. Gifford, the head of the defendant firm, as the bank's counsel, and one of its Directors, owned only eleven shares. The plaintiff says that Gifford and Robin were interested in the Hotel Cumberland Company and the Fidelity Development Company. He also says that Robin always was willing to aid the bank to the extent of a million dollars if necessary. Robin's holdings in the Fidelity Development Company, the complaint says, were worth $1,000,000 more than the holdings of Gifford and his associates, because they represented the control of the corporation.

Some of this stock, the complaint says, was pledged by Robin as collateral for loans in the Northern Bank. The accusation is made that Gifford and his associates "coveted" Robin's securities and wealth.

Charges Conspiracy Against Robin.

The complaint then tells about Robin's activity in various enterprises, and asserts that he interfered with the plans of powerful financiers, who were clients of the defendant firm. The complaint then charges that certain clients, business associates, and confederates of Gifford, Hobbs & Beard, "desired to destroy the power and influence of the said Robin, and to wreck and dissipate his financial resources."

To effect and carry out the alleged purpose, the complaint says, the defendants "conspired together and fraudulently concealed from said Robin that they represented and were identified by financial and family ties, with persons and interests antagonistic to Robin." It is then charged that they conspired by scheme, trick, and device to deceive and mislead Robin into the belief that they were honestly and faithfully representing him.

"Said defendants," says the complaint, "Gifford, Hobbs, Beard, and Fearhake, by wilfully and maliciously and fraudulently concealing from said Robin their true intents and purposes ingratiated themselves into and won the confidence of the said Robin for the purpose of persuading, inducing, and inveigling the said Robin into retaining and employing the said defendants, Gifford, Hobbs & Beard as attorneys for himself and for several financial and industrial corporations in which said Robin was associated."

Continuing, the complaint says:

"They maliciously made and entered into unlawful, fraudulent, corrupt, wicked, and malicious plots, schemes, designs, confederacies, and conspiracies to cheat, defraud, and financially wreck the Northern Bank of New York, and to cheat and defraud it out of large and considerable sums of money and valuable property, and to destroy its franchise and the good-will of its said business, and corruptly and unlawfully and fraudulently to divert, misappropriate, and convert to their own use valuable property of the said defendant."

Says Gifford Refused Securities.

The complaint then says that a deficit of $210,000 existed in a certain corporation's account with the Northern Bank on Dec. 26, 1910. Robin, the complaint says, was so ill at the time that his death was expected hourly. United States Government and other gilt-edged securities, of the market value of $350,000, the complaint asserts, were offered to Gifford to make good the deficiency, but that Gifford refused to accept these bonds, "thereby saving the bank from being closed," and in this way carried out the alleged conspiracy to wreck the bank.

The complaint then charges that Gifford, "in violation of his trust, duty, and obligation aforesaid, and in pursuance of the plot, plan, and conspiracy herein alleged, falsely and fraudulently concealed and withheld from, and failed and neglected to disclose to the Directors, stockholders, depositors, and creditors of said Northern Bank, the facts."

The plaintiff says that Gifford called a meeting of the Directors of the bank at his home on the night of Dec. 26, 1910. Gifford knew, the complaint says, that Robin was too ill to attend this meeting, and in his absence Gifford told the Directors that Robin had overdrawn his personal account with the bank more than $200,000, and that if they did not vote to close the bank at once they would be liable criminally. The complaint says, that when the Directors hesitated Gifford compelled them to act by threats of criminal prosecution and punishment.

Reports then were spread broadcast, the complaint says, that Robin had overdrawn his account by several hundred thousand dollars. Demarest, the plaintiff, alleges that these stories were untrue and that they were invented by Gifford for his own purposes and that as a matter of fact Robin had a considerable balance to his credit in the bank on the day it was closed.

The complaint then charges that Gifford, Hobbs & Beard, presented to Orion H. Cheney, the Superintendent of Banks, false and fraudulent bills for "alleged and pretended services claimed to have been rendered by them as attorneys and counsel" for the bank, and also "misappropriated and converted to their own use" moneys collected by them, and that even after the bank closed Gifford, Hobbs & Beard "pretended still to represent said defendant bank as counsel, and by means of such false representations damaged the said bank."

The complaint then charges manipulations by the defendant firm and certain associates in connection with the Fidelity Development Company, which was capitalized at $4,000,000, by means of which, it is alleged, securities of this corporation held by the Northern Bank were rendered of little value.

Beard Gives Firm's Side.

Mr. Beard of Gifford, Hobbs & Beard said yesterday afternoon that the charges made against his firm would be answered fully in due season.

"We worked two years," Mr. Beard said, "in helping to save the bank and the depositors from loss. We collected $1,500,000 and we never got a penny for our services. The only stock that Mr. Gifford owned in the bank were ten shares which were held simply to qualify him as a Director."

Charges against Mr. Gifford were presented some time ago to the Grievance Committee of the Bar Association, and much testimony was taken. Robin was one of the principal witnesses against Mr. Gifford. In speaking of this matter Mr. Beard said:

"The only fault found with Mr. Gifford by the committee was that he had a mistake in a date. The charges amounted to very little."

THREE BIDS FOR CUBAN LOAN

Only Two Bona-Fide—New Tenders May Be Invited.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Jan. 15.—Up to 6 o'clock this evening only three tenders had been received for Cuba's ten-million-dollar loan; but President Menocal decided to allow the presentation of bids until midnight. The identity of the bidders and their terms will not be given to the public until to-morrow.

It is known, however, that one bid was presented by Max Schenkman, representing New York capital, apparently that of the National City Bank. Herman Ostertag bid in the name of German bankers, whose identity was not revealed. The third bid submitted was from Herrera Sotolongo of Havana, who bid for only one bond.

Sotolongo is employed by the political interests which have been putting obstacles in the way of the loan. He notified the Government some time ago that he intended to contest the constitutionality of the loan. The officials refused to acknowledge Sotolongo's bid, holding that bids must be for the total loan.

Dr. Montoro, President Menocal's secretary, told THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent that the bids would not be opened until the Cabinet met to-morrow morning, when a decision would be reached as to whether any bid was acceptable or all should be rejected and bids again invited. It is extremely probable that unless other bids are received to-night all will be rejected and new bids called for. European bankers have shown interest in the loan, but have urged that the time offered for the consideration of it was too short.

APPROVE NEW HAVEN PLAN.

Directors Also Return Payments on $67,000,000 Bond Issue.

The dissolution plan for the New Haven Railroad system agreed upon last week by its Chairman, Howard Elliott, and Attorney General McReynolds was approved yesterday by the company's Directors. The plan contemplates, in addition to the cancellation of the agreement with the New York Central for control of the Boston & Albany, the disposal by the New Haven of its interest in the Boston & Maine, the trolley lines, and certain steamship lines.

The resignations of J. P. Morgan, Galen L. Stone, and Edwin Milner as Directors were accepted. Mr. Stone is a member of the Boston banking firm of Hayden & Stone, and was elected to the board last Fall. His resignation and that of Mr. Milner had not been announced before. No successors to the three were chosen.

The Directors authorized the return of subscription money paid on the $67,000,000 convertible bond issue, which was invalidated by the Massachusetts Supreme Court, with interest at 6 per cent.

There were meetings of the Connecticut Company, the New York & Westchester Company, and the Housatonic Company, but only routine business was transacted.

MAY REARRANGE COURT SITE

President McAneny of the Aldermen denied yesterday a report that the Board of Estimate intended to change the site selected for the new County Court House. Title to this passed to the City last Summer at a cost of $6,138,653, and since then considerable progress has been made with the destruction of some of the buildings on the part to the east of Centre Street.

It is probable, though, Mr. McAneny said, that the site would be rearranged so as to bring the Court House further to the east. This would be in accordance with the plan which he outlined on Feb. 21 at a dinner of the American Institute of Architects at the Hotel Plaza.

Mr. McAneny feels that it is impossible to settle the question of the site until the plan to be finally adopted for the building has been determined definitely, and he will wait until he is informed that an agreement has been attained between the Justices of the Supreme Court and the Court House Board as to the design for a circular building, with which Guy Lowell won the competition last spring. L. Laflin, Kellogg, secretary of the Court House Board, was asked yesterday as to the progress which had been made in the discussion of the plan.

"The Committee of the Justices," he said, "has been for some time in consultation with Mr. Lowell. The members of the committee have been talking over modifications of his original design, and special attention has been given to the adequacy of ventilation and light. I hope that in a short time they will agree on plans."

The establishment of the Bronx as a separate county will have some effect in all probability on the size of the Court House. It was recognised that when the new building was erected it would be wise to provide for the growth in the future of the legal business of the county, especially as one of the chief criticisms levelled at the circular design was the impossibility of enlarging it to meet extra needs, except by making the structure higher. Now that the Bronx is to look after its own courts, the amount of space required has been reduced.

FEDERAL BUILDING CHANGE.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Secretary McAdoo to-day forwarded to Congress a request for a special deficiency appropriation of $200,000 for remodeling the old Court House and Post Office Building in New York City so as to provide additional accommodation for the United States courts.

"The occupancy of the new Post Office Building at Eighth Avenue and Thirty-third Street," said Secretary McAdoo in a letter to Chairman Fitzgerald of the House Appropriation Committee, "will permit the Post Office Department to vacate the upper part of the building. A recent act of Congress provides for detailing additional Federal Judges to sit in New York in order to lessen the number of cases on the calendar. A bill has been introduced in Congress looking toward the construction of a new Federal Court House Building in New York City. Even though this contemplated legislation should be approved, it is thought that several years would elapse before the new structure could be completed."

SHOWS HOW TO SAVE MILLIONS FOR CITY

SUGGESTS TEN-YEAR NOTES

Would Then Pay $61,000,000 for $50,000,000, as Against $134,663,750 Under 50-Year Bond Method.

Controller William A. Prendergast, in an address delivered last night at the midwinter dinner of the New York Credit Men's Association at the Hotel Astor, outlined a new financial policy for the City of New York that would save millions of dollars for the taxpayers in the long run if adopted, he said. Briefly Mr. Prendergast's scheme was to stop issuing long-term bonds, and in their stead borrow the money needed on short-time notes, all of which were to be paid off within ten years of the date of issue.

It would mean an increase of some proportion in the annual budget, he admitted, but on top of that admission he said that he would again urge the Board of Estimate to-day to adopt his plan for the establishment of a central purchasing bureau, by which he hoped to save $4,000,000 annually for the city, more than enough to pay the addition to the annual budget brought about by the issuing of $50,000,000 short time notes for improvements.

He summed his plan up in these words, after asserting that there had been in the past too much of a tendency to cast upon posterity the financial burdens incurred by the present generation:

"We will assume that we have improvements that it is absolutely necessary should be made, amounting to $50,000,000; or, expressing it in another way, we want to avoid the issuance of long-term bonds this year to the amount of $50,000,000. I believe that satisfactory legislation could be secured which would enable the city to borrow this sum of money on its short-time notes, with the understanding that one-tenth of this amount of $50,000,000 was to be included each year for ten years in the annual tax budget and a corresponding amount of notes annually retired.

"A comparison of this method of borrowing with our present method of issuing long-term bonds suggests financial results that are almost astounding. For instance, an issue of $50,000,000 of short time notes at 4 per cent., to be paid during the next ten years in ten annual installments, including principal and interest, would represent an aggregate outlay by the city during the period of $61,000,000, but at the end of that time this indebtedness would be paid. If we were to issue $50,000,000 of fifty-year bonds at 4½ per cent., we would have to pay interest upon them to the amount of $112,500,000, and lay aside in amortization charges $22,163,750, or an aggregate cost for this $50,000,000 bond issue of $134,663,750. The difference between the two methods would mean a saving to the City of New York of $73,663,750.

"It may be claimed by some that there is a great economic value to the people of the city in being able to spread this outlay over fifty years, and that they are justified in doing so, although the difference in the cost would reach so high a figure as $73,000,000; but I am certain that in the present tendencies of public finance and in the present condition of the credit market any economic advantage the people think would come to them is largely illusionary, and that the safest course for them to follow would be to have the present generation stand as much of the burden as it reasonably could be expected to. Furthermore, it must not be forgotten that just as quickly as the opportunity for borrowing on easy terms, or through long-term bond issues, is at all curtailed, the people themselves will resolve to be more economical, and there will be less demand made upon the authorities for great public improvements.

"Assuming that my plan were adopted, it would mean that we would have to include in the budget annually for ten years the sum of $6,100,000. Under our present plan of issuing long term bonds we would have to include in the budget $2,693,275 for fifty years, but in the first case, at the end of ten years there would be no further undebtedness upon this issue, and in the second case the annual outlay of $2,698,275 would have to be made for the succeeding forty years.

Mr. Prendergast said that in his opinion the most salutory thing which could be done was to prevent, if possible, any large additions to our bonded indebtedness. This could only be accomplished, he said, by the adoption of some new scheme for financing important improvements. Mr. Prendergast a former secretary of the Association, was the guest of honor. He asked the association's support in his plans.

Charles S. Hamlin, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, spoke about the new tariff and currency legislation. The party, he said, had made certain pledges and had endeavored to carry them out. The tariff law, he said, had not brought on disaster, as some had predicted it would, and the revenue under it was keeping up to the estimate. As a result of the bill, he said, he had already seen signs of increase in efficiency in manufacture, and expected that the United States would be able to compete with any country in the world. The currency legislation he referred to as an admirable measure, and was high in his praise of President Wilson, Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo and the men who framed it. Congressman Carter Glass, he said, should have a monument erected to him because of his labors.

Edward D. Flannery, President of the association, presided, and there was an address by Robert H. Davis of Munsey's Magazine. Among those at the speakers' table were George C. Van Tuyl, State Superintendent of Banking; County Clerk Schneider, Judge Rosalsky, President Walter E. Frew of the Corn Exchange Bank, President William H. Gibson of the New York Board of Trade and Transportathion, and others. There were about 800 at the dinner. Mr Prendergast and Mr. Hamlin both spoke in praise of the association for its efforts to bring about civic, State and national legislation for the benefit of the country.

SPREADS MILK CRUSADE.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 15.—Initiating a movement to introduce the process of pasteurization of milk into American cities outside of New York, Nathan Straus, head of the movement in New York City, appeared before the New Haven Chamber of Commerce to-day and congratulated New Haven on being the first American city to promote the plan. He was accompanied by his son, Nathan Straus, Jr., and Miss Anna Nason, who has had charge of the model laboratory in New York City.

Mr. Straus said that pasteurized milk and fresh air would keep almost any baby healthy, and he referred to the home pasteurizer as a valuable aid in the preparation of the milk.

Prof. Rosenau of Harvard University praised the activity of the New Haven Chamber of Commerce in taking the initiative among American cities outside of New York in preparing for the installation of a Straus model pasteurizer, and said that, as a life-saving device, he knew nothing to equal it.

Miss Nason described in detail the methods in vogue at the New York laboratory, using a model in making the demonstration. She recommended taking the home pasteurizer into every tenement, and said that babies often spent the Summer in the country and became ill from feeding on raw milk, only to return to the city and thrive on milk treated by pasteurization.

Representatives of the Civic Federation, the Mothers' Club, the Baby Welfare Club, and several other city organizations indorsed the idea and expressed themselves as eager to obtain a Straus model laboratory for the city.

Miss Nason will take the apparatus which she brought to this city to Jamestown and to Bridgeport for demonstrations before returning to New York City. Two days will be spent here, two of them devoted to demonstrating the home pasteurizer in social settlement houses.

THE BUSINESS WORLD

An advance of about $12.50 a picul (133 pounds) featured the past week's activities in the Yokohama raw silk market. With the rise came an improved demand both from European and American manufacturers. Sales for the week amounted to 2,200 bales. The tone of the Canton market is very strong, and prices are advancing. There are few sellers in that market. Shanghai is very quiet, but firm. Holders are in a good financial condition, and are not pressing sales. Stocks are small. There is a fair demand reported from Italy, with the market strong. In New York the demand is increasing as prices advance in the primary markets.

Spring Fashion Show Next Month.

A Spring and Summer Fashion Show will be held at the Grand Central Palace Feb. 5 to 14, under the auspices of the New York Fashion Exchange. This show will be open to the managers, buyers, and other executives of retail dry goods stores and specialty shops. The general public will not be admitted. Among the features of the show will be displays of Spring and Summer fashions, in women's, misses', and children's apparel on living models and daily motion pictures of the newest offerings in these lines. Nearly 8,000 invitations to attend the exhibition have been sent to the retail trade by Manager W. W. Nugent. More than eighty firms have so far expressed their intention of having exhibits at the show. These include fabric houses, importers, and manufacturers of garments for women and children.

Want "Solid Gold" Abolished.

There is a strong feeling in the jewelry trade that the National Stamping act should be amended so as to bring under its provisions unscrupulous manufacturers of jewelry products who mark their wares "solid gold." According to trade authorities, there is now no provision in the national act covering this point, and while a manufacturer may be prosecuted for marking an article "18-karat" when it does not measure up to that standard, there is at present no legal means of preventing him from marking an article "solid gold" when it may not even approach the 24-karat standard. It is said that many such articles are now being put out for public consumption which do not contain more than 5 or 10 cents' worth of gold. It is this practice that the honest jewelry interests want to stop.

SHIPPERS TO BE HEARD.

Commerce Board Courts Specific Objections to Rate Increase.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Shippers will have an opportunity to present to the Interstate Commerce Commission their objections to specific instances in the 5 per cent. increase of freight rates proposed by the Eastern railroads. They will not be obliged to present objections to the increase as a whole, but may develop testimony on the cost of moving certain classes of traffic.

This was decided by the commission to-day with an announcement that the shippers would be heard in regard to petroleum in the near future.

Hearings on other commodities, coal, cement, brick, plaster, flour, packing-house products, iron, steel, and lumber, will follow as rapidly as possible.

CONSULAR TRADE NOTES.

Consul General Alphonse Gaulin of Marseilles, France, reports that an agricultural congress is to be held in Tunis in April in connection with the international plowing contest mentioned in The Consular and Trade Reports last July.

There is not apt to be any world-wide reduction in the output of cotton mills, as suggested in a letter sent to cotton manufacturers' associations in all parts of the world by the Italian Textile Industry Association of Milan, Italy. The suggestion was made in order to restore the proper relations between supply and demand, but the majority of manufacturers could not see the necessity of making a change at this time.

Under the joint auspices of the Chamber of Commerce and the Chamber of Agriculture of the Ile de la Reunion, with the approval of the Governor of the colony, an Intercolonial Exposition will be held at St. Denis, the capital of Reunion, from July 14 to Aug. 14, 1914. European and other exporters and manufacturers, it is understood, will be asked to exhibit their products, machinery, implements, &c., intended for colonial agricultural purposes.

The annual meeting of the National Jewelers' Board of Trade, which was to have been held in this city yesterday, was postponed. It will be held here about the middle of next month, at which time there will be a general gathering of jewelry interests.

The annual Chemical and Drug Exhibition will be held in Madison Square Garden Jan. 20 to 26, excepting Sunday, Jan. 25. A number of conventions of drug organizations will be held here while the exhibition is going on.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

The Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday sustained a protest by the National Hat Pin Company, New York, holding that glass hat pin tops are properly dutiable under the tariff act of 1909, at 20 per cent. ad valorem as imitation precious stones used in the manufacture of jewelry. Collector Malone assessed the tops as manufactures of paste or glass, at 45 per cent. The board held that this action was erroneous and ordered a reliquidation of the duties on the lower basis.

Adverse action was taken by the board on protests by the Eastern Specialty Company, Philadelphia, regarding the duty on sapphires used as bearings in electric motors. Duty was taken at the rate of 50 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 112, of the old law, as semi-precious stones not used in the construction of jewelry. The importers claimed a rate of 10 per cent. under Paragraph 192, directly or by similitude as watch and clock jewels, or at 10 per cent. under Paragraph 449, either directly or by similitude as other precious stones or semi-precious stones, cut but not set, for use in the manufacture of jewelry. The board held that the Collector should have taxed the sapphires under Paragraph 95 as earthy or mineral substances. As the importers failed to make this claim, the Collector's classification, although erroneous, stands.

Russmann, Galland, & Wechmar, New York, won in a case involving the classification of buckle and slides composed of base metal in imitation of gold and silver and set with imitation precious stones. The articles are used in the trimming of women's dresses. They were returned for duty at 60 per cent. as jewelry under the old act, and were claimed to be dutiable at 45 per cent. as manufactures of metal and paste, metal chief value.

GOAT SKINS CLASSIFIED.

Treasury Department Issues Final Letter of Instructions.

The Treasury Department has dispelled the uncertainty which has existed for some time regarding the classification to be accorded under the new tariff law on importations of mats, rugs, robes, or garments made in part of goat skin. F. A. Higgins, Appraiser of this port, expressed the opinion in a letter to Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Hamlin that it was the intention of Congress in framing the present law to classify all material of goat and dog skins at the rate of 10 per cent. ad valorem. It was also suggested that the provision for plates and mats of the skins named should be construed to cover rugs and robes of the same materail.

In his letter of instructions to customs officials, Mr. Hamlin says:

"The department concurs in the opinion expressed by you, that it was the intention of Congress that dog skins and goat skins, when imported as material, should be assessed at a lower rate of duty than furs dressed on the skin or furs further advanced than dressing or dyeing when prepared for use as material, including plates and linings. It will be observed by reference to Paragraph 348 that the first class provides for furs dressed in skins at 20 per cent. ad valorem; furs further advanced, when prepared for use as material, 40 per cent. ad valorem, and wearing apparel, composed wholly or in chief value of fur, 50 per cent; whereas the same paragraph provides that plates and mats of dog and goat skins shall be dutiable at 10 per cent. ad valorem and that wearing apparel composed of the skins of the dog or goat shall be subject to duty at the rate of 15 per cent. ad valorem."

The Assistant Secretary then says that in view of the provisions cited the department is clearly of the opinion that to give effect to Congressional intent goat skin rugs and dog skin rugs and robes, which, it appears, if not identical in character, are similar to mats and plates, should be assessed at 10 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 348.

WILL TEST FOR SILVER.

Antimony Importations from Japan Will Enter Under New Rules.

Importers of antimony articles from Japan have been informed that the Treasury Department is about to put into operation strict rules for the guidance of customs officers in examining these goods. Because of its natural bright finish, antimony bears a striking resemblance to silver.

As antimony articles carry a low duty, ranging from 10 to 25 per cent. ad valorem, while goods made of silver wholly or in chief value pay 50 per cent. ad valorem under the new tariff law. Customs officials have been ordered to make chemical tests to determine the character of the metal before classifying the goods for duty. The new rule affects such importations as photograph frames, fancy boxes, and crumb trays, which are brought in large quantities from Japan.

CURTISS WILL GO AHEAD.

Court Ruling in Wright's Favor Won't Stop Flying Boat Maker.

The decision of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals that Glenn H. Curtiss has been infringing upon patents held by the Wright brothers ever since he entered the aeroplane industry in 1909 will not cause any material inconvenience to Mr. Curtiss, according to L. J. Seely, manager of the Curtiss Aeroplane Company, who is in charge of the business in the absence of Mr. Curtiss in Europe.

Mr. Seely, in an interview given in the club rooms of the Aero Club of America yesterday, said that Mr. Curtiss intends to stay right here and manufacture aeroplanes, just as he has always done.

"But the aeroplanes will be slightly different," said Mr. Seely. "We have three new methods of control, of which we are sure that at least two are not covered by the decision in favor of the Wrights. Our lawyers inform me that the decision does not cover the controls we intend to put into use."

Mr. Seely was asked if he knew of any plan on the part of Mr. Curtiss to approach Orville Wright with a project to "get together." He said he knew of no plan, but that he hoped one would be worked out.

IMPORTERS MAKE PLANS.

New Association Hopes to Recruit 10,000 Members.

The Directors of the National Association of Importers, at a meeting held on Wednesday at 165 Broadway, prepared tentative by-laws to govern the new organization. The Directors also discussed the lines of activity which the association will follow.

Officers probably will be chosen next week, after which permanent headquarters here will be engaged. Ex-Judge Sharretts, counsel of the association, said yesterday that the work of recruiting members throughout the country was making good progress. The membership ultimately, it is hoped, will include 10,000 importers.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Trading on the Stock Exchange was widely diversified yesterday and the volume of transactions rose to a higher figure than any recorded since the third week of last October. Prices which in the first ten days of the new year were advancing despite a tendency toward contraction in trading have risen briskly within the last two days to the accompaniment of a considerable expansion in dealings. From the 'traders' point of view this fact may suggest that a good deal of distribution was under way, and yesterday's market in fact suggested a considerable amount of profit taking. In a broader view, however, it should be recognized that the stimulus which has been given the market during the last couple of days flowed very naturally from the tendencies lately manifesting themselves.

No topic was more discussed yesterday than the Administration's programme for so-called anti-trust legislation which has now for several days been a foremost matter of discussion in the financial district. In a good many quarters judgment was still being reserved regarding the bearing which the President's forthcoming message would have upon business sentiment, but the stock market was disposed to assume, and many agreed that it was justified in assuming, that the special message will fully bear out the intimations regarding its purport which have been coming from Washington. A spirit of conciliation in the place of one of antagonism between Government and business will bear important fruit for one as for the other. Plans are in abeyance which will go forward if only affairs at Washington give sufficient encouragement to business enterprise. It is felt by many that that encouragement needs to take the form not only of a conciliatory attitude on the corporation question, such as is now being foreshadowed, but also recognition by the Government through its appointed agents of the railroads' need of an increase in rates.

Just how much stimulus an increase in freight rates would give to general business there is no means of telling accurately, but undoubtedly its beneficial effects would be great. A man who holds high position in the industrial world and who is better equipped than most to judge of this matter expressed the opinion yesterday that a 5 per cent. increase in freight rates would bring about an expansion of from 20 per cent. to 25 per cent. in general business over the volume which is now running. A smaller increase in freight rates, he thought, would stimulate trade proportionately. No industry so important as the transportation industry can suffer through inadequate compensation for the service which it performs without the country's business as a whole being deprived of its fair share of prosperity. If an expansion in trade such as this man estimated yesterday can be obtained through a 5 per cent. increase in freight rates it would be very cheaply had at that price. The opponents of the proposed increase are about to be heard by the Interstate Commerce Commission, as it was naturally assumed that they would be heard. No fact regarding the present rate proposal is plainer, however, than that opposition to it on the part of those who will have to pay the increased charges is far less vigorous and less general than the objections which were raised on previous occasions when the railroads attempted to better their position through the establishment of a higher level of rates.

Rumor has attempted to give practical application to what has lately been said regarding the disposition on the part of business interests to co-operate with the Administration in a programme of friendly adjustment of questions raised under the Sherman law. This appears in the shape of a report that an agreement would be reached between the United States Steel Corporation and the Government terminating the Sherman lawsuit which is now pending against that corporation. A good deal of attention was paid to this report in some quarters yesterday, but there appears to be no basis for it. Those in a position to speak for the Steel Corporation express as much confidence as ever in the legality of the company's position and seem not at all disposed to yield to the extent to which it would be necessary to yield in order to bring the suit to an end. That some concessions would be made is not seriously doubted in the financial district, but no such partial surrender, so it is believed, would satisfy the Department of Justice. It is unfortunate that it takes so long to determine questions such as have been raised in the Steel suit, and unfortunate that the business world should be kept in uncertainty over a matter which is of really great importance, but from that there seems to be no present escape. When judgment is rendered in the Steel suit a great deal of additional light will necessarily be thrown upon questoins now at issue and which are not definitely settled in those cases which are terminated by agreement.

The Bank of England made an excellent showing in an increase of nearly $14,000,000 in its gold holdings and in a decrease of $11,500,000 in loans. The proportion of reserve to liabilities has been restored to a figure which is the highest for this date in any year since 1896. Not so good was the showing made by the Bank of France. Its gold holdings increased but only very moderately, considering the season of the year. These gold holdings are shortly to be enlarged from New York. That will contribute to the easing of the French money market, which has been backward in responding to the influences which have been effective in reducing rates in other markets.

CENTRAL EXTENDS NOTES.

Has Arranged to Renew $30,000,000 Issue Falling Due March 1.

The New York Central, which has maturing March 1 $30,000,000 of three-year notes, most of which were sold in London and Paris, has arranged abroad for the extension of part of the issue for one year, and arrangements probably will be made for extending the balance. The notes were extended on practically the same basis, or at about 5 per cent. for the money. No plans have been made yet for taking care of another issue of $20,000,000 in notes maturing a month later.

The Central has resorted to the short-term market again in the expectation of being able to put through its consolidation plan for the New York Central and Lake Shore before long, when it would be in a position to sell long-term bonds under the new development and refunding mortgage.

Rate of Bank of Bombay Raised.

BOMBAY, Jan. 15.—The rate of discount of the Bank of Bombay was raised from 5 to 6 per cent. to-day.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

The Man of Silence.

So far as any of his friends know Henry Walters of the Atlantic Coast Line, the Louisville & Nashville, and the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis has never been misquoted by a reporter. For that matter, he has never been correctly quoted either. It is doubtful if there is another man in the United States who has done so much and talked so little. When Mr. Walters consummates a little matter like a distribution of $17,640,000 of Atlantic Coast Line stock, or an increase in a dividend, he promptly puts two good oaken doors between himself and the outer office, to which reporters might gain access. It is rumored that a reporter once met Mr. Walters in the hallway of the Empire Building and put a question to him, and that the Chairman of the Atlantic Coast Line did not breathe naturally again until he reached his library in Baltimore.

Judging by the action of two express stocks in yesterday's market the holders are recovering from the panic into which they were thrown by the sudden shrinkage in profits resulting from the establishment of the parcel post service. United States Express sold up to 62, a gain of 7 points for the day. This is an advance from 38, at which price the stock sold in 1913. American Express went up to 108, a gain of 8 points from the previous sale of 100 shares, and of 13 points from the low.

Trouble for Western Maryland.

When misfortune starts after a railroad it is hard to shake off pursuit. The Western Maryland management has been running a hard race for a year and a half, but misfortune keeps on its heels. In 1912-13 the company had a deficit of $415,000, against a surplus of $647,000 in the previous year, a loss of $1,062,000. The company had been engaged in the construction of an important new line, the Cumberland-Connellsville extension, and had been unable to accept all of the business offered. The annual report, commenting on this, said that the work had "demanded an extensive programme of adjustment, improvement, and betterment work which involved practically a rehabilitation of the lines and terminals between Cumberland and Baltimore."

This condition was held responsible for abnormally high operating costs and restriction of efficiency. Other troubles have befallen the property since the close of the last fiscal year, so that the improvement so confidently looked for has not yet materialized. November's statement of earnings showed nearly all of the revenues absorbed by operating expenses and taxes. On top of these obstacles came the break yesterday in the great Stoney River dam of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, which loosened 3,000,000,000 gallons of water over the district near Dobbin, West Va. The Western Maryland not only suffered great physical loss through washouts, but will lose traffic from the injury to the mill, which was the largest shipper on that division.

Two Points of View.

Dispatches from abroad yesterday saying that a number of Scotch steelmakers were on the verge of breaking out of a price maintenance association in order to participate at lower than prevailing quotations in some large orders were received with mixed feelings by local steel men. From one way of looking at the possible development it seemed as though further reductions might precipitate foreign selling on our shores. Although comparatively little European steel has been placed here under the new tariff, fear that a "dumping" process may begin at any time is a nightmare besetting American manufacturers. Prices abroad are already so low that certain products can be sold on our seaboard at a fair profit.

Looking at the situation in Scotland from another angle, considerable comfort could be gained. The American steelmaker dislikes to consider the possibility of his foreign contemporary turning out more tonnage than can be marketed in the latter's natural field, for the surplus may seek an outlet on this side. If the Scotch mills should book enough orders for delivery in Europe, there would not be any surplus steel to be considered, and a full quota of business for foreign plants would tend to advance prices over there, and keep manufacturers from regarding with covetous eyes the market on our Atlantic Coast.

Something to Worry About.

Steelmakers may not be lying awake nights wondering what the Interstate Commerce Commission is going to do about railroad freight rate increases, but it is safe to say that they spend a lot of time thinking about it. In some railroad offices large requisitions for bridge building and car repairing material and rails will be made as soon as the 5 per cent. advance is granted. The steel men know this, and are hoping that much of the need for their products will prove so pressing that the roads won't wait for the commission's ruling. If all buying should be held back, they are saying, some decidedly lean months would confront the rail and many of the structural mills. It it hoped the prevailing belief that the roads are going to be favored with an increase will have sentimental influence on purchases, and bring in an encouraging amount of tonnage long before the commission acts.

Seeing Light Ahead.

Supplementing its statement that some improvement has occurred in the steel trade since the beginning of the year, The Iron Age says:

"Numerous evidences of slackened trade have made their appearance within the last week or two. Some of these are so striking and so much worse than any previous recent showing that the conclusion is almost forced that we have seen the culmination of the depression. That we have definitely turned the corner—hence that from this time forward an improvement in business is to be expected—appears to be established by the developments since the opening of the year. The depression in business in November and December was so widespread and so thorough that the movement of merchandise, the purchase of fresh supplies and the output of manufactured goods were all very much under the average rate in normal times. Special causes brought about this condition of affairs, prominent among which were the scarcity of money, the putting into effect of a new tariff law, and the pending banking and currency legislation. None of these is now a factor in affecting business."

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Guy E. Tripp, Chairman of the Westinghouse Electric Company, denied yesterday a report from Pittsburgh that 2,000 employes had received notice of a reduction of 16 2-3 per cent. in pay. Mr. Tripp said that there had been no reduction and none is in contemplation, except that brought about by putting the factory force on forty-five hours a week instead of fifty-four.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

With a Few Exceptions, the Oil Stocks Closed Lower on Smaller Trading.

The oil stocks were reactionary on the outside security market and declines occurred ranging from 1 to 10 points. Standard Oil of Ohio and Washington Oil each closed 10 points lower, while Standard Oil of Kentucky and Atlantic Refining each fell off 5 points. Solar Refining was an exception to the general trend, closing 5 points higher. In bonds, New York State 4½s, when issued, sold at 105⅝ to 105¾, and Canadian Pacific 6 per cent. notes at 101¾. Transactions reported were:

BOURSES OF EUROPE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Friday, Jan. 16.—The Times says in its City article this morning:

"The abundance of money caused a slight fall in the rate for daily advances, but the terms for short fixtures and India Council loans were unaltered. Discount rates were at first steady, but were generally quoted lower after the publication of the Bank return. Paris cheque fell ½. The Bank of England received £165,000 in bar gold.

"New York Central one-year bills for £500,000 were placed at 5¼ per cent.

"The outstanding feature of the stock markets was the heavy fall in Mexican Government bonds, which were freely offered on Continental and local account, most of the selling orders emanating from Berlin.

"In other directions the tone of the markets was quite satisfactory, the strong Bank return creating a very favorable impression, while the latest news from South Africa was interpreted as distinctly more reassuring.

"Business generally was quiet, the members being occupied with the final adjustment of accounts. The scrips of recent issues were in renewed request. French operators were small buyers of the specialties, although there were rumors of a failure in Paris.

"A substantial rally occurred in South African shares, and the American market showed pronounced strength, while Argentine railway stocks recovered."

NEW RULE ON DIVIDENDS.

Stock Exchange Adopts It to Prevent Delay in Reports on Them.

The New York Stock Exchange, which recently attempted so to change its listing requirements as to make impossible a repetition of the criticism caused by the delayed announcement of the Goodrich dividend, has again amended its rules to insure prompt publication of other action in relation to dividends. As now worded, the rule imposes this requirement upon corporations whose shares are listed:

"To publish promptly to bond and stockholders any action in respect to dividends on shares, interest on bonds, or allotment of rights for subscription to securities, notices thereof to be sent to the Stock Exchange; and to give to the Stock Exchange at least ten days' notice in advance of the closing of the transfer books or the taking of a record of stockholders for any purpose."

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

On a heavy volume of business prices on the Consolidated Stock Exchange made further headway toward a higher level. Sales totaled 77,400 shares. This represented the biggest day on the floor since Oct. 21 of last year, when, also on a rising market, 100,210 shares changed hands. A feature that stood out in the record for the day was that the trading list included not less than sixty-one stocks, the broadest market in respect to variety of securities dealt in since Sept. 30, 1912. Commission houses were very active on the floor and there were continued evidences of re-aroused interest on the part of the public. United States Steel was the accepted leader throughout the session, with the market for it a very broad one.

FAVORS BANK LAW CHANGES

State Savings Association Reports to Van Tuyl Commission.

The Van Tuyl Commission to revise the State banking law had an all-day session in the Chamber of Commerce yesterday which was entirely taken up with hearings given to representatives of the savings banks from all parts of the State and to officers of banks of deposit and discount and trust companies.

Drafts of the proposed new law had been printed and in their tentative form sent out to the institutions under the supervision of the State Banking Department. The purpose was to call out from these institutions suggestions for amendment before the law was printed in its final form for report to the Legislature.

At the morning session it developed that a meeting of the Executive Committee of the New York State Savings Bank Association had been held in this city on Wednesday, at which the proposed provisions of the law had been approved in most cases, and a report was presented for that committee by its Chairman, President Henry A. Schenck of the Bowery Savings Bank.

James H. Manning of the National Savings Bank of Albany was present as the Chairman of the Legislative Committee of the State Savings Bank Association and took part in the discussion. Senator Henry W. Pollock, Chairman of the Committee on Banks, also was in attendance during the day and listened to the discussions.

In the afternoon the commission gave a hearing to a committee representing the Depositors' Association of the failed Union Bank of Brooklyn. This committee had numerous suggestions of a drastic nature to recommend for incorporation in the law. The hearing will be continued to-day.

AMERICA HASTENS TO ASSIST JAPAN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—President Wilson's message of sympathy sent yesterday to the Emperor of Japan was followed to-day by another cable dispatch as follows:

> Permit me again to express to you the deep sympathy which the American people feel for their sister nation, Japan, in her great calamity. Their hearts go out to the thousands upon whom suffering and disaster have come so suddenly and in so terrible a form. Is there any way in which we can help?

> Our sister nation, Japan, is suffering from two veryr serious disasters. The failure of crops in the northeastern part of that country has brought hundreds of thousands of persons face to face with the terrible misery of slow starvation, and in the southwestern island of Kiushiu a sudden great volcanic eruption has carried death and desolation to large numbers in a thickly populated district.
> I appeal to the humanity of our American people that they may give expression to their sympathy for the suffering and distress of so many of their fellow-men by generous contributions for their aid. Such contributions can be made to the local Red Cross Treasurers or sent directly to the American Red Cross, Washington, D. C.
>
> President American Red Cross.

Prior to the receipt of news of the devastation caused by the volcanic eruption, the American Red Cross had cabled $5,000 to its branch in Tokio for the relief of the famine sufferers.

Through the State Department, Miss Mabel Boardman, acting on behalf of the American Red Cross, has telegraphed an inquiry to the Japanese Government as to whether the Red Cross can be of assistance. No response to this inquiry has been received.

In deciding to issue his appeal this afternoon, President Wilson acted without receiving an answer to his second telegram to the Japanese Emperor. He conferred, however, with Miss Boardman before sending his inquiry, and they agreed that the inquiry should be made.

The Navy, the monthly publication devoted to the upbuilding of the fleet and generally espousing the cause of the Navy League of the United States, in an advertisement telegraphed to newspapers, appeals for the Japanese sufferers and offers to receive subscriptions.

"The Navy is owned by Col. Robert M. Thompson, well known for his interest in naval affairs. Col. Thompson said to-night that his action had been due to a belief that, coming at this time, it would tend to strengthen the friendly feeling between the peoples of Japan and the United States. He added that The Navy was telegraphing to the officers on the American warships asking them to contribute to the fund.

"I telegraphed to-day," said Col. Thompson, "to Viscount Kaneko, President of the American Friends' Society of Japan, who lives in Tokio, telling him to instruct the Red Cross Society of Japan to draw on me, representing the navy, for 2,500 yen, which is $1,250 in our money.

"Viscount Kaneko is a graduate of Harvard University, a great friend of the United States, and a special friend of ex-President Roosevelt. We hope to raise a much larger sum. Officers of the navy are showing great interest in the matter and have urged me to take this action, their purpose being to show appreciation of the courtesies to the officers and men of the American fleet on its visit to Japan when it was making its tour around the world."

Col. Thompson said there was no intention to ignore the Red Cross, but it was thought to be better to deal directly with the Red Cross Society in Japan.

STEEL TRUST TAKES ON MEN

10,000 Re-employed Since Jan. 1—30,000 Are Still Out.

Supplementing the information regarding conditions in the steel trade as contained in dispatches from the heads of numerous companies which were published in THE TIMES on Thursday, it was learned in authoritative quarters yesterday that the United States Steel Corporation had re-employed since the first of the year about 10,000 men who had previously been laid off. The men were a part of the force discharged in the severe depression of December.

The corporation's pay roll last June, when the mills and furnaces were working at a high rate of capacity, contained the names of 195,000 workers in round numbers. As incoming orders declined a gradual cutting down of the working force occurred, although the heaviest contraction did not come until November. By Christmas the number of employes had been reduced to 155,000 and the addition of 10,000 after Jan. 1 brought the roster up to 165,000 men, the number employed at the present time.

These further replies to the messages sent by THE TIMES to various foundries in the country were received yesterday:

BUFFALO, Jan. 15.—Yes, Mr. Humphrey's assertion is true. We have laid off 500 men since March 1, 1913, and have re-employed none of them. We cannot say what the prospects will be for employing more men this year.

IVANHOE, Va., Jan. 15.—We blew out on March 29, 1913, and laid off 300 men. If the market picks up we will resume.

IVANHOE FURNACE CO.

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—One of our furnaces was blown out on July 1 and 150 men were laid off then. None additional has been employed since. The prospects are reasonably fair for us to resume additional operations during the next three months.

FEDERAL FURNACE CO.,
W. L. Brown, President.

Thomas Furnace Co.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 15.—Our blast furnace has been out of blast since July 13. The entire force of 160 men are idle at the furnace, and twice as many men who were engaged in furnishing raw material and transportation for the same. The prospects for 1914 are encouraging.

AMERICA LEADS IN GIVING.

Foreign Missions Conference Has FIGures of Contributions.

Protestant Church peoples of the United States and Canada sent into foreign countries last year to propagate their religious plans and beliefs $61,458,000. These figures were given out as official by the Foreign Missions Conference, which adjourned yesterday after a two-day session at Garden City. The amount is less than in 1912, the figures for the previous year having been $17,317,000. The conference declared, however, that there has been no real decline. Statistics of former years, privately collected, have been unsatisfactory, but now the conference has itself taken hold and promises more exact data.

In point of income the largest single missionary society in foreign work in the world is an English one, although the United States in total gifts to foreign missions leads the world by some millions. The four great societies of America, two with headquarters in New York and two in Boston, are Presbyterian North, $1,837,000; Methodist North, $1,539,400; Baptist North, $1,195,500, and American Board, Congregational, $1,048,900.

Four other societies have receipts exceeding $500,000 each, and three of them are from the South. The fourth has headquarters in New York. These are Protestant Episcopal, $823,600; Methodist South, $790,400; Presbyterian South, $637,400, and Baptist South, $580,000.

None of the Canada societies reaches the $500,000 mark. The whole sum going to foreign missions a year, England, Scotland, the Continent of Europe, Australia, and South Africa included, is an even $26,000,000. The United States is the largest single national contributor. England is next and Scotland third.

Gifts to home missions in the United States alone are upward of $50,000,000 a year. All mission boards in the United States, home and foreign, are now engaged in a united missionary campaign that is to end in March, the aims of which are to inform the Christian public about missionary work, to get as large a number of church members as possible to give something for extension and to give it regularly, and to increase the total from America each year.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

The grain markets moved irregularly yesterday and left off with unimportant price changes for the most part. Wheat closed ⅛c lower to ⅛c higher, corn was ⅛c up to ½c down, and oats was soft. In the cotton market slow selling brought declines ranging from 1 to 4 points. Cotton oil and provisions were easy.

WHEAT.

The wheat market developed a reactionary tendency early in the day, and values were heavy throughout the greater part of the session, declining ½c to ⅝c under profit-taking by recent buyers, but during the last half hour there was a sharp rally on reports of export sales, and final prices were from ⅛c net lower to ⅛c higher. Receipts at Northwestern points were larger, and the total interior movement was 38,000 bushels ahead of the corresponding day last week, although over 400,000 bushels less than last year.

The foreign news was again of a rather bullish character, as further complaints were received regarding yields in the Argentine. Broomhall estimated the exportable surplus in Australia at not to exceed 49,600,000 bushels, compared with 51,444,000 bushels last year, and said that Japan is likely to be a heavy buyer of Australian wheat, and that farmers were inclined to hold. An official report placing the Canadian crop at 231,717,000 bushels, compared with about 199,000,000 bushels last year, had more or less influence on prices early in the day, as it caused a heavy tone in the Winnipeg market. Weather conditions in the West were generally favorable, and no complaints were received regarding the new crop.

In the local cash market No. 2 hard Winter wheat was quoted at 98¼c, cost, insurance, and freight, New York; No. 2 red at $1.00½, elevator; No. 1 Northern Manitoba, $1.00½, free on board, and No. 1 Northern Duluth, $1.01¾, free on board.

CORN.

The corn market declined ¼ to ⅜c. during the first part of the day under quite active selling, owing to reports of more liberal offerings from the country, but rallied late and closed steady at ⅛c. net advance to ⅛c. decline. Interior cash markets were somewhat lower.

In the local cash market No. 3 yellow corn was quoted at 71½c. c. i. f. to arrive.

OATS.

The oats market was easier early under quite active selling by leading commission houses, but regained part of the loss in sympathy with the upturn in wheat and corn, closing ⅛@¼c net lower. The local cash market was quiet; standard white being quoted at 45½@46c; No. 2, 46@46½c; No. 3, 45@46c; No. 4, 44½@45½c; ordinary clipped white, 44@46c; fancy clipped white, 45½@47c, all elevator.

COTTON.

After showing considerable firmness the cotton market broke rather sharply late yesterday and closed barely steady, net 1 point lower to 4 points higher. The advance of preceding days which carried March contracts up to 12.65, and active months generally some 58 to 65 points above the recent low record appeared to attract a good deal of realizing. After opening steady at an advance of 3 to 4 points, the market reacted slightly under realizing, but very quickly firmed up on continued reports of an improved spot demand, and rumors of bullish private ginning returns for the period ending last night. Active months sold 10 to 13 points above Wednesday's closing figures, but demand became somewhat less aggressive around 12.65 for March, and prices eased off 8 or 10 points from the lowest in the late trading.

The Census Bureau will issue its report on the amount of cotton ginned to the close of business Jan. 15 on Friday of next week, but private figures are likely to be available today or to-morrow. An official report is scheduled for publication this morning showing the amount of linters obtained up to the first of January. It may be recalled that the report issued last month showed linters of 289,118 bales to Dec. 1.

Southern spot markets as officially reported were unchanged to ¼ higher. The local market for spot cotton was quiet and 15 points higher at 12.85 for middling upland; sales nil.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The cottonseed oil market again showed a reactionary tendency and the downward movement which developed late in the day on Wednesday was continued owing to less aggressive operations on the buying side and quite active selling credited to leading refiners. The undertone was nervous and the market as a whole was rather feverish.

COFFEE.

The coffee market opened steady at an advance of 3 to 5 points, and during the first part of the day ruled firm, owing to a steady feeling abroad and on firmness in the cost and freight market, where prices were practically unchanged from Wednesday. The Havre market also eased off at the close, and after having showed gains of ¼f to ½f early closed at a loss of ¼f to ½f, although Hamburg closed ½ to ¾ pfennig net higher. The Rio market showed a decline of 50 reis, Santos spots were unchanged, while futures opened unchanged to 25 reis lower.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market again responded to firmness in the hog position, but lost part of the gain under profit-taking and selling, which was believed to be by packers. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 25,000, estimated for Friday 22,000; Kansas City received 7,500, and Omaha 9,000.

THE WEATHER.

East of the mountains there was a general, and in most places a decided, rise, so that temperatures are to-night 10 to 30 degrees above the seasonal average.

Barometric conditions are much unsettled, except in the South, and there are numerous centres of disturbance with quite low pressure, but without precipitation of consequence, except from the eastern Upper Lake region eastward, where there were snows, and west of the Rocky Mountains, where there were general rains and snows.

As pressure is still falling in the Pacific States, unsettled weather, with rains and snows, will continue west of the Rockies during the next two days. To the eastward there probably will not be much precipitation, but the weather will be unsettled over the northern tier of States, with local snows on Friday in portions of New England, Eastern New York, and on Friday night or Saturday in the north Upper Lake region and the Far Northwest.

It will be somewhat colder on Friday night in the Plains States, and it will be warmer in the northeast.

FORECASTS; TO-DAY AND SATURDAY.

Northern New England—Local snows and warmer Friday; Saturday, partly cloudy; moderate, variable winds.

3 A. M.	32	17	4 P. M.	43	29
6 A. M.	30	22	6 P. M.	42	29
9 A. M.	30	26	9 P. M.	39	29
12 M.	40	30	11 P. M.	39	29

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 22; for the corresponding date last year it was 36; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 30.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 24; at 8 P. M. it was 29. Maximum temperature, 30 degrees, at 12 noon; minimum, 14 degrees, at 12:02 A. M. Humidity, 61 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 78 per cent. at 8 P. M.

The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 30.07 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 29.92 inches.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Co-operation Urged Among Realty Owners to Improve Conditions—Builders Buy Washington Heights Apartment Plot—Van Norden Stable Sold—Greenwich Village Deals—Bronx and Brooklyn Activity.

Henry Bloch, President of the United Real Estate Owners' Association, told the members at a luncheon held at Mouquin's yesterday that many of the troubles of which they complain would have been less serious, if not entirely obviated, had the taxpayers been alert and watched the Legislature at Albany, and previous Boards of Estimate, instead of each selfishly taking care of his own personal interests.

"There is a feeling growing among men that co-operation is fast taking the place of competition," said Mr. Bloch. "The great industrial combinations and the labor unions have shown what can be accomplished by joint effort and co-operation. It remains for the owners of property to say whether they will follow the example and join forces for their mutual protection."

"The fact that the real estate market has for some time been in a demoralized condition need hardly be told," added Mr. Bloch. "Many believe that the deplorable condition of affairs is due to past extravagances in the running of the city government, and to the further fact that real estate pays 96 per cent. of all money raised by the city by taxation. Others believe that the present condition is due, in part at least, to the fact that the many municipal departments seem to have almost conspired against the owners of property and have made all kinds of demands and requirements. Still others believe that the depression is due to the enactment of many laws, often retroactive in effect, and in many instances resulting in practical confiscation of property. Undoubtedly all of these causes contributed in part to the present condition."

Other speakers were Dr. Henry W. Berg, Lawrence B. Elliman, and Adolph Bloch.

Builders Buy Apartment Site.

The Washington Heights apartment house district furnished a sale of a large vacant plot yesterday which will soon bring into improvement another portion of the former Hoguet estate block, fronting Riverside Drive, between 141st and 142d Streets. From the Jacobs Construction Company, of which Harry Jacobs is President, Vogel & Schwartz, builders, have purchased a plot fronting 100 feet on the south side of 142d Street by 99.11 deep, located 250 feet west of Broadway. It forms part of the old Hoguet estate plot, the Riverside Drive frontage of which has been lately improved with two twelve-story apartment houses, and on the 141st Street plot in the rear of the parcel just sold, a six-story house has been erected. The buyers of the 142d Street plot are planning to erect in the near future a high-class apartment structure.

BABY GETS WRIT IN MURDER CASE

GIVEN TO GRANDMOTHER

From a cell in the Queens County Jail, where her mother is waiting trial for the murder of her husband, a three months' old baby girl was taken yesterday and given over to the care of her grandmother, but this simple thing was not done until all the majesty of the Supreme Court of the State of New York had been invoked.

The records of Queens back as far as the seventeenth century show no other case of a baby invoking the constitutional privilege of habeas corpus. For this mite of a child to be put in the arms of the grandmother, two assistants of the District Attorney had to sue for the writ, representing the mother as guardian of the baby, impressive legal documents had to be drawn up to become in time a part of the records of the county, Supreme Court Justice Crane had to rule in the matter, and a big damage suit had to be halted that this all could be attended to with due formality.

The mother is only 17 years old—Maria Masio, widow of Antonio, whom she killed. It was on the night of Jan. 4 in their rooms in Vernon Avenue, Long Island City. He had ordered her out on the street to earn money for him and she had refused to go. He had beaten her cruelly for her refusal and then she tried to run away. She was stealing out of the house, the baby in one arm, while her free hand held her husband's revolver. He caught her as she was going and barred her way and that was when she fired. One shot killed him.

All this will be gone over at the trial. Yesterday's proceedings were just to get the baby out of the cell so that the grandmother, Mrs. Capobianco, could give her proper care. That was set forth in the papers, but as it was all a highly legal affair, of course it could not be set forth simply.

"The said infant," wrote the lawyers, after their fashion, "has not been committed to said prison and is not detained by virtue of any judgment, decree, or final order or process specified in Section 2,016 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, and the cause of pretense of restraint of said infant at the said prison is that she accompanied her mother thereto to have care of her said mother."

It was then set forth in another document that Mrs. Capobianco could take care of the baby and wanted to take care of the baby.

The preliminary order was served on the warden of the jail, and with the matron to guard her and with the baby in her arms, the girl accused of murder came into court. A witness was on the stand in the throes of telling what he knew about something. When the mother and baby appeared in the doorway the word was whispered about and the courtroom became still. A lawyer, who had been measuring off a distance guessed by the witness and who had worked himself up into a fine state of excitement about the exactness of the witness's sense of distance, halted his performance, and, with his yardstick in midair, looked curiously at those responsible for the interruption. The lawyers and the litigants dropped their quarrel for the minute and listened while the slim woman in black went to the witness stand.

The mother nodded her head.

"You are surrendering your child to your mother of your own free will and accord?" asked the court.

There were a few tears then, but the mother nodded again. The court began to intone:

"In signing this order, I direct that the stenographer's minutes of this examination be made a part of the record and filed with the papers. I also direct that a copy of this record be served on the defendant. I also direct that it be included in the order that this mother is to have the privilege of seeing her child whenever she wants to, and that the child be returned to her at any time on her demand. I want the full history of the case and this proceeding set forth in the papes, so that no misunderstanding may arise in the future over the custody of this child."

That ended the formal and legal parting of mother and baby. But she still had the little bundle in her arms and for a moment it looked as though she could not do it. Then she summoned her resolution, brushed away her tears, gave the good-bye kiss, and placed the baby in the grandmother's arms.

No one in the court seemed able to say or do anything. There was absolute silence for a few seconds after the two women, the matron and the baby had filed through the high door. Then there was a deal of coughing, a rattle of legal papers, and the damage suit was resumed.

Members of the Women's Political Union have gone to cooking for the "cause." Every Friday afternoon beginning to-day they will have a cake sale at headquarters, 15 East Forty-second Street—the same kind of cake that all their good-housekeeping suffrage ancestors used to make. The women who have made cake for to-day's sale are Mrs. Alfred Townsend, Miss Anna Constable, Mrs. J. Griswold Deane, Mrs. Emanuel Einstein, Mrs. Calvin Tomkins, and Mrs. Thomas H. Manson, who is in charge of the sales.

POTHIER DEFIES BOSS.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 15.—Gov. Aram J. Pothier and Gen. Charles A. Wilson, Chairman of the Republican State Committee, it became known to-day, have had a serious row over the election of a District Court Judge. Gov. Pothier defied the Republican boss and set about defeating his candidate. As a result Felix Hebert, the Governor's nominee, was unanimously re-elected Judge of the Fourth District Court by the General Assembly to-day.

Gen. Wilson is leader of the Rhode Island Republicans at a salary of $5,000, succeeding Gen. Charles R. Brayton. In view of the Governor's revolt, however, the Republican Assemblymen are now wondering who is the real boss of the party in the State.
